BULL'S-EYE LANDING ENDS APOLLO'S HISTORIC TRIP

Crew Decides Moon 'American Cheese'

ABOARD THE USS YORKTOWN (UPI) — America's amazing Apollo 8 astronauts blazed perfectly to a bull's-eye Pacific Ocean splashdown from a Yuletide journey around the moon today and reported it was "made of American cheese."

The lunar pioneers tore into the upper fringes of the air surrounding the "good earth" at nearly 25,000 miles per hour and streaked across the dark sky like a roller coaster to a landing only 6,000 yards from this veteran aircraft carrier.

They were safe, sound and happy at the end of the half-million mile Christmas journey that took them around the forbidding moon 10 times. It was an odyssey unprecedented in the annals of man.

The astronauts remained in their gently bobbing, charred command craft for more than an hour in the pre-dawn darkness. A cabin light shone through a window while the pilots waited for enough daylight to safely leave the moonship.

Beaming proudly in the first rays of the dawn, the spacemen left their craft at 9:04 p.m. PST and stepped out on the deck of this proud old ship 20 minutes later while its sailors cheered.

"We can't tell you how much we really appreciate being here, and how tremendous it is to take part in this event," said Apollo 8 Commander Frank Borman, who shaved with a small electric razor in the helicopter before boarding the carrier. His two companions, James Lovell and Wiliam Anders, wore heavy beards.

In the Houston Control Center, an American flag was unfurled over the tracking board, and the room blossomed with smaller flags on every console, and erupted in cheers.

"It's not made of green cheese at all," reported Borman as the spacecraft floated in the rolling seas waiting to be taken aboard the carrier. "It's made of American cheese."

It was a remarkable end to a mission that followed the book as closely as any in American spaceflight history.

"Hello there, Houston, how you doing?" Lovell said when the Space Center established contact with the astronauts, floating on the rolling seas.

"This is something for all mankind," said Dr. Thomas O. Paine, acting director of the U.S. Space Agency, at the Houston Space Center. "Man has started his drive out into the universe."

The six-ton Apollo cabin slashed into earth's atmosphere at an estimated 24,530 miles per hour and flashed across the night sky above the eastern Pacific leaving a trail of fiery gases in its wake.

The return was some 7,000 m.p.h. faster than previous earth orbital re-entries, and super-heated air boiled off the ship's heat shield at an estimated 4,740 degrees.

The astronauts' return was marked by the calm, business-like behavior displayed ever since Apollo 8 blasted from Cape Kennedy last Saturday on a mighty Saturn 5 rocket.

The astronauts rolled up a staggering list of "firsts" for both space and mankind—first men to leave earth's gravita-

November Sees Living Cost Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living costs rose another four-tenths of 1 per cent last month, continuing the sharpest price spiral since 1951, the government reported today.

Although grocery prices dropped five-tenths of 1 per cent in November, sharp increases for housing, clothing, transportation and medical care pushed the Labor Department's consumer price index up to 123.4.

The index figure means it cost $12.34 in November for every $10 worth of typical family purchases in the 1957-59 base period.

The price index rose 4.8 per cent during the first 11 months of 1968 and Asst. Commissioner Arnold Chase of the Bureau of Labor Statistics said the 1968 rise will probably wind up at about that level.

This would be the largest increase in consumer prices since the 5.9 increase in 1951 during the Korean war.

Gross weekly earnings of 45 million rank and file workers dropped from $110.38 to $109.21 in November because of a decline in the average workweek and price increases clipped another 1.5 per cent from the purchasing power of the average paycheck.

Compared with November 1967, purchasing power was down five-tenths of 1 per cent for the average worker with three dependents, the bureau said.

"That is the first time in 1968 the real spendible earnings dipped below year-ago levels," the bureau added.

A major factor in the November living costs increase was a boost of seven-tenths of 1 per cent in housing costs. Clothing was up six-tenths, transportation and medical care up five-tenths each and recreation costs up four-tenths.

The wholesale price index, reflecting the cost of wholesale food and industrial raw materials, rose five-tenths of 1 per cent last month to 109.6. Preliminary December figures indicate another rise of two-tenths this month.

The cost of a broad range of consumer services rose six-tenths of one per cent in November, the bureau said.

"Costs of owning and maintaining a home claimed eight-tenths of 1 per cent in November eraged three-tenths of one per cent higher as widespread, in some cases unusually large, increases were posted," it added.

Biggest increases for clothing were for men's and boy's wool winter clothing. Over-all retail clothing prices rose 6.5 per cent during the year.

Furniture prices rose seven-tenths of 1 per cent in November and were nearly 6 per cent above a year ago, the report said.

New car prices rose 1 per cent, about usual for the month, and higher gasoline and oil prices added to the rise in transportation costs.

Food prices were down largely because of declines for eggs, pork and poultry. The over-all drop in grocery prices was about the usual seasonal decline, the bureau said.

Among wholesale industrial raw materials, the sharpest increases were for lumber and plywood, up 2.5 per cent in November and about 5 per cent more in December adding to an increase totaling nearly 20 per cent in the last year.

About 142,000 workers with wage-escalator clauses in their labor contracts will receive pay increases based on the rise in the government's consumer price index. These will range up to eight cents an hour based on varying periods.

Prayers Said By Families For Crewmen

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — For the families of the Apollo 8 astronauts the 147-hour ordeal of the space ship's fantastic round trip to the moon ended as it began: on a religious note.

And the wives of Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., and Air Force Mja. William A. Anders got a telephone call from President Johnson minutes after word that the space craft and its intrepid crew had splashed down safely.

The President told the wives, in a conference call, that the prayers of the whole country had contributed to the success of the flight. He said he expected to see the astronauts and their wives soon.

"Thank you, Mr. President," said Mrs. Borman. "I think it is a well-deserved victory. Thank you for your thoughtfulness. Thank you very much."

Mrs. Lovell began her day with a private communion at St. John's Episcopal Church.

And a mass was recited in the living room of the Anders home — just as it was on launch last Saturday.

Mrs. Frank Borman had the comfort of the Rev. James C. Buckner from St. Christopher's Episcopal Church in League City, Tex., just as on Saturday.

There was champagne in the ice box at all three homes, and friends—especially wives of other astronauts—arrived early with cakes.

There was one family member, however, who got out of bed only briefly for the festivities. Four-year-old Eric Anders became ill during the night and had 102-degree temperature. Mary O'Neill, a nurse who is a family friend, said it was nothing serious—just a head cold.

Red Chinese Nuclear Test Is Detected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist China detonated early today a nuclear device with a yield of about three megatons or three million tons of TNT, the Atomic Energy Commission announced.

The AEC said the atomspheric test, the eighth detected by the United States, occurred in the Lop Nor area about 2:30 a.m. Est.

The last nuclear blast detected from China occurred Christmas Eve 1967. It was the seventh since 1964 and was equal in force to about 20,000 tons of TNT, the AEC said then.

The blast today contained about the same amount of force as the sixth Chinese test on June 17, 1967, the AEC reported.

The Lop Nor area is the same region in which China detonated its seventh nuclear device. It is in the western desert in Sinkiang province about 450 miles from the Soviet border.

The United States is still awaiting the first Chinese long-range missile test which is more than a year overdue. In anticipation of the Chinese developing a force of intercontinental missiles with nuclear warheads by the mid-1970s, the United States has started on the Sentinel anti-missile defense system.

Pueblo Crewmen Applaud Apollo

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The 82 crewmen of the USS Pueblo freed from North Korean captivity congratulated the Apollo 8 astronauts today on their "tremendous achievements ... and triumphant return."

The congratulations came in a message to Apollo 8 families, who earlier this week wired the Pueblo crew that "your reunion has brought great joy into our hearts."

The telegram to the astronauts said:

"Although we 82 tried to monopolize the headlines, you three were just too much. We gladly relinquish the limelight."

28-Mile Hoop In Heavens Meant Life Or Death For Astronauts

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—An imaginary hoop 28 miles in diameter hangs at 400,000 feet over the Pacific Ocean, about 1,150 miles due west of the Hawaiian islands.

Those 28 miles today were the most important distance figure for the Apollo 8 astronauts—Frank Borman, James Lovell and William Anders—to worry about.

That was the "hole in the sky" through which the spacecraft had pass to make the most demanding and potentially dangerous atmospheric re-entry ever faced by astronauts.

A mere one degree variation either side of the correct path posed the threat of death for the three men—either by fire, if they came into the atmosphere too sharply, or by suffocation, if they reentered at too shallow an angle.

LONG AIM

The astronauts aimed the spacecraft from almost a quarter-million miles away, and their aim—while the earth was merely a white, blue and brown ball in space—was so carefully taken they needed only one small course correction on the way back from the moon.

Lt. Gen. Samuel Phillips, head of the Apollo program, described why the spacecraft had to hit the hoop with such accuracy.

"The (re-entry) corridor is set on the upper limit by the skip-out boundary, and if we miss the corridor on the high side and in fact skip out, then it's a spacecraft and crew loss kind of situation," he said prior to the mission.

SKIPPING IN SPACE

In this case, the spacecraft would dip briefly into the edge of the air, and then, just as a flat stone strikes the surface of a pond and leaps back into the air, "skip" back into space and orbit.

Since the spacecraft separates from the service module containing many of the life support systems as well as the big rocket engine that kicked them into and out of orbit around the moon, they would run out of air and electricity before they orbited close enough to the earth to try coming down again.

"The lower limit of the corridor is set by the high deceleration limit that the spacecraft would be subjected to if it came in too steeply...the deceleration would exceed 20 g's (20 times the force of gravity)," Phillips said.

"The heating rates would be in excess of those for which the spacecraft was designed, and there would be a structural breakup and loss of the spacecraft and crew."

In the latter case the end would come quickly.

But two unmanned apollo flights have proved the heat shield covering the moonship and the computer-guided entry monitor system, showing these can indeed bring astronauts home from the moon safely.

The re-entry path was planned to subject the astronauts to up to six g's.

Fiery Roller-Coaster Ride Ends Right On Sea Target

ABOARD THE USS YORKTOWN (AP) — Apollo 8, fresh from the moon, splashed down in the dark Pacific Ocean today within four miles of this target ship — a stunning display of accuracy after a tough, hot, roller-coaster re-entry.

It was one of the most accurate landings in the history of the manned space flight program. The spaceship was sighted in the water—its bright light flashing—within seconds of splashdown at 7:50 a.m. (PST).

Gemini 9 chalked up the most accurate landing, hitting within 300 yards of its target point. Gemini 11 was the closest splashdown to the recovery carrier—two miles.

But the Apollo 8—performing a difficult "bounce" re-entry full of potential dangers—landed at night after the hottest and fastest re-entry yet. It plunked down within 6,000 yards of this aircraft carrier.

So close was the splashdown that recovery helicopters were hovering over the spaceship within minutes, and one recovery helicopter illuminated the sea around the spaceship almost immediately.

Swimmers had to wait for the first glint of morning light—but even then the frogmen were in the water around the bobbing spaceship 45 minutes after splashdown.

Mission Control in Houston said it had been advised by recovery forces that "a sonar technician from Columbia, S.C. named Chester Coggin" would be first in the water.

The other swimmers to follow Coggin were Lt. (j.g.) Richard Flanagan of Oklahoma City and Donald L. Schwab of Imperial Beach.

They hovered 50 feet above the bobbing capsule in the Pacific Ocean in a helicopter piloted by Cmdr. Donald S. Jones of Madison, Wis.

PHONY ROLL CALL

Jail Inmate Escapes From Here To There

Answering "here" to someone else's name seemed like a good way to get out of the "drunk tank" at the Marin County Jail early Christmas morning.

James Russell Shannon, 30, of San Francisco, now faces felony charges, however, for his unusual way of bailing himself out of jail.

Sheriff's officers said Shannon was booked into jail Christmas Eve for investigation of being drunk. About 2 a.m. on Wednesday a bail bondsman arrived to free another man in the drunk tank, Richard Allen Just, 29, of Santa Rosa.

When Just's name was called out, Shannon responded in place of the sleeping Just.

About two hours later Just awakened, identified himself and the mistake was discovered.

Officers, who learned that Shannon had gone to Marin General Hospital for treatment for alcoholism, arrested him again.

This time Shannon's bail was set at $1,000. He was to enter a plea today in Marin Municipal Court on the felony charge of attempted escape.

Cosmonauts Praise Crew

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten Soviet cosmonauts sent congratulations to the Apollo 8 astronauts today for "another milestone in scientific and technical progress."

Their telegram, made available here by the Soviet news agency Novosti, also relayed congratulations to "American scientists and all the American people on your successful flight."

Signing the telegram were cosmonauts Gherman Titov, Andrian Nikolaev, Pavel Popovich, Valery Bykovsky, Valentina Nikolaeva-Tereshkova, Boris Egorov, Konstantin Feoktistov, Pavel Belayev, Alexei Leonov and Georgy Beregovoi.

Health Of Crew Concerns Probers

LT. EDWARD MURPHY
Misleads captors

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Navy is conducting intensive questioning of the freed crewmen of the USS Pueblo after examining doctors reported finding no serious defects, other than malnutrition.

A team of more than 100 intelligence specialists began talking with crewmen yesterday afternoon in what will become one of the most exhaustive investigations of a loss of a ship in Navy history, officials said.

The investigators want to know precisely how much sensitive electronic equipment may have been left intact when the North Koreans took control of the intelligence vessel.

MANY QUESTIONS

The circumstances of the Jan. 23 capture and treatment of the Americans also concern the questioners in great degree.

The word on the health of the 82 crewmen, returned to the United States last Tuesday after 11 months captivity in North Korea, came in a news conference yesterday from Rear Adm. Horace D. Warden, commanding officer of the U.S. Naval Hospital here.

"All of them show effects of malnutrition . . . instability in balance . . . and no doubt there are other deficiencies which we have not yet had time to study in depth," Warden said. Until now, he said, there have been no serious defects noted.

MISTREATMENT

He said all crewmen examined had been physically mistreated. There were no signs of tuberculosis, he said.

Warden said the men also are undergoing psychological testing since "all persons who have undergone an ordeal such as these men are subject to psychological pressures and changes. We must evaluate it."

One of the men to undergo some of the most intensive debriefing will be the ship's executive officer, Lt. Edward R. Murphy Jr., who was navigator on the bridge when the Pueblo was captured.

Murphy, looking more rested than at his first stateside news conference Tuesday, told newsmen he deliberately misled his North Korean captors when they forced him to draw charts that gave the Pueblo's position inside North Korean waters at the time of the capture.

"I wanted to make sure there were enough inaccuracies in what I was saying to be identified," Murphy said.

He said the North Korean officer "who had to prove the whole farce" had no navigational experience and allowed obvious errors to pass.

OTHER 'ERRORS'

The 31-year-old lieutenant from San Diego said the errors included positions that would have required a speed of 2,500 knots to maintain, and another position 32 miles inland. He said he planned the inaccuracies to show to the world that the evidence was doctored by the North Koreans.

"There is absolutely no question in my mind and the minds of the crew or of the captain that during no time did we intrude into the territorial waters of North Korea. At absolutely no time," Murphy said. "We never got anywhere near their territorial waters."

Murphy was not allowed to talk in detail about the actual capture of the ship. Navy officials said that only the ship's skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, could give those details. Bucher, who is ill, was not present.

At the same news conference, a Navy spokesman presented an exhaustive study which he said convinced the Navy that the Pueblo was no closer than 16 nautical miles from the nearest North Korean land when it was taken.

Police Led To Hidden Girl's Body

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A fugitive from a Missouri mental hospital has been charged with murder after leading police to the frozen body of 10-year-old Pamela Powers, missing since Christmas Eve.

A self-styled minister who identified himself as Anthony Erthell Williams, 24, a Negro, wordlessly directed detectives to Pamela's half-clothed body, wedged between a culvert and the side of a snow-covered 15-foot embankment, yesterday.

Police waited results of an autopsy to determine how the blonde, blue-eyed fourth-grader died and how long she had been in the spot near Mitchellville, 10 miles east of Des Moines on Interstate 80.

Des Moines Police Chief Wendell Nichols said Williams agreed to disclose the place to detective Capt. Cleatus Leaming and Lt. Wallace Nelson during the automobile trip from Davenport, Iowa, where Williams had turned himself in yesterday morning.

After his arraignment on an open charge of murder under heavy guard at the Des Moines police station yesterday, Williams spoke only to his lawyer, Henry T. McKnight of Des Moines.

Nichols said officers did not press Williams for details of the Christmas Eve abduction or slaying under terms of an agreement with McKnight on Williams' surrender.

Officers who accompanied Williams and the two detectives to the girl's body said Williams showed no signs of emotion.

"He was almost casual and not downcast," said one.

JOHN HIGGINS
How he looks now

'SLENDERELLA'

Crewman Sheds About 70 Pounds

SAN DIEGO (AP)—The low-fat diet of his North Korean captors helped John Higgins shed unwanted weight—about 70 pounds.

Behind the walls that held America's USS Pueblo crewmen, his mates tried to joke in their misery by calling Higgins "Slenderella."

The 6-foot-5 sailor from St. Joseph, Mo., still was no 97-pound weakling. He weighed 280 pounds when the U.S. intelligence ship was seized last Jan. 23. When he reached the 121st evacuation hospital in Ascom City, South Korea, last Sundy with the other 81 survivors, Higgins weighed 210.

There, he chowed down on such American nonsolids as chicken noodle soup, coffee, milk and juices. In five days he gained five pounds.

"I'd like to eat every kind of food there is," he said.

Most of his fellow captives lost 20 to 40 pounds in the compound at Pyongang, North Korea. Their diet consisted of the food of the season—"during winter we had turnips a lot. In the summer we had some kind of spinach plant and we had a lot of cabbage."

Admiral Holding Off Pueblo Prejudgment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chief of naval operations, says "I'm not going to prejudge" whether the officers and men of the U.S. intelligence-gathering ship Pueblo conducted themselves properly while held captive by North Korea.

At least two admirals have referred publicly to Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, the Pueblo's skipper, and the other 81 surviving crew members as heroes.

"Some people have expressed personal opinions," Moorer acknowledged when asked about this in an interview. He indicated he was not criticizing them.

The Navy's top admiral insisted expression of personal opinions by high ranking officers will not impair a Navy court of inquiry's ability to reach an objective judgment.

Moorer said "I am confident" the Pueblo did not enter North Korea's claimed territorial waters.

If the ship had done so, Bucher would have been violating his sailing orders to stay at least 13 miles clear of North Korean territory.

A Navy court of inquiry at San Diego under Vice Adm. H.G. Bowen probably will open proceedings in two weeks after the recuperating crew has had some leave.

Pacific Fleet commander Adm. John G. Hyland, who will review the findings of the court, told the Pueblo's crewmen earlier this week that "you are regarded as a group of young heroes."

Rear Adm. Edwin M. Rosenberg has spoken of Bucher as "a hero among heroes."

Among other things, the court will consider whether the crew men lived up to the Code of conduct which specifies how American military men shall handle themselves when prisoners of a hostile nation.

A key section of the code states that:

"When questioned, should I become a prioner of war, I am bound to give only name, rank, service number, and date of birth. I will evade answering further questions to the utmost of my ability. I will make no oral or written statements disloyal to my country and its allies or harmful to their cause."

This code was drawn up in 1955 following instances in the Korean war in which Americans signed statements critical of their country while imprisoned in North Korea.

There were several occasions when the North Koreans released film and tape recordings of Pueblo crewmen allegedly confessing to espionage and aggression.

In one such film, Bucher was recorded as admitting the Pueblo was well within the North Korean territorial sea limits.

Also, relatives said they had received letters from members of the crew in which they wrote of their guilt. However, many of the relatives said the language in the letters was stilted, unnatural and strained.

In a news conference after being freed, Bucher told newsmen he had surrendered the Pueblo to avoid useless bloodshed. He also said the alleged confessions were made to "save some people from some very serious misfortunes."

Also under discussion will be plans for joint hearings with the state Parks and Recreation Commission and the state Fish and Game Commission. The session will begin at 10 a.m. in the State Resources Building.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Seeking Course

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Jewish group has petitioned the National Association of Temple Educators to initiate a course dealing with the history of their people in Eastern Europe.

David Klonoff of Daly City, acting chairman of the student ad hoc committee for education of Soviet Jewry, presented the petition Thursday to delegates at the national convention of the association.

The request, which is expected to be acted upon this week, urged the association to create a course on Soviet Jewry in religious schools of the nation. The petition also asked that such a course be given for eight-week periods in the ninth and tenth grades of schools belonging to the association.

Crowns To Go

NEW DELHI (UPI)—The Indian government will in the next six weeks remove all British royal crown emblems on government buildings which are a holdover from empire days, the government said yesterday and be replaced by "suitable national emblems" of India.

Woman, Horse Die

MERCED (AP) — Mrs. Josephine Simmons, 46, of Merced, and the horse she was leading were killed yesterday when they were struck by a car along California 59 north of Merced.

Snow Dig Out

REDDING (UPI) — Sunny skies provided an opportunity yesterday for Redding's 16,000 residents to dig out from under snow dumped by the worst storm to hit northern California this season.

Damage caused by the 18 inches of snow was estimated at $3.2 million by the Shasta County Civil Defense Department.

The roofs of at least 10 buildings caved in under the load of snow in Redding and accounted for $2 million of the damage total.

Hundreds of homes were without electricity for nearly five days of the storm.

A Lautrec Stolen

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese police reported today an oil painting by Toulouse-Lautrec called "Marcello" has been stolen from the National Modern Art Museum in Kyodo, which was showing it on loan from France. Its value was estimated at about $100,000.

A Beach Outing

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) —President-elect Richard Nixon, back at his Key Biscayne hideaway after a flying visit to a private island in the Bahamas, planned another day of rest before a conference tomorrow with foreign policy advisers.

Nixon, his wife, and newlyweds David and Julie Eisenhower flew by helicopter yesterday to Grand Cay at the tip of the Bahama chain. They spent the day there, swimming and walking the beaches. C. G. Rebozo, Nixon's friend and next-door neighbor, accompanied the family.

The party returned by Coast Guard helicopter at dusk.

Denies Jet Attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The government denied today a charge by an Israeli cabinet member that the Lebanese regime was to blame for the attack on the El Al jetliner by two Arab terrorists yesterday in Greece.

The Israeli charge was made by Transport Minister Moshe Carmel.

A statement carried by Lebanon's official news agency said the government here considers the charge unfounded and without basis.

Apollo 8 Success Hastens Date For Lunar Landing Experiment

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 8's trail-blazing flight around the moon has given space planners a firm foothold to try for a moon landing in the next few months—maybe April or May.

One major piece of Apollo hardware still remains to be qualified, the lunar module spacecraft that will taxi future astronauts from a three-man Apollo craft in lunar orbit to the moon's surface.

That four-legged lunar lander is to get its first manned space test about Feb. 20 during America's next three-man mission, Apollo 9.

If the lunar module performs perfectly in earth orbit on Apollo 9, astronauts conceivably could land on the moon on the following flight, Apollo 10, in April or May.

Present plans for Apollo 10—to be flown by a three-man crew headed by veteran astronaut Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford—call for the pilots to fly a moon orbit mission in which the lunar module separates from a three-man Apollo spaceship and approaches within 10 miles of the surface, but does not land.

"Our present plans are to not commit Apollo 10 for a landing," said Air Force Lt. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, Apollo program director. However, "We might want to exercise a more ambitious option," he noted, as was done when the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) decided to send Apollo 8 around the moon.

The first lunar landing mission is now expected by Apollo 11, next May or June. Astronauts have not yet been assigned for that flight.

The particular lunar module assigned to Apollo 10 does not have fuel tanks with enough capacity and weighs too much for a lunar landing. So if a decision is made to fly the Apollo 10 crew to the moon's surface, another lunar module would have to be assigned to the mission, Phillips pointed out.

Television will continue to be an important factor in the space flights.

Apollo 9 in February may include a live telecast of astronaut Russell L. Schweickart walking in space from the lunar module back to the three-man Apollo craft. With him in Apollo 9 will be Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt and Lt. Col David R. Scott.

And television cameras will also be aboard on the following missions—including the lunar landing itself.

Chemist Calls U.S. World's Top Polluter

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The United States apparently is the world's worst polluter of the planet's atmosphere and oceans with pollutants ranging from pesticide residues to radioactive fallout from past nuclear tests, a scientist said today.

Dr. Edward D. Goldberg, a chemist of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, La Jolla, Calif., said in a report to the 135th meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science:

"The United States, in comparison with the rest of the world, appears to be responsible for around one-third to one-half of many of the contaminants introduced into the atmosphere or oceans."

Speaking especially of the growing "chemical invasion of the oceans," with industrial and other pollutants released by the United States and many other nations, Goldberg indicated in his prepared remarks that conceivably this might have detrimental effects on certain species of sea-life—and even backfire on man by contaminating some of the food he gets from the sea.

He urged increased research to determine whether such dangers exist, and added:

"The ability to predict undesirable results along these lines may lead to necessary and protective public policies concerning such encroachments."

He said the oceanic levels of new-type pesticides, such as DDT, have risen since their introduction following World War II to such values "that the body burdens of such deep-living fish as the tuna are similar to those of terrestrial organisms, including man."

"Radioactive species from the detonation of nuclear devices and missions from nuclear reactors are found at all levels in all oceans," he said.

At the same meeting, researcher Reid A. Bryson of the University Wisconsin said the climate of the world has shown a slight cooling trend since 1940 and that this appears to be directly related to the increased smoke and dust pollution of the atmosphere by mankind's industrial and other pursuits.

And its conceivable, he added, that if such pollution remains unchecked, profound effects on world climate could result.

Apollo Flight Amazes Cousin

PRAGUE (AP) — A Czech cousin of astronaut James Lovell said today he plans to cable congratulations to his famous relative as soon as Apollo 8 gets back from the moon.

Dr. Frantisek Masek, head physician at the children's hospital in Pilsen told the newspaper Svobody Slova: "The whole family is sitting at the TV screen, and we are listening to the reports of this amazing flight. We will be sending a telegram of congratulations as soon as he lands."

Lovell's mother, Blanka Masek, was one of six members of the family who emigrated from a small village near Pilsen to America "several dozen years ago," the paper said.

Hallway Spat Delays Marijuana Sentencing

Sentencing of a convicted marijuana seller was continued today in Marin Superior Court following a heated argument over courthouse hallway comments by a narcotics agent.

Scheduled for sentencing on his Nov. 20 conviction for selling over two pounds of marijuana Feb. 6 was Fred Mark Ambrozic, 30, of no fixed address.

Jesse W. Johnson, deputy probation officer, said in his report to Judge Joseph G. Wilson that the agent, Alfred Texeira of the Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau, told him in a hallway following Ambrozic's arrest that Ambrozic had used several minors to make marijuana sales.

Judge Wilson noted that no such testimony was made during the trial and said he considered such a charge as "critical enough" to postpone sentencing until the agent can testify on the matter.

He said the issue may mean the difference between giving Ambrozic only a year in county jail, or sending him to state prison.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry Herman asked the prison term, calling Ambrozic a "professional" seller of marijuana. He cited Ambrozic as "the ideal case" of "grand scale operations" in narcotics.

"We must make it apparent to everybody in Marin County that we're not going to tolerate this traffic in marijuana," said Herman. "It's time we made people . . . realize that Marin County is not a Mecca for dope peddling."

Johnson told Judge Wilson that Ambrozic had boasted to him of making $4,000 in a few days by selling marijuana in the Squaw Valley area.

The defendant responded, "That's a flat lie." He said he made the money at odd jobs in Squaw Valley and denied ever making such comments to Johnson. He also denied having used minors in any sales.

In view of the accusations and denials, Judge Wilson said the continued hearing will be held when Texeira is available for further testimony.

APOLLO

tional field, first men to orbit the moon, fastest and farthest from Earth men have ever traveled.

The astronauts were expected to remain aboard the Yorktown tonight and fly to Hawaii tomorrow. They are due home at Houston early Sunday.

Borman, Lovell and Anders brought back hundreds of photographs that may yield significantly new scientific data to the understanding of the celestial sphere that has awed man since his beginning.

Apollo 8's course was so accurate that a final steering correction planned earlier today was canceled.

When told they were one minute away from entering the atmosphere they had missed for six days, all that was heard from Borman was a terse "Roger."

Quickly the force of gravity built up to 6.8 times that felt by man on Earth, then it began easing off. About the same time, Apollo 8 passed through the hottest part of its re-entry.

"A real fireball," came the comment from one of the astronauts.

State Financial Picture Brighter

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's General Fund revenue was about $306 million higher between July 1 and Nov. 30, 1968, than in the same period one year ago, Controller Houston I. Flournoy said today.

But Flournoy reported that receipts for the first five months of fiscal 1968-69 still were about $138 million below expenditures. The state normally borrows from other funds to meet General Fund deficits.

But this year's borrowing is about $30 million, compared to $163.5 million at the end of November, 1967, Flournoy said. He said the increased revenue this year was a result of new taxes enacted in 1967.

Federal Probe In Fatal Crash

Representatives of the Federal Aviation Agency today were investigating the cause of the crash of the small plane at Gnoss Field in Novato yesterday in which two men were killed.

A spokesman for Marin Aviation at the airport said that federal officials were at the airport today.

Stephen McCaffrey, 23, of Santa Rosa, an instructor for Marin Aviation, and his pupil, William J. Filkorn Jr., 31, of Mill Valley, died in the accident.

It was the first fatal crash at Gnoss Field since opening of the airport in 1959.

Busy Year Seen For Tax Rulings

CHICAGO (AP) — This could be the most prolific revenue ruling year in the history of the Internal Revenue Service.

Commerce Clearing House, in a study, said IRS has already published some 500 revenue rulings, and the projection by year's end could exceed 750.

The IRS annually issues thousands of private letter rulings to individual taxpayers.

One reason for the increase in rulings is that the 1954 code has revamped the nation's tax laws. Also new rulings replace or eliminate old obsolete rulings as part of the agency's house-cleaning program.

Prince Carlos' Family Booted

MADRID (AP) — The family of Prince Carlos Hugo of Bourbon-Farma, the Carlist pretender to the Spanish throne, has been ordered out of Spain, a family spokesman said last night.

Gen. Francisco Franco's government expelled the prince Dec. 20 after he made a speech critical of the government and Franco's favorite for the throne, Prince Juan Carlos of Bourbon.

The family spokesman said Carlos Hugo's father and mother, Prince Xavier and Princess Magdalena, and his two sisters, Princess Maria Teresa and Princess Maria de las Nievas, were returning to their home in Paris.

Promotion Seen Only For Anders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only one of the three Apollo astronauts who returned today from a voyage around the moon probably will get a spot military promotion.

The other two were upgraded after previous space trips and have reached the upper limit of such promotions.

Air Force Maj. William A. Anders is expected to be raised to lieutenant colonel.

Air Force Col. Frank Borman and Navy Capt. James Lovell will stay at their present rank, Pentagon officials said.

New Supervisors Due Oath Jan. 7

Three new members of the Marin County Board of Supervisors will be sworn in on Jan. 7, the first regular meeting date of 1969.

County Clerk George H. Gnoss said he plans to swear in supervisors-elect Peter R. Arrigoni, Louis H. Baar, and Michael Wornum in the supervisors chambers at the Civic Center. The three will then join Supervisors William A. Gnoss and John F. McInnis for the year's first session.

Arrigoni will replace Ernest N. Kettenhofen of the Second District. Baar will take over the Fourth District post from Thomas T. Storer, and Wornum will succeed Peter H. Behr of the Third District.

Chamber Elects New Directors

Four new directors of the Greater San Rafael Chamber of Commerce have been elected to three-year terms by the chamber membership.

They are Paul Ciampi of Ciampi Distributor Co., Sidney Dorn of Macy's, Ken Reichard of the Photo Shop, and James Wieder of Minto & Wilkie Insurance Agency.

Benjamin Farnham, Carlos Gonzales, Richard Martz and David Kahler were the defeated candidates.

The new board will meet on Jan. 8 at the Elks Club to elect a new president, vice president and treasurer.

The election results were announced by Jean Bushing, Sue Croke and Andrew B. Busey, the chamber's election committee, after counting of the ballots today.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Acts Implied In Contracts

Mrs. Johnson had made a contract to lease an apartment. One day she leaned against a balcony railing. It gave way and she fell and hurt herself badly. She sued the landlord for negligence.

In most leases the tenant — not the landlord — has the legal duty to keep a place in repair. Although the law of California by statute puts the duty of repair on the landlord if the premisies are for human habitation, the parties can agree otherwise.

Even when the place needs repair and the landlord keeps it in repair, the tenant usually has to report to the landlord any work that needs to be done.

The lease said that Mrs. Johnson had to keep the place in repair, and report to the landlord any needed repair work. This she had failed to do.

Ordinarily this fact would have ended the lawsuit. But another factor entered. A county ordinance said handrails and balconies could be only so high, and had to be anchored solidly.

In this case, the court agreed that the county laws and building codes were, in effect, unwritten parts of Mrs. Johnson's lease. Where the lease contract and the laws differed, the laws would prevail anyhow. So she had a case against the landlord after all.

Building codes and county safety laws aim to safeguard life and property. A landlord's neglect in obeying these laws, as a rule, can make him liable for any injuries that others suffer as a result.

Thus, many state and local rules control. Whether the agreement says so or not, these laws often become an unwritten part of a contract.

The California Division of Industrial Safety puts out safety regulations; and tenants, business callers, or workers have a right to rely upon the property owner to obey them. The state housing laws call for protection of health and safety in hotels, apartments, and dwellings. In certain cases this law may well be part of leases for such places.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

Role Of White Rat Now Is Challenged

By SCIENCE SERVICE

WASHINGTON — When the House of Hanover sailed from Germany to England in 1714, the ship transported rats as well as kings. The rats, pugnacious east Asian natives dubbed Norway rats or Rattus norvegicus, had quickly become the dominant strain in Europe, displacing the common black rat which is probably the strain the Pied Piper led out of Hamelin 430 years earlier.

By 1822, when rat baiting was a popular sport in England and France, albino forms of the brown norvegicus appeared and were often rescued from the baiting pits by collectors and breeders.

Through the precise origin of these white rats is unknown, records show they were being used experimentally in Paris by 1856, thus beginning their climb to supremacy in the scientific world.

By the early 1900's psychologist John B. Watson was running white rats through mazes, building the theories of behavior and learning that held dominion over psychology for 40 years, and the rat's position in research was, and virtually still is, assured.

Only now is the white rat's role as chief guinea pig for psychology being challenged, not directly by psychologists but by psychologists with a strong background in biology.

Dr. Robert E. Lockard of the University of Washington in Seattle contends that the white rat, somewhat randomly selected for learning studies in the first place, has become so transformed by generations of captivity that it is not only not a human being, as common extrapolations from animal studies might suggest, but is not even a very good rat. It is certainly unlike the wild Norway from which it sprung. The wild animal is pugnacious, the domestic mild; the wild is afraid of man, the laboratory breed is not. The white rat is 20 per cent fatter than its now distant cousin, but its brain, thyroid and adrenal glands weigh less.

"It is possible," Dr. Lockard suggests, "that the white rat is an anomalous freak. We don't know how it has degenerated genetically. Research with it is risky, particularly psychological research."

Animals, Dr. Lockard observes, are the result of certain combinations of genes from the gene pool of the population. Differences among species exist because gene pools differ. In the same way, strains of the same species differ because they do not share the same pool, even though some genes may be held in common. At this point, he contends, white rats have very little in common genetically with wild Norway and very little in common with any other animal. "They are, in fact, man-made animals that never existed before."

And that is critical, even to behavior studies.

"Theoretically every gene may contribute to some degree of behavioral variance," says Dr. John L. Fuller, a behavioral geneticist at the Jackson Laboratories in Bar Harbor, Maine. Just as certain genes are associated with fur color or bone structure, other genes can be associated with behavior and learning. If an animal loses the need to behave or learn in certain ways, within a few generations the genes originally responsible for that behavior could be weakened or lost.

Psychologists studying learning in white rats, Dr. Lockard declares, ignore the genetic determinants involved, favoring the belief that learning differences are due to "emotional factors, mere physical differences, or sometimes to parameters or constants in equations." In addition, he charges them with seeing learning as a single process, a completely general mechanism that operates roughly the same way in one species as in another. Learning should be viewed, he says, as a complex of processes related to the animals' adaptive needs.

Youths Booked In Drug Probe

Three Novato youths, two 15 and one 16, have been cited to the sheriff's juvenile bureau for alleged possession of marijuana.

Deputies said the trio was found parked on Crest Road, Black Point, about 1 p.m. Monday.

Sheriff's officers found a brown paper bag containing a small quantity of marijuana in the car, officers said. They said a pipe used for smoking narcotics was also in the vehicle.

Troupe Member To Read On Campus

Joseph Lomuto, a member of the San Francisco Mime Troupe, will give a "performance of poetry" at 3 p.m. Jan. 7 at the Sonoma State College student lounge.

Lomuto performed at the college last year and has since been on a national tour of college campuses and coffee houses. His program is part of the college poetry series.

Motorist Sought In Cash Theft

Sheriff's officers today sought a motorist for questioning in the theft of about $200 from a cash box at Julian's Strawberry service station, 798 Redwood Highway, Strawberry.

Roy E. Saunders, station employee, told deputies a tall Negro with long bushy hair drove up about 2:25 p.m. Wednesday, and entered the office. Saunders said he went outside to service another car and that the money was missing upon his return.

He said when he began questioning the man, the man ran outside to his car and drove away.

The swimmers attaching flotation collars to the Apollo 8 space capsule, were unable to make a simple telephone connection work.

But their little hand radios got through fine, to the astronauts three feet away.

Homeowner Club Group Elects

Arnold Baptiste, representing the Loma Verde Homeowners Association, last night was elected president of the North Marin Federation, an organization of homeowners' group.

Henry Torget of the Black Point Improvement Club was elected vice president and James A. Sullivan of the Marin Country Club Homeowners Association was named secretary-treasurer. Howard Slade of the Poplar Terrace Association and John C. Schoonover of the Gnoss Estates Association were named to work with the officers as a board of directors, according to Mrs. Gilbert Lilly, temporary recording secretary.

The officers will be installed at 8 p.m. Jan. 23 at the Marion School multipurpose room.

Palace Hotel Will Be Saved

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—San Francisco's Sheraton-Palace Hotel, a historical landmark, will not be torn down.

Ernest Henderson III, president of Sheraton-Palace chain, yesterday issued a denial of rumors the structure would be razed. The rumors apparently resulted from discussions with city officials over the possibility of building a new skyscraper hotel.

"Sheraton has been considering for many years the possibility of a second hotel for San Francisco," Henderson said.

Hayakawa Is More Hopeful Now Of Peaceful Reopening Of State

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—S. I. Hayakawa, acting president of San Francisco State College, says it appears now that his campus might be able to reopen peacefully Jan. 6.

But he hinted at a news conference yesterday he is ready to rely again on "massive police forces" if they are required to quell disturbances on the 18,000-student campus.

He expressed the hope and the warning at the same time he announced allocation of $300,000 in new funds to stave off a possible faculty crisis next spring.

Without the money, word of which came from state college Chancellor Glenn Dumke's office, 120 faculty positions might have had to be slashed.

Hayakawa said it was a kind of "Christmas present" from Dumke's office.

(In Marin tonight, a rally was scheduled at 8 p.m. in Mill Valley City Hall to discuss strike issues. Strike leaders and San Francisco State faculty members were to speak at the rally, sponsored by the San Francisco State Support Committee of Marin.)

Hayakawa said his optimism for a peaceful campus reopening following the Christmas vacation stems from communications with the Black Students Union and the Third World Liberation Front, two militant student groups.

He did not elaborate.

Hayakawa said the college is ready to establish a black studies department in February, and that Negro professor Nathan Hare will head it.

The department is the college's first system for offering a four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree in black studies.

"It would appear now," Hayakawa said, "that any further expenditure of energy in striking for increased minority opportunities is clearly self-defeating."

Today in San Francisco, representatives of higher education's "silent majority" were to gather for an organizational meeting to solidify their efforts to prevent further campus disruptions around the state.

Hayakawa said representatives from 20 campus units of the fledgling Committee for Academic Environment would meet through tomorrow in planning sessions at San Francisco's Hilton Hotel.

The committee became prominent during two weeks of San Francisco State violence when members passed out blue armbands, symbols of opposition to student disturbances and strikes.

Leary, Wife, Son Booked On Marijuana

LAGUNA BEACH (AP) — Dr. Timothy Leary, a leading proponent of the mind-bending drug LSD, was arrested with his wife and teen-age son last night on marijuana possession charges.

Police Sgt. Wendell Faulk said a patrolman discovered marijuana in their car when he cited Leary for stopping it in the middle of the street.

Leary, 48, told the Associated Press the arrests were part of a continuing "police provocation and harassment."

Leary was booked on suspicion of possession. His wife, Rosemary, 34, and son, John, 19, were booked on suspicion of possession with intent to sell. Faulk said Leary and his wife were released on $2,500 bail each.

But he said the son was being held "because of his condition." Faulk refused to elaborate.

Faulk would not say how much marijuana was found other than "an amount sufficient to warrant the intent charges."

The Learys have lived in a beachfront cottage here since they were married in November 1967.

After his release, Leary said in a telephone interview, "This is the 23rd time in 13 months that my family and I have been stopped and searched in a car and, for much of this time, our house has been under police surveillance."

He said his car had been "legally parked in front of the house of one of John's friends. We'd been there three or four minutes, saying goodbye to John before dropping him off, when the policeman showed up."

Czarist Fortune Claimant Weds

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Anna Anderson, 67, who claims to be Russia's long-lost Grand Duchess Anastasia, was married Monday to a 49-year-old former history professor at the University of Virginia.

The bridegroom is Dr. John E. Manahan, who has been active for a decade in her efforts to prove herself the youngest daughter of Czar Nicholas II and only survivor of the Russian royal family. He met Mrs. Anderson last July.

Most historical sources say the czar and all his family were assassinated by the Bolsheviks in 1918. Mrs. Anderson, however, says she was only wounded by the firing squad and was smuggled into Romania by a young Russian soldier named Anderson, whom she later married.

Trees, Snow Cushion Jet's Crash; 66 Safe

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) — An Ozark Air Lines DC9 jet with 62 passengers crashed into heavy snow in a grove of trees on take-off from the Sioux City Airport this morning, but no one was killed or seriously injured.

"The snow is what saved us," said a passenger, Airman Larry Cornwell, 22, Pender, Neb. "It was a soft landing. There was no real hard jar. Just a nice, floating stop." The airplane, on flight No. 982 from Sioux City to Chicago, landed on its belly after its right wing dipped as it took off, witnesses said. The plane's right wing was sheared off.

Ambulances rushed at least 32 persons, many of them returning home from Christmas holiday visits, to hospitals, where spokesmen said most of the injuries consisted of bruises and cuts.

"It made me a firm believer in seat belts," said another passenger, Spec. 5 Curtis Eng, Flandreau, S.D., who was headed for Fort Campbell, Ky.

"As we were leaving the end of the runway and making our sharp climb, I heard a popping noise in the right engine," said Cornwell, who is stationed at Stewart Air Force Base near Newburgh, N.Y.

"The plane veered off to the right, then veered sharply to the left, and the next thing I knew we were crashing through trees and snow."

One engine continued to whine after the jet came to rest in about 14 inches of snow.

The plane cut a wide path through the trees before coming to rest upright. There was no fire.

The plane, with a crew of four, crashed at 7:05 a.m. at the north end of the runway.

Asst. Fire Chief Allen Molsko, one of the first persons on the scene, said people, many of them in shirtsleeves, were streaming out of the plane in temperatures in the low 20s.

"One stewardess was cut up pretty bad," said fireman Jerry Strand, "but she wouldn't get into the ambulance until everyone was out of the aircraft."

Rural House Fire Kills 6 Persons

GRANVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Six persons, two of the children, perished early today in a fire that destroyed a two-story frame house in a rural section. Officials said the temperature was 15 below zero and the fire might have been caused by an overheaded wood stove.

Mrs. Elizabeth Buschee, the wife of the owner, and one of her three children, Thomas, 10, escaped by jumping from a second-floor window. They were taken to a hospital in satisfactory condition, suffering from frostbite, shock, bruises and lacerations.

Joseph Buschee, 32, the owner, his brother, Edward, 36, Mrs. Nellie Williams, 68, Fred Steele, 65, Ruth Jane Sumner, 5, and Walter Carl Sumner, 10, were killed.

Running jackrabbits have been timed at 40 miles per hour.

Los Angeles Builds Widest Freeway Yet

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The world's widest highway—a freeway with 12 lanes of traffic—will be constructed over a three-mile stretch in Los Angeles starting in the fall of 1969.

The highway is the San Bernardino Freeway which is now six lanes in the section to be widened. Engineers hope to keep six lanes of traffic flowing throughout the project which will be completed in late 1971 or early 1972.

FAMILY

Camelot — Humor and depth make this lavish screen version of Broadway musical impressive. Superb songs and music. Love affair delicately portrayed.

Dr. Dolittle — A beguiling excursion into a delectable world of fantasy. A Victorian physician communicates better with the animals than with people.

Horse in a Grey Flannel Suit — Delightful, lighthearted Disney comedy. Film gives opportunity to see finest horses in this country jumping the highest barriers.

Thoroughly Modern Millie — Styles, fads, foibles and naivete of 1920's take a ribbing in this happy burlesque.

Winnie the Pooh in a Blustery Day — Film imparts a gentle lesson in sharing with and sacrificing for, one's friends.

Yellow Submarine—Sparkling animated cartoon featuring special humor and music of the Beatles will appeal to those interested in new techniques of cartooning.

ADULTS AND TEENS

Bullitt — Melodrama involves gangsters, police and an ambitious politician. Violence goes all out in blood and gore for its shock effect.

How to Save a Marriage and Ruin a Life — Sophisticated sex comedy involves a case of mistaken identity. Plot is predictable. Handsome settings in and outdoors in New York.

No Way to Treat a Lady — Farcically treated melodrama about a woman strangler well supplied with macabre humor showcasing the multiple talents of Rod Steiger as an impersonator.

BORDERLINE
(Most say Adults Only)

Villa Rides — A period in Mexico bandit patriot hero is dramatized. Incredible brutality shown in sickening detail.

ADULTS ONLY

Barbarella — Polluted comic-book world of sex, sadism and perversion in a pseudo science fiction. A gilded corruption pervades the whole garish thing.

Coogan's Bluff — Lawman from Arizona is sent to New York to bring back murderer who is a dope addict. Much violence and explicit sex.

A Flea in Her Ear — A good cast is wasted on this crude French sex farce.

A Lovely Way To Die — Murder mystery with confused plot filled with sex and brutality has good acting and shows interesting places in New York City.

Pakistan-China Pact

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (UPI)—Communist China and Pakistan signed an aggreement yesterday under which Peking will lend Pakistan $40 million for economic development.

Drunken Train Driving Charged

MONZA, Italy (AP) — An investigating judge is trying to decide what to do with two engineers who police say got drunk and took the Sondrio-Milan electric train on a wild run.

Police said Ferruccio Civardi and Giuseppe Villani, both 55, took 30 bottles of wine from a freight car and drank most of it.

In a police report turned over to the judge today, witnesses told of empty bottles flying from the locomotive window as the two men piloted their train Sunday through the Alpine foothills. Sometimes they went slow, sometimes fast, and now and again they'd stop.

When they stopped, many of the frightened passengers jumped off.

The judge will decide what charges, if any, are to be brought against the pair.

A Pleasant Diversion Makes Bow

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Give the old boy-meet-girl routine a mild little age twist and you get a moderately pleasant diversion called "Forty Carats," which opened last night at Broadway's Morosco Theater.

Romance this time involves a Prince Charming of 22 who gets all wow about a twice-divorced damsel of 40, with a subplot hooking up a lass of 17 to a big daddy of 45 just to keep the gender generation gap balanced.

Since the heroine of the title — which rather desperately equates years somehow with diamond facets—is played by Julie Harris, the charade maintains an engaging plausibility. Miss Harris projects a neat combination of uptight old-fashioned morality and new-fangled complacency about changing attitudes.

Having met her on a Greek island holiday, the swain (Marco St. John) pursues her through the sleek and swinging byways of fashionable Manhattan, so that we can get in some quips about everything from apartment-hunting to psychedelic jazz.

The comedy was adapted by Jay Allen from a French piece written by Pierre Barillet and Jean Pierre Gredy, who previously provided producer David Merrick with the source material that became his longrun "Cactus Flower."

Mrs. Allen doesn't write with urbane uniformity, so some quips twinkle, others thud and once she resorts to jarring crudity. Most of the dialogue glides along with predictable amiability.

Abe Burrows has directed with functional suavity, and the Will Steven Armstrong settings colorfully switch events from the Aegean to the Hudson. A fashion display of latest male and female attire wins plaudits for William McHone.

"Forty Carats" doesn't weigh in on the theatrical scales at anything near that value, but it is an affable, amusing pasttime."

Houston Heart Patient Dies

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Andrew S. Perhacs, 55, a heart transplant recipient, died yesterday in St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said Perhacs, of Hempstead, N.Y., died of pneumonia and there was no sign of rejection of the new heart he received Nov. 9.

The spokesman said an autopsy was planned.

Perhacs received the heart of an unidentified woman. The donor's two kidneys and a lung also were transplanted into other recipients. The lung recipient died.

When the ancient philosopher, Lao Tzu, left China in the 6th century B.C. astride a water buffalo, his thoughts remained in the book, the Tao Te Ching. This became the bible of the religion known as Taoism. This remarkable moment in the history of Great Religions is just one of the colorful scenes in the new Hall of Religions at the Wax Museum at Fisherman's Wharf. This unusual wax gallery of religious moments is the first of its kind in the world. It may be seen along with the 200 other figures every day between 10:00 A.M. and 10:00 P.M.

First Lady Reviews Five Hectic Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson says the thing she's happiest about leaving behind after five years in the White House are all the early morning, often ominous, telephone calls to the President.

"The horrendous ring of that telephone at 4 o'clock that drags you to consciousness and you know on the other end that it is something significant," Mrs. Johnson says. "And it is never good when it rings at that time.

"It is—and then, the sense of responsibility. It is not my responsibility but it does spill over into the whole climate of your life."

Mrs. Johnson also says she will be happy to leave behind the deadlines she and the President constantly face and the 18-hour work days.

Mrs. Johnson says the President, like other men across the nation, brings the problems of his job home with him. And he also brings home unexpectedly the people he works with.

She said, however, she wanted the President to bring the burdens home to her after a long day in office.

"When he comes alone, he brings the problems and, you know, I would feel that it was—I would feel somehow I had failed if he didn't," she said. "Because where else can he feel more relaxed about them and more—where would he have an audience better suited to hearing about them quite privately and quite honestly?"

One of the most difficult things for her to leave behind, Mrs. Johnson said, is what she calls the magnetism of the White House.

"This house is a magnet, a crossroads of good conversation, for ideas, for stimulation," she says. "All the political leaders of the country and indeed of the whole free world come through these doors, and businessmen and labor leaders and people from arts and entertainment and scientists.

The bagpipe was one of the earliest musical instruments used in Europe.

Eagle Opposed

NEW YORK (UPI)—Benjamin Franklin strongly opposed the adoption of the bald eagle as a national emblem. He said the bird was of bad moral character and too lazy to hunt for himself.

LBJ Hails Apollo Feat As New Era

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, sending his congratulations today to mankind's first pathfinders to the moon, told them they had ushered the world into a new era.

"We rejoice that you're well and we send you congratulations from all your fellow countrymen and all peace-loving peoples in the world," the President said.

"Well done."

Johnson disclosed the White House had used the hot line to Moscow to keep the Soviet government informed of the progress of the historic flight to the moon and back.

"The Soviets were very solicitous about the welfare of you astronauts and expressed great interest," Johnson said.

The President said the Apollo 8 astronauts' triumphant return from space had made people proud to be alive at this moment of man's greatness.

"You made us feel kin to those Europeans five centuries ago who first heard news of the New World," Johnsaon said.

Congratulating Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders, the President told them:

"You've seen what man has never seen before."

LBJ's Biggest Wish Still Vietnam Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, nearing the end of his service as president, said today the one goal that has eluded him is peace in Vietnam

Johnson summed up his accomplishments and looked ahead to his years out of the office at a far-ranging news conference held while the moon traveling Apollo 8 astronauts were being picked up in the Pacific.

Johnson pointed to the success of the Apollo mission as one of the high points of his years in the White House.

"We've come so fast, so far and so good," he said, "that I've said many prayers these last few days in thanks for what we've done."

Johnson also pointed to the health of the economy, the return of American war prisoners from Cambodia and the release of the Pueblo crew by the North Koreans as reasons for him and the nation to be thankful as the year ends.

But what really counts, the president added, "is to keep people from dying."

He said that Cyrus R. Vance, deputy negotiator for the United States at the Paris peace talks on Vietnam, told him he believes "we can get going on substantive talks when he returns there." Vance is due back in Paris tonight.

Asked for specifics on Vance's remarks, Johnson said only that "he expressed the hope that when he got back progress could be made."

Johnson, his voice hoarse, looked tired. He said he was going home to his Texas ranch in hopes of making better progress toward clearing up a persistent cough than he has been able to make in Washington.

Johnson was hospitalized for four days last week with the flu.

He said his immediate future when he leaves the White House will be devoted to three things: rest, reading and writing.

He said he will undertake no jobs of any kind, including positions on any board of directors or chancellorships of any universities.

One task that will keep him busy, he said, is working over 31,000,000 pages of records of his administration to prepare them for storing in the Johnson Library to be built at the University of Texas.

Santa Rosa May Get Air Service

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Air West's northbound service from here, halted in September, will be resumed next April if the Civil Aeronautics Board approves the airline's proposal to consolidate former Pacific and West Coast airline routes still being operated separately.

Air West formed last April with the merger of Pacific, West Coast and Bonanza airlines.

The northbound service from Santa Rosa was halted by the airline on the grounds that it lacked traffic and needed the equipment on more popular routes.

The northbound service would connect to Eureka and Portland, Ore., and will be resumed April 27, 1969, if consolidation of the routes is approved by the CAB, the airline said.

Computer Cannot Fool A Politico

ROSWELL, N. M. (AP) — A computer at the Eastern New Mexico State Fair in Roswell recently returned these remaks when Gov. David F. Cargo fed in his signature:

"You derive a lot of pleasure from discussion of the issues of the day. You are well qualified to direct people in the field of learning. Unique experiences have given you great love for others. You believe in the powers of persuasion, but never abuse it."

The governor said he "had known this all along."

Louis Armstrong Tops In Britain

LONDON (AP) — Louis Armstrong's recording of "Wonderful World" was proclaimed today the No. 1 pop disc in Britain for 1968.

The Beatles took the title of top pop chart stars for the year — as distinct from the popularity of any one record.

The charts are prepared by two rival entertainment weeklies, Disc and Music Echo and The Melody Maker.

The Beatles' protege, Mary Hopkins, was top girl in the disc chart with her world hit "Those Were The Days," and also was top individual girl star.

American Herb Alpert took eighth place with "This Guy's In Love," his first singing record.

Refuge Closed By Fish-Game

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Department of Fish and Game yesterday ordered the Sutter National Wildlife Refuge closed to hunters indefinitely because of flooding.

The department said the area probably will not reopen during the current waterfowl hunting season which ends Jan. 12, although hunters with reservations for the coming weekend will be rerouted to other nearby areas.

Giant Tax Bill For Sophia Loren

ROME (AP) — Actress Sophia Loren and Carlo Ponti have been given the largest city tax bill of any couple in Italy.

Rome tax assessors listed yesterday a combined taxable income for the couple of $1 million and called for $147,000 in taxes. Miss Loren was credited with $560,000 in earnings. Her tax equals that of Giovanni Agnelli, president of Fiat industries and considered Italy's richest man.

DINING OUT AND INNS

Marin Dining And Wining

New Year's Eve Fast Arriving; Parties Will Need Reservations

In Times Square they drop a ball on New Year's Eve.

In Japan, bells gong 108 times. Italians hurl glass out the window. Scots walk through the streets carrying a barrel filled with tar, and in Geneva they set off every piece of available artillery.

In case anyone missed hearing that the New Year was in, the next day the French visit all their friends. And what could be more natural south of the border than for the Mexicans to hold a fiesta.

Wherever you go this is the most widely celebrated holiday in the world.

At midnight next Tuesday, some Marinites may find themselves drawn to the city fleshpots across the bay, but most of them will remain in the county to celebrate at home, with their friends — or in local nightspots.

There are many such places eager to help in expanding a one-second interval between two calendars into a festive three or four-hour occasion, depending on the location, celebrations will come in all dimensions and in all prices.

But by now, wise celebrants will have reserved space at some establishment to assure an evening of fun. Others may have to take their chances on making successful last-minute arrangements.

For the past two or three weeks we have been mentioning places to go and here are a few more that still may be able to give you service. They are well worth checking.

CALL BOB'S OF MARIN in Corte Madera. There may be some space left here. New Year's Eve champagne dinner at $10 starts at 9 p.m. in the dining room. Chef Louis Peppras is preparing a fine selection of food, with a choice of six entrees.

There will be a combo for dancing in the small banquet room.

HAVE YOU EVER spent New Year's Eve at San Rafael Joe's? There's as much Auld Lang Syne warmth and celebrating per square foot here as at any dinery in the county and it's right on downtown Fourth Street.

For music there'll be Larry Vannucci. The menu will be selective but the food and drink will be as rewarding as the geniality of the hosts — Rubinis and the Farinas. Reservations are being taken.

THE SPINNAKER in Sausalito, by this hour, may be booked up for the final evening of the year. In any event you'll have to phone for reservations. The Spinnaker serves its usual sumptious menu on New Year's Eve and it's a fine place to go for steaks — and a beautiful view over the water. You'll be in luck if you can get a table.

My understanding is that the Spinnaker will close for a week after Jan. 5.

TRADITIONALLY, Galli's Famous Dinners in Ignacio also plays down the hoopla on New Year's Eve and devotes its attention to the food, which will be by regular menu. Make reservations.

After New Year's Galli's will close down for about two weeks.

AND THERE is a quiet evening in store for patrons of L'Europe Restaurant on the San Rafael Miracle Mile that night.

The regular menu is being served from 5 p.m. and you can come when you want and stay through midnight if that is your plan. I'd suggest a phone call for reservations.

HERE'S A PLACE you should definitely include in your considerations for New Year's Eve — Deer Park Villa in Fairfax.

There are two dinner periods that night — from 5:30 to about 7:30 p.m., when no reservations are needed and the regular menu is served — and from 8 p.m. when there will be a special menu. Dinners will run in the $6.75 to $8.50 range. Nancy Valencia will be the organist.

AT BLACK POINT INN, chef Jay Reinhardt is providing a choice of four entrees for the New Year's Eve champagne spread at $7.50 each. There will be music and dancing. The newly decorated surroundings make it a very attractive place to eat, listen, dance and enjoy yourself.

HERE'S SOMETHING DIFFERENT for the end of the year arrangements:

Fleur de France (formerly Mission Inn) in San Rafael is featuring a New Year's Eve buffet dinner at $3.50. There'll be a battleship round of beef (with chef Milt Judd carving), a seafood newburg, Swedish meat balls, several salads and dessert on an all-you-can-eat basis. Dinner service is from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. that night and the food is good here.

In the Green Room, newly decorated, Joe Carter and The Starlighters will play for dancing.

DEE BRUNAL out at Oak Tree Inn, San Geronimo, tells me that she and Ray still have some space left for Tuesday night. Dinners start at the regular time and entertainment begins at 9 p.m. There's a combo for dancing. Tab is $15 per couple.

FRANCHINI'S CHATEAU is serving at regular prices, with a program mostly performed by the celebrants themselves. From past experience there should be many of them headed in that direction, so make a reservation.

ANOTHER PLACE that observes New Year's Eve without fanfare is Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael. No dance orchestra or horns, and the regular menu will be served.

IN NOVATO, there is a good program at Cloud 5:

Dinner will be served downstairs in the dining room to 10 p.m. And upstairs, starting at 9 p.m. Ruth Overly and Lynn will play for dancing until 1 a.m.

At midnight, Chris Bolton and Archie Sawyer are serving a "Bavarian Wiener Roast." The entire place has recently been remodeled.

I WOULD GUESS BY NOW that Rancho Nicasio is sold out for New Year's Eve—but you might try Nick and Mary Kobseff up at McCloud River Lodge —that is, if you want to drive that far.

PIER 15 in San Rafael has completed its annual Invitational Liar's Dice Tournament benefitting Guide Dogs for the Blind, and out of 56 competitors, Norman Peterson of Fairfax emerged as the winner. The restaurant plans on having the tournament as a regular December attraction.

This place is best known to people who work or live in the East San Rafael area and to scores of patrons who have been visiting here since the days it was first opened by Pete Lind. Favorite servings to Betty and Harry Craft are turkey and pastrami sandwiches, respectively.

THE SAN ANSELMO RESTAURANT, Mr. T-Bone, has been closed by the owners, Carl and Nisha Dover.

However, they are still very successfully operating the Mr. T-Bone in the Montecito Shopping Center in San Rafael. At this time there has been no decision on a reopening in San Anselmo.

Felony Narcotic Charges Follow Scaring Teener

A San Rafael man, who Novato police said attempted to enter a home and frightened a 13-year-old girl, yesterday was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on a felony complaint of marijuana possession.

The man, James Albert Sprague, 24, of 14 Sentinel Court, also is accused of being under the influence of narcotics, a misdemeanor charge.

Plea entries were scheduled for this afternoon.

Police, who arrested Sprague on Highway 101 on a description by the girl, said he had two packets of a substance believed to be marijuana. They said Susan Valim 1032 First Street was standing in front of the home about 2 p.m. Wednesday when Sprague approached. He chased her into the house, she locked the door behind her, and he unsuccessfully attempted to enter a side door, she told officers.

Boaters Warned

The Coast Guard has warned that private boats are prohibited within 100 yards of the shores of the Benicia Arsenal wharf and the Mare Island Navy Yard because the Navy conducts hazardous operations in these areas.

FIREFIGHTING THE HARD WAY

Post Office Quits As Congress Watchdog

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post Office Department, accused by a Republican senator of doing hatchet work for President Johnson, said today it was giving up its watchdog role over congressional mailing privileges.

The decision, which said congressmen should decide for themselves whether the franking or free mail privileges were being properly used, made no mention of charges by Michigan's Robert P. Griffin.

But the senator issued a statement saying both he and the department, which passes from Democratic to Republican hands next month, will benefit. He said he will press for Congress to draw up its own guidelines in the next session.

During the peak of the controversy last fall over Abe Fortas' nomination as chief justice of the United States, the Post Office Department accused Griffin of misusing the franking privilege and said he owed the government $25,000.

Griffin led the successful fight to block nomination of Fortas, an old friend and adviser of the President's.

"When you stick your neck out and buck the Johnson administration, I guess you have to expect this sort of thing," Griffin said at the time.

The new decision follows a Nov. 26 meeting between Griffin and Postmaster Gen. W. Marvin Watson at which Griffin said he submitted a 15-page legal memo arguing he had not misused the franking privilege as charged during his tough 1967 campaign.

The department said Griffin had franked a newsletter that had political—and therefore improper—implications in its reprint of a statement by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

Until now, Post Office policy has been to issue rulings on possible violations of the privilege, leaving collection or prosecution to some other agency.

Because congressmen use the privilege to report on their activities in Washington, a good deal of which are naturally political, misuse falls into a gray area that makes enforcement hard. As far as it is known there have never been any convictions.

In the new policy statement, Timothy J. May, general counsel of the Post Office Department, said the use of the franking privilege for official correspondence "is a matter strictly between the member of Congress and his conscience."

May said that after examining past situations he feared it could led to constitutional problems involving possible censorship of Congressional mail.

He said there was no way, and should be no way, in which the Post Office can assess a payment.

"Congress has not ordered the department to police the behavior of members in the use of franking privilege, nor is there any regulation under which the Post Office Department can collect payment if such an abuse occurs," May said.

New York's Fuel Crisis Held Easing

NEW YORK (UPI)—A city official said today the crisis caused by last week's fuel oil drivers' strike appeared to be easing, but an estimated 10,000 seriously ill New Yorkers were said to still be without heat.

Deputy Mayor Timothy W. Costello, speaking in the absence of Mayor John V. Lindsay who left for a vacation in the Bahamas yesterday, said "we are cutting sharply into the priority list for emergency deliveries of fuel oil. I would say the crisis is definitely easing."

The city health department yesterday declared the city in a state of peril because of delays in delivering fuel oil after a week-long strike by truck drivers and nechanics. A strict priority system for the deliveries was set up by the city.

Costello said the situation was "more perilous" than during the nine-day walkout by garbage collectors in February.

The strike was settled Sunday, but many drivers refused to work on Christmas Day, at two and one-half times regular pay, to cut down a backlog of orders that piled up during the strike.

Since the beginning of the week, the health department has received complaints from residents of about 28,000 apartments without heat or hot water.

Health officials said three deaths have been directly linked to the fuel oil shortage so far and 2,400 New Yorkers would die the last week of December, 300 more than during the same week last year.

The automobile industry in the United States consumes one-fifth of the nation's steel output.

High Death Rate Due To Hong Kong Flu

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Hong Kong Flu has caused widespread or regional illnesses in 33 states and deaths attributed to pneumonia-influenza more than doubled during the third week of December, the National Communicable Disease Center reports.

Officials are standing by their earlier predictions that the epidemic will not hit its peak until early or mid-January.

During the week ending Dec. 21, The center's figures show approximately 500 more deaths from pneumonia-influenza in 122 selected cities throughout the nation than might normally be expected.

However, Dr. David J. Sencer, the center's director, cautioned that the figures from the 122 cities are "purely a sampling." He said that they should not be interpreted too strictly.

Sencer said the NCDC is taking the unusual step of using an editorial on the front page of its weekly report to caution about relying upon interpretations of the figures.

The spokesman said the new strain of flue has become so widespread that "if you're getting the flu, it's the Hong Kong flu."

Liberals Welcome Udall Bid To Challenge McCormack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Morris K. Udall's startling challenge to the House Democratic leadership was welcomed by liberal-moderates today, but he faces a stiff battle to unseat Speaker John W. McCormack.

Udall, in announcing yesterday he was after 77-year-old McCormack's job, said he had reached the decision without lining up any prior backing or consulting with the liberal-moderate leadership.

Several members of the liberal-moderate Democratic Study Group, a largely informal alliance of some 140 members, including Udall, said they were surprised by the four-term Arizona congressman's announcement.

"His chances are very good. He's very popular personally and he's very articulate. But it depends entirely on what the one's in the middle do," said a source aligned with the DSG.

There was a feeling among others, however, that Udall's pledge to call for other nominations if he unseats McCormack on the first ballot was the strongest factor going for him.

The belief is that a Northern or Western liberal wouldn't stand a chance against the speaker from Massachusetts, but that many members disatisfied with McCormack would go for such a candidate if they thought it was a gimmick that could lead eventually to election of their own man.

First test of Udall's strength will come by secret ballot at the Democratic caucus Jan. 2. The nominee of the caucus will be presented to the full House when it convenes Jan. 3. Since the Democrats hold the majority 243 to 192 their choice is a sure thing.

Although there has been talk of trying to unseat McCormack, speaker since 1961, some liberal-moderates have said that attempts to alter the rigid seniority system and seize some committee chairmanships from conservatives would take precedence in the new Congress.

In announcing his decision to make the race, the 46-year-old Udall, brother of Interior Secretary Stewart udall, said he would construe a first-ballot defeat for the McCormack "not as a decision that I should be Speaker" but only "a vote that a change is desired."

Family Still In Dark Over Death Of Son

A crisply worded telegram from the Army, saying that Sp/4 Robert Norman Potter died "from a blow on the head," was all the explanation a distraught Petaluma family had today as they waited for his body to return from Germany.

His wife, La Verne Potter of 418 Eighth Street; his mother, Mrs. Christina Potter, and his father, Elwood Potter, got the telegrams Saturday. Since then, they have been given no further details.

Potter, 24, died Dec. 20 at his post near Frankfurt, according to the telegram from the Department of the Army in Washington, D.C.

"All they told us was that he went back to his base and was found unconscious in his bunk," said Mrs. Potter. An investigation is underway, according to the telegram.

The dead man's brother, Air Force Capt. James E. Potter, is accompanying the body back to Petaluma.

The body is to arrive tomorrow at the Parent Funeral Chapel.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday. Entombment will be in Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

A native of Petaluma, Potter was a 1962 graduate of Petaluma High School. He entered the Army in 1966, and was to be discharged in October 1969.

He also is survived by a second brother, William C. Potter of Santa Rosa, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Sheridan of Cotati.

Mill Valley Youths Facing Trial In Bulgaria On Marijuana Count

SOFIA, Bulgaria — Three Mill Valley men are among five Americans who will be tried here next week on charges of smuggling marijuana from Turkey, the Bulgarian News Agency reported yesterday.

The three are Eric M. Rosse, Anthony (Bud) Almada Jr. and Stephen J. Carter, according to the report, relayed by Reuters, the British news service.

Rosse is the son of J. Martin Rosse of 301 Reed Boulevard, architect of many schools in Marin.

Almada's mother, Mrs. Anthony Almada of 26-A Circle Avenue, told the Independent-Journal her son had written only that the three had to stay in Bulgaria pending a trial for a traffic accident in which they were involved. A Bulgarian was injured in the accident, according to young Almada's letter to his sister in Germany, said Mrs. Almada.

Mrs. Almada said her son, 22, and the other two, both in their early 20s, have been traveling around Europe in a camper since September. They intended to travel "until their money ran out," she said.

According to the Bulgarian News Agency, the three were charged with smuggling 22 pounds of marijuana in their camper on Nov. 20.

Charged in a separate incident were David Harley Mills and Richard B. Meunier, both of Templeton, Mass. They were accused of carrying 91 pounds of marijuana into Bulgaria on Nov. 18.

The news agency said the five were not kept in custody, but were freed after they signed promises to appear for their trials.

If convicted, each could be sentenced to six years in prison.

Mrs. Almada said she last saw her son and his companions early last month while visiting her daughter in Germany.

Her son, in his letter to his sister, said the three were in contact with the American Embassy in Sofia, said Mrs. Almada.

She declined to give Carter's address, saying "his mother doesn't know anything about this."

The three attended College of Marin, she said.

Judge Denies Marijuana Trial Move

Judge Hadden W. Roth of Marin Municipal Court ruled illegal today a move by James D. Kimmel, former Novato High School teacher, to move his trial on a charge of marijuana possession to another county.

The magistrate said the request for a change of venue can only properly be made in Marin Superior Court when the defendant is held over to the higher court following a preliminary hearing.

He scheduled the hearing for 9:30 a.m. Jan. 30.

Kimmel is accused of having marijuana Nov. 15, with using minors to secure the marijuana, and with resisting arrest.

He made the change of venue request on grounds that the pretrial publicity has prevented a fair trial. His attorney, Carl Shapiro of San Anselmo, said today he will renew the motion in Superior Court if a holding of Kimmel is made.

Houseplant Pot Leads To Charge

A 20-year-old Larkspur woman, who allegedly kept a marijuana plant in a wooden bowl in her home, was arrested last night by Larkspur police.

Darrah Hallowitz of 100 Edison Avenue was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of possessing marijuana and released on $625 bail. She is scheduled to appear at 2 p.m. Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

An 18-year-old youth, visiting Miss Hallowitz, Douglas W. Gower of 33 Serra Way, San Rafael, had a half-gallon jug of wine and was arrested for possessing an alcoholic beverage as a minor, police said. He was released from the County Jail on $65 bail and also will appear at 2 p.m. Monday in Municipal Court.

Police said they observed the marijuana in the house Christmas Eve while investigating a burglary in the neighborhood. They returned last night and made the arrests after getting a search warrant.

Family Fuss Results In Wild Booking

Gripping a shotgun by the handle like a baseball bat, a San Rafael man was arrested last night on suspicion of threatening three police officers.

Patrick Albert Cannon, 29, of 1135 Fourth Street, was booked for investigation of battery and resisting arrest in an incident that San Rafael police said began with a spat with his wife, Diane Adale Cannon, 33.

The suspect's wife called police after attempting to make a citizen's arrest againts Cannon. When police arrived the suspect held the shotgun in a threatening position, but after repeated orders, put it down, police said.

Cannon was then placed under arrest by his wife, police said, but again the suspect refused to let officers get close. Surrounding the suspect, they jumped him after a struggle in which Cannon allegedly punched and kicked the officers, he was finally subdued.

While being booked, officers reported, Cannon attempted to knee one of them in the groin and was finally placed in a padded cell.

Police reported Mrs. Cannon's face was bloody and she had a cut over the left eye. Cannon's arraignment was set for this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court. Bail was set at $620.

'The Stuffed Bear' To Be Given Tomorrow

"The Stuffed Bear" will be presented by the San Francisco Ensemble Theater at 1:30 and 8:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Mill Valley Golf clubhouse.

The play, sponsored by the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts, was written and will be directed by Jerome Markel with musical adaptations from A. A. Milne's "Winnie the Pooh."

U.S. Agrees To Sell Israel 50 Warplanes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department announced today final agreement on a $200 million deal to provide 50 Phantom jet fighters to Israel

A spokesman said delivery of the planes to Israel will begin before the end of 1969 and continue into 1970.

The deal is essentially a sale of the F4 Phantom jets to Israel at a cost of about $200 million. Part of that amount is being covered on U.S. credit.

Completion of the negotiations, which President Johnson announced last Oct. 9, was reported by press officer Robert J. McCloskey, who said:

"Agreement to meet Israel's request for 50 F4 aircraft has been reached. Delivery of the planes will begin before the end of 1969 and continue into 1970."

U.S. officials said the basic policy covering completion of the agreement is to assist Israel in maintaining some degree of balance with the Arab states, particulariy Egypt, which has been rearmed by the Soviet Union since the Arab-Israeli war of mid-1967.

The Johnson administration has discussed with the Soviet government and others the possibility of agreeing on an arms limitation arrangement for the Middle East but no signs of success have been seen so far.

The delivery schedule disclosed by McCloskey means that the delivery of the planes will not begin until long after the Nixon administration has displaced the Johnson administration here.

One of Nixon's advisers, former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, has talked about conducting what he has called a more even-handed U.S. policy in the Middle East to build stronger relations with the Arab countries.

However there has been no indication that Nixon or his principal supporters objected to the Phantom jet sale to Israel.

Boy Seriously Hurt In Wreck Of Bike, Auto

An 8-year-old Mill Valley boy was seriously injured at 12:15 p.m. yesterday when he rode his bicycle in front of a car on Tiburon Boulevard, the California Highway Patrol said.

John Gates of 155 Blackfield Drive was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with a skull fracture and multiple bruises and scrapes.

The driver of the car, Ernest H. Jackson, 44, of Concord, told officers that the youngster was riding with a friend along the south shoulder of the road when he swerved in front of the car.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Sandra E. Gates, 28, rushing to the scene of the accident, drove her car into a vehicle stopped on the road. Neither she nor the driver of the other car, Mrs. Billie Lee Rose, 41, of 73 Reed Ranch Road, Tiburon, was injured.

Sierra Crash Victim

AUBURN (AP) — William McKelroy, 21, of San Francisco, died Wednesday night in a one-car accident on Interstate 80 about 30 miles east of Auburn, when his auto went out of control.

Bomb Blast, Not Bullet, Hurts Teener

A 15-year-old San Rafael boy, earlier reported shot while walking along Lucas Valley Road, actually was injured in the explosion of a homemade bomb, sheriff's deputies said today.

The youth, Michael Johnston, son of Gordon R. Johnston of 2 Mount Tioga Court, was in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital. He suffered a left hand cut and a right shoulder injury.

Deputies said the youth reported he went to a creek area near Lucas Valley Road, packed a copper pipe with tiny pellets, then used the heads of matches to cause an explosion.

They said he told them he had made explosives before, but this one went off earlier than expected. A motorist who found the wounded youth walking along Lucas Valley Road about 10 a.m. yesterday told deputies the youth was believed to have been shot.

Ten Accused In Murderous Orgy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —Seven men and three women were arrested today on suspicion of murder of a 19-year-old girl in what police indicated was a sadistic orgy in the Haight-Ashbury hippie district last night.

Inspector William Armstrong tentatively identified the victim as Ann Jiminez of Seattle. He said there was evidence she had been sexually molested, beaten and subjected to sexual indignities.

The coroner's office reported the young woman had suffered a traumatic head injury, but the cause of death would be determined by an autopsy.

Gas Chamber Set For Dual Murder

FRESNO (AP)—Weldon Lee Hathcock, 31, has been sentenced to die in the gas chamber for the murder of Barbara Simon and Albert Owens.

The sentence was imposed yesterday by Superior Court Judge Leonard I. Meyers.

The bullet-riddled bodies of Owens, 40, and Mrs. Simon, 26, were found in a deserted area outside Fresno last January. Authorities said they were slain after an apparent argument at Hathcock's Fresno home.

Another man, Bruce Wisner, 36, of Fresno, was sentenced to life in prison in the case several months ago, after he testified that Hathcock did the actual shooting.

Felony Driving Charge Brings Denial

James L. Klockars, 21, pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court yesterday to a felony complaint of drunken driving involving an injury. Preliminary hearing was scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Jan. 13.

Klockars, of Almonte, also is accused of carrying a concealed revolver in his car. He was the driver of a car which crashed on Highway 101 near Alto Hill Dec. 11, injuring a passenger, William Relahan, 22, of 26 Suffield Avenue, San Anselmo.

U.S. Reports Lull In Viet Ground Action

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command said today that American troops are doing less fighting than they have at any time in the past three months.

But the South Vietnamese government said ist forces killed 146 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in four clashes yesterday, captured 49 new Viet Cong draftees and uncovered a sizable store of munitions.

The South Vietnamese said their losses were nine killed and 33 wounded in the four clashes. Three were in the Mekong Delta and the fourth was near Da Nang.

The heaviest of the fights raged for several hours about 20 miles southwest of Da Nang. There South Vietnamese Rangers reported 74 North Vietnamese and seven rangers killed and 30 rangers wounded.

A government spokesman said the Viet Cong conscripts were captured 23 miles north of Saigon and apparently put up little resistance.

"There was some exchange of fire, but I think because they were draftees, they just surrendered," he said. Three South Vietnamese soldiers were wounded.

The spokesman said the government soldiers took the enemy by surprise while searching the area just after daybreak, while the 72-hour cease-fire proclaimed by the Viet Cong for Christmas was still in effect.

"They were still having their truce period and maybe because of that it was such a big haul," he said.

The Viet Cong cease-fire extended until 1 a.m. today, but the U.S. and South Vietnamese commands ended their Christmas stand-down at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The U.S. Command reported only light contact in scattered actions for U.S. forces.

One high-ranking U.S. officer said it was too early to determine the significance of the lull. But he said the Christmas cease-fire undoubtedly was a factor.

"We felt that for the most part there was a fairly good effort on the part of the Viet Cong to stay by the truce," he said.

American reconnaissance continued during the 24-hour allied cease-fire, and the officer said the enemy apparently did not make any great effort to maneuver troops and supplies during the period.

FLEXIBILITY KEY IN PARIS: VANCE

No. 2 Negotiator Flying Back To Talks With Pledge To Settle Seating Dispute

NEW YORK (AP) — Cyrus R. Vance, the No. 2 American negotiator in the Paris peace talks, departed for the French capital today after high-level meetings in Washington.

Vance told newsmen at Kennedy Airport that "we are continuing our efforts to find a breakthrough" in the difficulties that have stalled the negotiations looking for settlement of the Vietnam War.

"No one should be rigid," said Vance. "There must be flexibility on all sides."

Vance is chief deputy to Ambassador W. Averill Harriman.

During Vance's consultations Christmas week with President Johnson, President-elect Richard Nixon and other U.S. leaders, the U.S.-North Vietnamese talks lapsed into a holiday lull while the rival Vietnamese delegations stood firm in their entrenched public positions.

Vance, a Johnson appointee, has agreed to stay on about a month after the Jan. 20 inauguration to ease the transition. Nixon has yet to name a successor to Harriman, who is quitting the negotiations next month.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations emerged yesterday from the Christmas intermission in Paris with new moves in their campaign for recognition of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

A joint communique said the start of the peace talks was being blocked by the refusal of the U.S. and Saigon governments "to recognize the Front as an independent and equal party to the conference." The communique said to get the parley going, the U.S. and Saigon delegations "must immediately sit" at the round table demanded by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Winchell Rites Set In Arizona

SANTA ANA (UPI) — Funeral services for Walter Winchell, 33, son of newspaper columnist Walter Winchell, will be held in Scottsdale, Ariz., near the home of his mother.

The sheriff's office said the younger Winchell shot himself shortly after eating Christmas dinner with his wife and their two children.

Deputies said he had tried to kill himself before and had been under psychiatric care in the past. Death was listed as suicide.

In addition to his parents, wife and children, Winchell is survived by a sister. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

A Dizzying, Activist Social Year

By BARBARA HOSMER

As 1968 passes into the history books, social confrontation was the keynote of the leap year which had little of the traditional frivolity. A war year at home and abroad, hardly could guests gather at a party just to socialize without talk turning to the social revolution popping all around. Issues such as student demands for a relevant education, protests against the unconcerned, racism and the election polarized opinions as soon as the potables and hors d'oeuvres were passed.

A fleeting comment by a youth on TV summed up the "Now" Generation: "It's an age when holding on to something doesn't seem to have any meaning," while bewildered adults who finally got the message that "The Times They Are A-Changing" felt their bedrock of tradition slipping away beneath them.

A Palo Alto mother faced a jail term for refusing to allow her son to be drafted; housewives were forced to support or reject the grape strike each time they visited the supermarket; parents stood helpless as sons and daughters were busted for drugs; Dr. Spock, a trusted household name to a whole generation of mothers, was sentenced to jail for anti-draft activity; and certainly Eartha Kitt started the year with a verbal bombshell when she stood up at a ladies luncheon at the White House and told Lady Bird just where it was at with U.S. youth and the Vietnam War.

UNUSUAL WEDDING ceremonies, rocketing prices, Shirley Temple curls, Bonnie and Clyde defiance of authority, the Nehru jacket and natural hair for chic black girls were all a part of the passing scene.

Some of the biggest newsmakers were women — Jacqueline Kennedy topped the lot with her surprise marriage to jillionaire ship owner Ari Onassis. Coretta King and Ethel Kennedy awed the world with their heroic composure in tragic times. Peggy Fleming took the Olympic gold medal in women's figure skating. The legendary Helen Keller died. Lynda Bird Robb's baby was born . . .

First marriages that made headlines were Julie Nixon's to David Eisenhower, singer Miriam Makeba's to black militant Stokeley Carmichael, anti-war crusaders Joan Baez and David Harris, and singer Elvis Presley's.

A Canadian nun became the first woman delegate to the United Nations General Assembly. Lurleen Wallace died of cancer; Penelope Tree emerged as a top model; Diahann Carroll became the first black woman to star in a weekly series on television.

People grew hair, curled hair, cut hair, shaved beards, grew mustaches, shaved mustaches and grew sideburns . . . "Harper Valley PTA" lampooned in song the small town-style parents club . . . Nuns streamlined their habits . . . Mini skirts and boots stayed in . . . but the Nehru jacket came and went, while the turtleneck stayed . . . "Little Women" had a 100th birthday; Janis Joplin split with Big Brother and the Holding Company; Cass went single from the Mamas and Papas; folkies Joni Mitchell and Judy Collins hit the pop music charts; Penny Early tried to become the first female jockey, then pro basketball player, without luck.

HERE IN MARIN the times were changing also. Mill Valley's Jane Marsh signed a German opera contract and sang with the San Francisco opera. Dedicated conservationist and beloved Marinite Caroline S. Livermore died early in the year. Death also took Molo Lowell of Mill Valley, known to all ages for her crafts classes and for her special love for children. Sister Patrick retired from the presidency of Dominican College and Sister Samuel, an alumna, succeeded her.

Marin debs bowed in San Francisco for the first time, and the Concours d'Elegance was held by the Marin Circle of the Florence Crittenton Home outside of Marin also — at Silverado Country Club at Napa.

Their 100th birthdays were celebrated by Mme. M. R. F. Valle of Mill Valley and Mrs. Ava Campbell of San Rafael, who received a message from President Johnson.

COUNTY LIBRARIAN Virginia Keating retired after 38 years of work among the stacks. Mrs. Roy Kanoff of Novato, Marin County Board of Education president, returned to college for a teaching credential, then resigned her

HELEN HELP US!

Problem Of Telling Children The Truth Brings Convictions

DEAR HELEN:

Your advice to "Confused" was so wrong! Her husband accuses her of being under a Puritanical mother's thumb and being hooked on rigid morality because she tells her children she was married a year before her real wedding date. Why shouldn't she shield them from the "had to" angle? If they know her secret, perhaps they will think, "Well, it worked out fine for my parents, why not for us?"

You sided with the husband who wanted to tell the children the truth when they asked. Why risk a happy family life just because a man is overly honest? Or maybe he's proud of being premature.

MODERN GRANDMOTHER

DEAR GRANDMOTHER:

Why live a lie which will surely be found out when the children grow older? Young people's attitudes toward "premature births" are considerably different from yours, Grandmother. Told of their parents' mistake, they may learn not to do likewise, but they won't condemn nor will they be ashamed — not if the matter is handled as wisely as the father intends.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

That moron who signed himself "Against Frigid Women" has some nerve, saying he asks a gal first, and if she won't put out, he doesn't date her.

Where does he find these women — in waterfront bars?

Maybe not, for women have lowered themselves to all kinds of things during the past 20 years. At one time they were superior to men, and men put them on a pedestal. Now they're equal, and therefore trampy. And that stupid moron, AFW, is selling it to new customers! What modern women need is more self-respect. Just because we don't throw ourselves at every man around, doesn't mean we are frigid. — AGAINST "IDEA" MEN

DEAR HELEN:

I wear shorts to garden in, and as we live in the South, that means most of the year. We moved here last September. I noticed my neighbors stared when I came out in a swim suit, but what else can you wear when it's hot?

Then I started getting anonymous letters in the mail about how the Lord frowns on nudity and fornication. I didn't think I fitted in either category, so I ignored them.

Next, Helen, you won't believe this, but the village minister walked down the street, dropped to his knees near where I was digging, and started praying for my immortal soul. Though I think he said "immoral."

I honestly think some of these women are so repressed they blindfold themselves when they take a bath. No wonder their husbands — and the minister — go kind of bug-eyed. My husband doesn't mind my shorts. Should I cover up for the prudes, or keep on being the town — JEZEBEL?

DEAR JEZ:

Grin and be stared at! — Sounds as if the town needs a good jolt. If you cover up, you may ruin the best gossip they've had in years.

(But hope your husband gets an early transfer out of "Joyland.") —H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Joan Richman's World Is Dominated By Space Shows

By GAY PAULEY

JOAN RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — A friend called Joan Richman one day to ask, "Are you interested in space?"

And thereby began an unusual career for a St. Louis-born girl who's watched the United States' current lunar spectacular with as much fascinated interest as any one of the scientists and technicians at Cape Kennedy and the Houston Space Center.

Miss Richman, an attractive brunette of 29, is coproducer for the space coverage television specials which Walter Cronkite has been doing since American-manned shots began in 1961.

"Do you realize the whole import of this?" says Miss Richman of the Apollo 8 moon orbit. "Man is seeing the moon closeup for the first time. And man is seeing his whole earth for the first time too."

Miss Richman talked about "working" a space liftoff and follow-through just before departing for Cape Kennedy and helping to put on the CBS network launch. She'll be on the project, helping to mastermind telecasts from Houston and tracking stations around the world until Apollo 8 splashes down in the Pacific off Samoa Friday morning.

Miss Richman is one of the few women producers in network television and probably the only one whose world has been dominated by space shows.

The world involves everything from deciding how many writers and technicians are necessary to stage the show to figuring placement of cameras and where special telephone lines must be strung. And most of all, it involves knowing right down to the atom what goes on with a space shot.

Miss Richman, who once was "a simple English major," can tell you that America's three astronauts — Frank Borman, James A. Lovell and William A. Anders—swung into earthly and then lunar orbit in an 83-foot long spacecraft, that the Saturn 5 which lifted the craft into the heavens is 59 feet taller than the Statue of Liberty, is more powerful than 92,500 locomotives, has the thrust of 115 Boeing 707s at takeoff, weighs in at 6,220,025 pounds, as much as the nuclear submarine Nautilus.

It was just by chance that Miss Richman is in space. Right out of Wellesley College in 1961, she landed a job at the network clipping newspapers for its library. Soon she was promoted to research.

Then a friend in the special events department, hearing of an opening, called to ask if she were interested in space.

"I didn't know anything," Miss Richman recalled, "None of the technical side of space exploration. But I began a cram course of reading for myself, and of course as the program itself has developed, we all have learned." She was reading up on the moon the day we talked.

Miss Cook Wed In England

A holiday wedding in Oxford, England united Paul Forster Matthews and Margli Diane Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gale Cook of Greenbrae.

The marriage ceremony Dec. 21 in St. Andrew's Church was performed by the bridegroom's grandfather, the Very Rev. W. R. Matthews, dean Emeritus of St. Paul's Cathedral, London.

The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Bryan Matthews of Sale, Cheshire.

Her attendants were Celia Matthews, sister of the bridegroom, who was maid of honor, and bridesmaids Lindsay and Catherine Badenuoch, cousins of the groom.

Paul's best man was James Badenoch, another cousin and son of Dr. John Badenoch, who gave the bride in marriage.

Margli was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and the University of California. She has a brother, Stephen, and a sister, Jennifer.

Paul is a graduate of Sussex University. The couple will live in England, where Paul will have a teaching position next year.

Pineapple

One of the simplest foods to freeze, fresh pineapple only needs to be wrapped air tight in heavy duty plastic bags or plastic film. It does not need ascorbic acid or a sugar syrup.

The Waning Days Of Activist Year—

board post late in the year. Dominican College junior Peggy Glockner, elected to the board of the Marin Association for Mental Health, was youngest in the state to serve on such a board.

Mrs. Julian Rice retired from volunteer work at Marin General Hospital begun 16 years ago when the hospital was built. Mrs. Walter Johnson stepped down after seven years' chairmanship of the Marin County Chapter of the March of Dimes but continues with the organization's efforts.

Shirley Bomio of Novato was junior division winner for the state sewing contest with wool fabrics with her bright blue coat and yellow dress ensemble. Linda Thaning, San Rafael High School senior, last spring won a trip to New York for her fashion know-how and modeling experience.

Director of nursing at Ross Hospital Teresa Monaghan retired after a 36 year career that began on a Winnebago Indian reservation in Nebraska.

Vivian Hallinan was national organizer of the Jeanette Rankin Brigade which led a women's peace march on Washington, D.C.

Cellist Jean Mitchell and her husband were San Francisco Symphony members who made the concert tour of Japan.

Mrs. Benjamin Ballard of Ross, of the women's "Hiking and Sipping Society," entered the grueling Dipsea race to Stinson Beach.

Other notable Marin women retiring from long careers were Dr. Anne Brady, Marin' first pediatrician, who began practice in 1931; and Adele Alpers, who spent 12 years on the Marin County board of education.

QUITE A FEW Marin housewives and career types had a chance for bit parts in locally made films — "Petulia" caused excitement when it was screened here; "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" had a few local faces on screen briefly; the much-discussed "Graduate" had others; and the current film "Bullitt" has more.

Three young Indian girls came to spend a few weeks with Novato families in a Baptist Church sponsored program. Ann Davis, Sally Ward and Ann Pfeiffer went on Camp Fire Girls sponsored conservation trips in the U.S.

Black history was a new course at Katharine Branson School, taught by Mrs. Festus Adebonojo of San Anselmo. A special day camp at Arequipa was enjoyed by Marin City girls. Marin City women, too, demonstrated soul food cookery during Marin Co-op's black history week. Also a special secretarial and grooming course was set up for young women from Marin City at San Domenico School.

WEDDINGS OF Marinites took some unusual twists — One bride was so efficient that she listed zip codes for all attendants and family members on the I-J wedding form. Another bride said her vows at Doctor Popper's Laboratory on Cannery Row, made famous in the Steinbeck stories; others chose vintage Pierce Arrows and Rolls Royces to convey them to the wedding reception. Most confusing was a double wedding of sisters who served as each other's maids of honor.

Most unusual were two weddings in Novato. Connie Bremer and Lonnie Frisbee of the Christian Hippies group which attend Novato All Saints Lutheran Church were married in unusual garb — Both wore white; she in full length satin gown and bonnet trimmed with daisies, and he in white tunic top and bell bottom trousers, a crown of daisies, beads and moccasins trimmed with bells. A folk rock outfit played for dancing and the church women gave the reception. A hillside ceremony in May followed by an old-fashioned picnic of fried chicken, homemade ice cream and bread under a huge old oak were features of Kathy Croughan's wedding to Joel August in Novato. Her father, the Rev. C. M. Croughan performed the rite.

VISITORS TO Marin shores included some well knowns — Mary Martin made Belvedere her home during the San Francisco run of "I Do, I Do;" Lynda Bird and Capt. Robb came to lunch on the deck of the Windjammer in Tiburon, surrounded by secret servicemen, ducking publicity, and finally agreeing to a photo. Princess Margaretha of Sweden (Mrs. John K. Ambler) went sailing with her husband aboard the Swedish Consul General's sloop in Sausalito. Actress Jeff Donnell stopped by the office for a few hours' chat, laughing that she is still often called Alice from the days of her wifely role on the George Gobel show. U.S. consumer champion Betty Furness came to Novato on a campaigning jaunt . . .

Many Marinites had interesting travels — The Ed Weeds and Jim Wilhites made the voyage across the Atlantic aboard a yacht following partially the route of Columbus. The Art Lindauers were hustled out of Panama from their canal cruise just as shooting broke out in Panama. Others voyaged around typhoons in the Pacific, reported vile weather and high adventure.

Martha DeKay, Terra Linda High senior, had a weekend at Hyannisport with Ethel Kennedy and family, as a guest of Joseph Kennedy III whom she had met on her return as an exchange student to Austria.

IT WAS ANOTHER booming year for women's groups—

The Sunny Hills Bargain Box formed an auxiliary group; Peter Pan Chapter of the Children's Home Society set up a bicycle registration program to help police locate missing bikes; Family Service League began its A.M. lecture series of nationally-known speakers; a mother and daughter headed different Belvedere Guilds of Sunny Hills — Mrs. Robert Sitkin and Kathy Sitkin, who led the junior guild; the Pathfinders initiated Monday lunches at Octagon House at Marin Art and Garden Center;

Animal Aid Association was organized as liaison between the Humane Society and the public; the Dental Auxiliary's Mrs. Stanley Schwebel saw her idea of College of Marin's dental assisting students going to Marin public schools to demonstrate tooth care put into practice; president of Ross Hospital Volunteers Mrs. Edwin R. Christie was appointed to the California Hospital Association subcommittee on mental health and statewide committee on volunteer services; Hawthorne Nursery School was opened as the fourth facility of the Belvedere Nursery School system; the Officers Wives Club cancelled the Hamilton Air Force Base debutante ball; Mrs. H. Nordmark Williams of Belvedere won a recognition award from the national Delta Gamma council; Mrs. Charles F. Lester coordinated formation of a Parents Club of the Sausalito School District.

MARIN ALPHA Phi alumnae gave a Resusci-Ann dummy to Marin General Hospital; through the Marin chapter, March of Dimes National Foundation a genetics evaluation and counseling clinic opened at Ross Hospital for Marin families; pre-schoolers from the YWCA creative play groups visited a Marin dairy ranch to see where milk really comes from; teen-agers Madelyn Angress and Pat Dahl took awards at the statewide Food Comes First for Youthpower conference for their food projects.

Women of the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church decided to quit talking and "do something" so they set up SWAP (Summer Workshop and Art Program) for low income family children as a means of improving community relations.

There was some frivolity . . . The Sausalito Woman's Club Jinks has some psychedelic goings on, the women's golf clubbers decked themselves out in various costumes for kooky tournaments and Belvedere Brownies decorated a Christmas tree for the birds.

AND WITH THE heavy, activist days of 1968 waning, it's time to welcome in the first year of the lunar age.

LAUNCHING THEIR gift shell in Marin waters for the first time, Dominican College crew planned to enter more competitions. . . . Previously the girls had to hold dawn practice at Lake Merritt in Oakland.

Portland School Attempts To Raise Standard Of Education For The Poor

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)— Alonzo is six, a bright boy with a winning smile and an eagerness to learn. He likes school but he rarely gets there on time.

"If he lived in your home or my home," said Dr. Harold A. Kleiner of the Portland public schools, "he would go to college and become a doctor or a lawyer or some other kind of professional person."

BUT ALONZO LIVES with his grandmother. A kindly woman who wants Alonzo to do well, she is almost totally uneducated and can give the little first grader no help at home to go with his schooling.

Her rundown home, just half a block from Humboldt School, doesn't even have a clock. Alonzo is often late because no one at home knows what time it is.

Humboldt is a model school — one of nine into which Portland is pouring all the resources and ideas at its command in an effort to help poor children reach the same educational level as their middle class counterparts.

THE FIRST STUDY of results shows "Gains that may warrant cautious optimism." In fact, according to the report, what began "as a program of compensatory education is becoming a program for the development of advanced educational systems."

This program, which Kleiner heads, attacks the learning problems of the "disadvantaged" from every possible angle right down to buying an alarm clock for Alonzo.

Incorporated into the model schools are teacher aides, National Teacher Corps interns, volunteer tutors—both adult and student—specialists in reading and speech, community aides, extra staffing by nurses, field trips, summer school classes, tutorial groups and constant evaluation of each child's progress.

IN ADDITION, there are arrangements for making sure children get glasses, dental care and clothing. Boy and Girl Scout troops, often missing in poverty areas, are encouraged.

Teachers add neatness and manners to the usual reading, writing and arithmetic.

To get more Negroes onto school staffs, as many aides as possible are recruited from the neighborhoods. Rated among the most successful by Herbert A. Hale, principal of Humboldt, is Kenneth Shepard, 18, who graduated from Jefferson High School here in June.

HALE IS HELPING with plans for Shepard to go to college and eventually become a full time teacher.

Although many Humboldt children know him as "Ken," a neighbor, at school he is "Mr. Shepard." Hale said, "He can really get through to some of these youngsters, especially the boys."

GETTING THROUGH to the youngsters is the key to the whole program. There are some instances of success.

Hale cited one boy, considered four years ago to be mentally retarded. Today, in the fifth grade, he is one of the better readers in his class. His assigned work is done quickly and correctly.

Another measure of the success of the program is student behavior. Before the program began three years ago, Hale acknowledged, "There were always some students who couldn't make the adjustment," and so became behavior problems and had to be suspended.

It has been a year and a half since he suspended any student.

KLEINER DESCRIBED the entire model schools program as one of filling a gap.

He sketched two lines several inches apart. Indicating one line, he said, "Everybody starts here." Pointing to the other line, he added, "Everybody must reach here if he is to become at minimum a responsible, jobholding citizen and raise a family."

HE DREW a series of blocks between the lines to represent the contributions of home, community and church to the growth of children. The blocks for the middle class child stretched three-fourths of the way between the lines. The blocks for the child of poverty reached only half as far.

HE DREW TWO final blocks, each the same size, to represent the contribution of the school. For the middle class child the "school" block filled in the space between the others and the "finish" line.

But for the poverty child there remained a large gap.

"Now we're trying to fill in the gap with the school," he said. "Can we?"

He answered his own question with a shake of the head.

HE'S AMAZED

Bagley Is Tops On Expense List

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, apparently cost taxpyers more than any other Assemblyman during 1968.

Bagley, according to nearly completed salary and expense records in the office of Controller Houston I. Flournoy, has been paid $23,132. The average legislator was paid $20,000 in salary and expenses, Flournoy's office reported.

Marin's other state legislator, Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, was paid $20,486, including $585 to go on a legislative junket earlier this month to Hawaii.

Flournoy's office noted that its figures were almost complete totals, but that some claims for expenses still will come in during the next month.

The lowest payments were $19,614 in the Assembly and $18,955 in the Senate.

Bagley was topped only by Sen. James Q. Wedworth, D-Inglewood, who was paid $53 more.

Leland B. Artz, chief of Flournoy's legislative accounting office, noted that the disparity between sums, often reflects the lawmaker's position.

Bagley, for example, is chairman of the Assembly Judiciary Committee and travels between legislative sessions for hearings by his committee throughout the state, said Artz.

Bagley told the Independent-Journal his expenses were higher than usual because he made two trips East during the year, one to represent the Legislature at the funeral of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and one to Washington to meet with consultants to his committee who are studying reform of court procedures.

Bagley conceded he was "amazed" to find his expenses higher than those of the average legislator.

Each legislator is paid an annual salary of $16,000, plus $25 a day for expenses while he is on legislative business. Also, each is paid his air fare to travel outside the state, the amount of his hotel bill and $12.50 a day for meals.

Finally, each legislator is entitled to drive a car leased by the state, with no ceiling on his use of an oil company credit card. He is paid 15 cents a mile if he drives his own car.

McCarthy Will Introduce Plan To Cut North's Highway Funds

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A bill that would deny Northern California some $40 million a year in highway funds will be introduced in the 1969 Legislature by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

"It's incumbent on us of the north to do this," McCarthy told the Independent-Journal when asked why he would change Southern California's share of highway funds from 55 to 60 per cent.

"We need to give this concession," he said without further elaboration.

Northern California legislators long have resisted a change in the sharing of highway funds, which will reach almost $800 million this coming fiscal year.

However, the north's opposition is weaker each year because the Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" edict has increased the number of Southern California representatives in the Legislature.

The new Legislature convenes a week from Monday.

Northern California legislators, faced in past years with the argument that about 60 per cent of the state's population lived in the 13 southern counties, have countered by pointing out that 56 per cent of the mileage in state highways is in the northern counties.

McCarthy predicted that Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, chairman of the powerful Senate Transportation Committee, "will go for it this time." Collier's opposition in the past has been a major factor in killing proposals to change the sharing formula.

The present formula has been in effect since the 1930s, when it was changed from a 50-50 formula.

In a related proposal, McCarthy, noting his legislative program still was indefinite, said he may introduce legislation to increase the state's excise tax on gasoline from seven to eight or nine cents per gallon.

This additional revenue would be reserved to build county and state highways not part of the interstate system, said McCarthy.

He had no estimate of how much additional revenue a one or two cent raise in rate would raise.

The present price per gallon also includes four cents federal tax.

Collier also has suggested in recent months that he may seek to increase the state excise tax on gasoline by two cents per gallon.

Asked if he saw legislative support for using some gas tax revenues for public transit, McCarthy said representatives of several major gas companies had told him they would support such a proposal.

SEN. JOHN F. McCARTHY
A $40 million proposal

Collier has strongly opposed use of any gas tax funds for public transit.

Another bill McCarthy said he will introduce would be a second try for passage of his 1968 bill to require consideration of recreation facilities in all flood control and water projects.

Gov. Ronald Reagan, even though the bill did not make provision of such facilities mandatory, vetoed it on the ground that it could cost the state money that should be raised locally.

McCarthy predicted the bill will pass this year, adding this time he will lobby the governor to ensure his support.

McCarthy backed off somewhat from his October press statement that he was preparing legislation to empower police to round up hippies and lock them in hospitals "for medical care."

To do this, he said in October, he would seek amendments of both the California and United States constitutions.

Now, however, he said he favored only mandatory treatment of persons with communicable diseases who refuse to be treated voluntarily. He said he had not yet figured out how such legislation would be written.

On the subject of regional government in the Bay Area, certain to be proposed in the coming session, McCarthy said he had heard "a great deal of mixed emotions" on whether formation of a regional government was desirable.

Many persons in the Napa and Solano county portions of his district, he noted, "want to keep things as they are."

McCarthy said he had not read the proposal for regional government made early this month by Joint Committee on Bay Area Regional Organization. McCarthy, one of the eight legislators on the committee, said he could not comment on the proposal until he had studied it.

The committee is to vote sometime next month on the proposal.

McCarthy noted he still favored his seven-year-old proposal that the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District be replaced with a Golden Gate Authority that would run all bridges, airports and highways in the Bay Area.

Most of all, he stressed, he wanted no more studies of the subject of regional government. "I'm so sick and tired of all these studies," he declared.

Another bill McCarthy said he would introduce would provide that supervisorial elections be held with the November general election whenever there were only two candidates. This proposal was made recently by Second District Supervisor-elect Peter Arrigoni Jr., who unseated Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhofen in the June primary.

Arrigoni and Kettenhofen agreed the proposal would eliminate the long "lame duck" period of a supervisor who lost in June, but who remained in office until the end of the year.

McCarthy noted that his legislative program, as in past years, will draw heavily from suggestions by the three boards of supervisors in his district. The Marin board will adopt its legislative program next month.

Other bills being considered for introduction by McCarthy include those creating a Joint Committee on Education of Drug Abuses and lowering from age 5 to age 3 training for mentally retarded children.

The drug committee would develop a required course for schools to educate teachers and students about the dangers of drug use.

McCarthy, in his interview with the Independent-Journal, at first said he would introduce a bill lowering the voting age to 18, but later said he would only vote again for such a bill if one were introduced.

McCarthy introduced 36 bills in the 1968 Legislature, of which 14 were signed into law.

Friendly Warning, No Goodbye Open Czech Family Freedom Try

By MARY LEYDECKER

A warning from a friendly officer, a few clothes thrown into the family car and no goodbyes.

This, in brief, is the story of the successful escape from Czechoslovakia by a Czech scientist and his family who had been trying to leave for years.

Mr. and Mrs. Josef Chrastil and their daughters, Nelly, 15, and Simona, 8, who are staying with friends in Terra Linda, described what life was like behind the Iron Curtain.

"Freedom is a possibility here," Chrastil said simply about the United States.

Although Chrastil is a scientist and has spent his life in research, not politics, he found it impossible to avoid the ire of the Communists.

Surprisingly, however, Chrastil explained that "it's better now" in describing the situation in his country since a liberal regime brought the Russians down hard on Czechoslovakia.

"Before, the Czechs were suspicious of each other — now, everyone is united against the Russians," he said.

Only about 15 per cent of the Czechs belong to the Communist Party, Chrastil said, and since World War II this small group has run the country.

Last January the Dubcek government came into power and began to make many reforms, and "for a little while we thought we could have freedom," Chrastil said.

When the Russians, angered at the possibility of losing political control as well as valuable industries in Czechoslovakia, sent 500,000 troops into the tiny country in August, the honeymoon ended.

Although the Czechs did not fight the Russians except in a few isolated instances, there has been a passive resistance, Chrastil said, with "99 per cent of the Czechs against the Russians."

Chrastil soon found himself back in the same situation he had faced for years — a non-Communist scientist in a Communist country.

Chrastil's own story goes back a number of years to the time when he was working at the Academy of Sciences, a government research institution, in Prague. Chrastil, who holds a Ph.D. in chemistry, was engaged in bio-chemical research at the academy but became unpopular because he was not a party member.

In 1957 he and his wife decided to try to escape, leaving Nelly, who was only four then, behind with relatives in hopes of getting her out later. They obtained a visa to go to Italy and set off on a train, but at the border the train was searched and police found chemical research papers that Chrastil was carrying.

After this incident, the Chrastils spent a year in prison, part of the time in a concentration camp. After they got out of prison, he could no longer work at the academy; so he found a job in the small town of Trutnov, where there is a large textile industry.

For the past few years the scientist has done research with dyes and plastics and other textile matters, all the time hoping to escape from Czechoslovakia to Germany or the United States.

"Then for a few months last year, we all hoped," Chrastil said with a faint smile. Under Dubcek, trade was increased with the west, censorship of newspapers was lifted, political persecutions ceased and many restrictions were lifted.

"We could actually read what was going on in Czech newspapers," Chrastil said.

This all ended, and Chrastil was in danger again.

A friend who is a police officer said to him, "Go now."

"We didn't even say goodbye to our parents or friends," Chrastil said. The family had a four-day visa to Austria and, pretending to take a vacation, put only enough clothes for a short stay into their car.

They didn't bring any valuables with them, not wanting to give away the fact they were not returning. Chrastil laughed when asked if they brought any money out of Czechoslovakia. "Czech money is worthless anyway," he said.

In Vienna, the Chrastils contacted their old friend, George Dolesal of Terra Linda. Dolesal and Chrastil were boyhood friends and they had seen each other again last year when Dolesal went back to Czechoslovakia after his father died.

Dolesal, who has been in this country for 15 years and lives with his Swiss-born wife at 581 Woodbine Drive, agreed to sponsor the Chrastils' immigration to the United States. The family flew here in November on a plane sponsored by the International Rescue Committee.

What are the plans for the future?

"First, is a job," Chrastil said. He has been looking for a chemical research position but without success so far. "Maybe there is nothing in the Bay Area," he said.

The scientist, who speaks six languages, communicates well in English, a language he learned from a Mexican-American who stayed with his family during World War II.

"After I find a job, other problems are nothing," he said.

Mrs. Chrastil, a shy brunette, speaks only a few words of English, but the girls are beginning to learn.

Nelly, the 15-year-old, has been going to Terra Linda High School for about two weeks. "She was horrified by the lack of discipline," Mrs. Dolesal said.

The girl had completed high school in Czechoslovakia and finds such subjects as algebra very easy but wants to learn English before going on to college.

Although the family is worried about Chrastil finding a job, they all managed smiles as they gathered around a Christmas tree in the Dolesals' pleasant home.

"Democracy is possible here," Chrastil repeated.

Baar's Council Seat May Remain Empty Until April

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The vacancy on the San Rafael City Council which will be created by resignation of Louis H. Baar may go unfilled until the April 15 municipal election.

This would be possible under a change in the city charter which was approved by the voters last year. The period for filling a council vacancy, formerly 20 days, was extended to 60 days. And in place of the appointive power going to the board of education if the council failed to act within the prescribed period, the change calls for a special election if the 60 days expires without an appointment.

Baar, who gave his "swan song" speech at the Dec. 16 council meeting, has not yet submitted his resignation, and has indicated he intends to resign as of Dec. 31 — just in time to begin his term on the county board of supervisors.

This would give the council until March 1 to select a successor. The mechanics of setting up a special election after that date would make it impossible to hold the election before April 15, so there would then be no vacancy.

The possibility of the seat remaining vacant until April arises because of the large field of applicants. Nine men have applied for the appointment. Several of them have indicated they plan to run in April whether or not they get the interim post.

Baar's term and that of Councilman Harry A. Barbier both expire in April, along with the two-year term of Mayor C. Paul Bettini.

So far, there has been no formal discussion by the council regarding Baar's successor, pending receipt of his resignation. But there appears to be no unanimity for any of the nine candidates.

Councilman Fred Jensen has suggested that, if unanimous agreement on an appointee seems unlikely, the seat be left vacant until the April 15 vote.

Seeking the appointment are three members of the planning commission, three who were council candidates two years ago, and three others.

Planning commissioners in the running are chairman Frederick C. Robbins Jr., an attorney; Joseph J. Garbarino, a proprietor of Marin Sanitary Service, and John J. Adams, a San Francisco auto sales executive.

Candidates from two years ago who seek the appointment area Joseph D. Dahlman, attorney; Gene F. O'Connor, insurance broker, and Orlando Conti, retired plumbing contractor and former planning commissioner. O'Connor has not filed a letter of application, but has applied verbally.

Other aspirants are William J. Wider, retired Pacific Telephone Co. official; Richard A. Clarke, attorney, and James Dougan, insurance man. Dougan has indicated he would be interested in a planning commission appointment in lieu of that to the council.

Apparent front runner is Robbins, reportedly favored by Mayor Bettini and Councilman Barbier. Jensen has said he would be willing to appoint Robbins if the other three councilmen favor him. Councilman John A. Miskimen has made no commitment.

Adams has announced he plans to run in April regardless of whether he receives the interim appointment. Dahlman, Conti and Garbarino also are expected to be April candidates, with some of the others possibly entering that race regardless of whether they win interim appointment. Filing for the April election will open Jan. 30.

Drug Charge Case In Court

Melvin W. Hing, 28, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a felony charge of possession of marijuana and possession of methamphetamine. Plea entries were scheduled for 2 p.m. Jan. 13.

Wing, of Montague, Siskiyou County, and two companions, Jill L. Williams, 19, of 2141 Center Road, Novato, and Jeffrey J. Morse, 22, San Francisco, were arrested after Novato police halted them Wednesday for making an illegal U turn in the 2300 block of Center Road, officers said.

Miss Williams and Morse are charged with being under the influence of marijuana.

Camera Is Stolen

Victor M. Koweell of 320 Via Casitas, Greenbrae, last night told San Rafael police that someone took a $150 camera from his car parked in a vacant lot at Fourth and Ida streets. The burglar apparently used a key or a prying instrument to enter the locked car, police said.

Unions Bicker Over Airline Representation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks (BRAC) is charging the Teamsters Union with "forged, fraudulent and misleading" propaganda as the two unions battle to represent employees of Pan American World Airways.

Walter R. Williamson, director of the air transit division for the AFL-CIO, yesterday asked the National Mediation Board to impound all employees' ballots in the collective bargaining election until the charges are investigated.

Employees of the airways have been voting since November to choose either BRAC, the Teamsters, or no union at all.

Williamson charged that letters sent by an unnamed source carried a forged signature of the BRAC president and advised Pan Am employees that they could best help the union by not voting in the election. He said this position was opposite of BRAC's stand.

Two previous collective bargaining elections at Pan Am have been ruled invalid because of unfair election practices.

Among Pan Am employees involved in the election are those working in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

State Surrenders On Serra Route

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A five-year fight over routing of a 4.2-mile strip of the proposed Junipero Serra freeway has ended.

The State Highway Commission will go along with the city's insistence on a ridge route, chairman Vernon J. Christina announced yesterday.

State engineers originally proposed the freeway section along the Crystal Springs reservoir, which holds San Francisco's water supply.

City officials feared possible contamination, especially from highway runoff water.

They proposed the longer, more expensive route curving further from the reservoir through foothill ridges.

Judge Holds Up San Francisco Renewal Project

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A preliminary injunction was issued yesterday by U.S. Judge William T. Sweigert against removal of persons from buildings slated to be dismantled for replacement in the Western Addition.

The action stopped the flow of federal funds for the extensive redevelopment program.

M. Justin Herman, executive director of the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency, said: "If this injunction goes on for, say, six months, then we are completely out of business."

Earlier, Sweigert had issued a memorandum saying persons living in the Western Addition A2 redevelopment area had a right to court review of relocation plants.

The memorandum was a response to a suit filed by the Western Addition Community Organization.

PLEASANTON (AP)—A truck carrying 22 tons of bombs was stuck in the mud for two hours last night, causing rerouting of traffic on U.S. 580.

The bombs, which were not fused, belonged to the Army and were headed for Port Chicago, the depot for munitions bound for Vietnam.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Contact Sensitivity To Many Substances May Cause Blisters

VAN DELLEN

Many individuals develop miniature blisters on the hands varying in size from a pinpoint to a B-B shot. Fungal and yeast infections used to be blamed for these outbreaks, but now we know there are many causes ranging from sensitivity to the plastic material in a steering wheel to ringworm infection of the toes.

IN SOME INSTANCES, the origin is obvious; in others, months elapse before the culprit is found.

During this time the lesions may come and go, but their location, timing, and intensity are influenced by many factors, including friction, climate, psyche, and stigmas (spots or impressions on the skin).

This type of dermatitis may be an allergic manifestation, called "an Id reaction." Hand involvement may represent a sensitivity reaction to an infection elsewhere in the body. It follows not only athlete's foot of the lower extremities, but bacterial infections, especially in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, cervix, or prostate.

Unless the original source is removed, the lesions will remain on the hands.

DURING THE summertime, the blisters may be due to blocked sweat ducts, with retention of fluid. The condition is related to prickly heat. It is aggravated by warmth, emotional stress, and stimulants such as coffee, spices, and alcohol.

Tiny vesicles on the hands may be due to contact dermatitis; the individual touches a substance to which he is sensitive.

Poison ivy is the prime example, but formaldehyde or turpentine is capable of producing a similar outbreak. There are so many other irritants it is not always easy to pinpoint the specific offender.

CLEWS ARE OBTAINED from the victim's occupation and the site of the blisters.

Paints, solvents, metals, and plastics are suspected in those who work with these substances. Colored chalk is supected when the teacher is bothered; whereas hair tonics may be causative in barbers.

Dentists may react to novocain. There is no end to the contactants for the housewife — she handles everything from disinfectants to onions.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

THYROID, CHOLESTEROL

L. H. writes: A serum test showed a blood cholesterol of 261 and my doctor prescribed thyroid extract for me. What is the connection between cholesterol and the thyroid gland?

REPLY

Low thyroid activity is associated with an elevated blood cholesterol; and overactivity of the gland with a decreased cholesterol.

VASOCONSTRICTORS

E. E. writes: What are vasoconstricting drugs?

REPLY

Vasoconstrictors are drugs that cause constriction or narrowing of the blood vessels. Examples of these agents are ephedrine, Neo-Synephrine, or Triaminic preparations. Many elevate blood pressure, quicken the pulse, and relieve congestion (as in the nasal passageways or bronchial tree.)

TWO FLU SHOTS

M. T. writes: Is it safe to take the first flu vaccine shot from one doctor and the second from another?

REPLY

Yes, provided the dosage is known. The vaccine is the same.

HIGH FEVER IN CHILDREN

Mrs. H. writes: How high can the temperature go in a child before it becomes dangerous?

REPLY

It is not the height of the fever but the cause that is significant. Children with infections usually run higher temperatures than do adults. But any youngster who has a temperature in excess of 104 degrees for 24 hours or longer should be seen by a physician.

PAINFUL EYEBALLS

A reader writes: What causes painful eyeballs that are tender when I put my hands over them?

REPLY

When the eyeballs are overly sensitive to the touch, inflammation or glaucome is suspected. Bring this to the attention of your opthalmologist.

VITAMINS IN MILK

G. O. writes: Does skim milk contain vitamins?

REPLY

Yes. When the cream is separated from fortified whole milk, the vitamins and other nutrients remain. Only the fat is removed.

SISTERS CRAVE FRECKLES

E. A. writes: My sister and I have been bothered by this problem for some time. Is there any way of getting freckles by using certain sun oils or a home remedy? We love freckles and want some on our cheeks. Please answer because we are very anxious to try whatever you recommend.

REPLY

I have nothing to recommend except cosmetics containing dyes that could be daubed on your face. It is difficult to overcome heredity. People either are born with skin that freckles or the type that does not freckle.

STRETCH MARKS

A reader writes: What causes stretch marks and is there any way to get rid of them?

REPLY

These marks, called striae, are difficult to eradicate because they usually occur after the skin has been stretched because of pregnancy or obesity. The marks represent scar tissue.

AIRBORNE TUBERCULOSIS

W. E. writes: Can tuberculosis be picked up on a bus?

REPLY

Yes. Tuberculosis is transmitted largely via airborne droplets. These are sprayed out when an infected individual sneezes, coughs, talks, or even exhales while sitting or standing in a bus.

Today's Health Hint — Croupy coughs should not be neglected.

CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF NOVATO
RESOLUTION NO. 86-68
RESOLUTION GIVING NOTICE OF PROPOSED ANNEXATION TO THE CITY OF NOVATO OF UNINHABITED TERRITORY DESCRIBED HEREIN AND DESIGNATED HIGHWAY 37 ANNEXATION NO. 2 AND GIVING NOTICE OF TIME AND PLACE FOR HEARING OF PROTESTS THERETO.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF NOVATO:

1. That it has come to the attention of the City Council of the City of Novato, and this Council finds, that it would be for the best interests of said City and of the residents of the contiguous area herein described to alter the boundaries of said City by annexing thereto and incorporating therein as a part thereof under the provisions of the annexation of Uninhabited Territory Act of 1939, as amended, certain property situated in the County of Marin, State of California, hereby designated Highway 37 Annexation No. 2, and described in Exhibit "A" attached hereto and made a part hereof.

2. The reasons why the City of Novato desires said annexation are as follows:

(a) Said territory because of its location and other features should be governed in its development by the same zoning and planning regulations which govern territory within the City of Novato.

(b) Because of its location, said territory will receive the benefit of and should therefore participate in supporting the municipal services of said city.

3. The City of Novato has heretofore filed with the Local Agency Annexation Commission of Marin County, a notice of intention to annex the territory more particularly described in Exhibit "A". Said notice contained the specific boundaries of the territory proposed to be annexed. The description of said territory was submitted to the Marin County Boundary Commission, and the attached description is in accordance with the report of said Commission. Thereafter, the Local Agency Annexation Commission of Marin County after public hearing did approve said proposed annexation.

4. That Tuesday, January 28, 1969, at the hour of 8:00 o'clock P.M., in the Council Chambers, Novato Community House, in the City of Novato, County of Marin, California, is hereby fixed as the time and place when and where any person owning real property within the uninhabited territory above described and proposed to be annexed to the City of Novato, and having any objections to the proposed annexation, may appear before the Council of the City of Novato and show cause why such uninhabited territory should not be so annexed to the City of Novato. The protest must be in writing, may be filed at any time before the hour set for hearing objections to the proposed annexation, and shall state the name or names of the owner or owners of property affected and the description and area of such property, in general terms.

5. The City Clerk of the City of Novato is hereby authorized and directed to cause a copy of this resolution to be published at least twice, but not oftener than once a week, in the Novato Advance, a newspaper of general circulation published in said City of Novato and in the Independent-Journal, a newspaper of general circulation published in the County of Marin, said publication to be complete at least twenty (20) days prior to the date set for hearing.

6. The City Clerk is directed to cause written notice to be given to such other persons as may be legally entitled thereto, in the manner required by law.

Time For U. S. To Lay Down Terms To Ky

It is difficult to guess what kind of negotiating may go on in Paris among the United States and the two Vietnams, if they ever get down to negotiating. So far, the performances of Hanoi and Saigon have been in a class to be matched for silliness only by the Black Students Union and the Students for a Democratic Society.

Eventually, though, there must be an end to the fighting. And if the Paris talks get nowhere, the formula must be found in Washington. It seems abundantly evident there will be no help from Saigon.

There has been a long period of virtual silence over our role in Vietnam, ever since the party primaries of last summer. Both candidates, Richard M. Nixon and Hubert H. Humphrey, vowed the war must end. Neither was specific about how this should be accomplished. Both had an excuse for not being specific: the Paris talks initiated by President Johnson.

BUT THERE S NO point in just sitting and waiting to see whether anything happens in Paris. We should be formulating our course in case nothing happens there — which seems highly possible, and perhaps probable.

It is encouraging, therefore, that one of the more clear-headed pre-primary critics of our Vietnam policy has broken the politics-imposed silence to speak out again for some action by the United States to end the stalemated war.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, who was a late-blooming entry in the Democratic presidential sweepstakes but was a Vietnam critic long before that, has voiced a "dump Ky" proposal.

"While Ky is playing around in the plush spots of Paris and haggling over whether he is going to sit at a round table or a rectangular table, American men are dying to prop up his corrupt regime back home," McGovern declared.

"Haven't we had enough of this little tinhorn dictator who wastes American tax funds in Paris and American blood in Vietnam? . . .

"Let us, in the name of humanity and common sense, stop the killing and tell General Ky that if he wants the war to continue, he is welcome to give up his plush accommodations in Paris and go back to take charge of his troops, but without the help of any more American blood and treasure."

THAT IS PRETTY strong talk. But we expect it is the kind of talk that Nguyen Cao Ky could readily understand if it did not lose too much in the translation. And we expect it is about the only kind of talk that might have an effect on him.

Sometimes the United States seems determined to make itself ridiculous, and to waste its wealth and its manpower in doing so.

We have proved we are ready to help bring the war to a conclusion. We have proved we are willing to try to find a meeting ground for the two Vietnams — the two parties to the war into which we intervened for reasons that become more cloudy as time goes on.

IT IS TIME we let both of them know that, since we hold the power, we propose to lay down some terms. Then if they will not accept those terms, the blood is on their hands, not ours.

And it is time we began to thresh those terms out in our own national capitol, not waiting on a pair of "tinhorn dictators" at a round, square, oblong or hexagonal table in Paris.

The Split Driving Personality

Sometimes we have observed friends or relatives, who are seemingly sane, normal humans, becoming veritable maniacs behind the wheels of cars on Marin's clogged traffic arteries.

Somewhere in the cerebral cortex there may be a cubic millimeter of cells which constantly proclaim "I am a born racing-car driver and I can weave in and out of the fabric of traffic like a needle in the hand of a skilled tailor; I can out-accelerate, outmaneuver and out-run anything on the road; and if this is not so, I will turn in my Volkswagen."

Luckily, most of us also have a pinhead of cerebral cells, which says, "I am a human being with human limitations and if I drive my garden-variety car like a racing car, I am courting disaster." But, unfortunately, not everyone has this balancing knot of brain flesh.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Court Ruling Extends Protection To Employee Driving To Work

By HENRY MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — An entirely new concept of protection for workers covered by workmen's compensation may result from a recent state Supreme Court decision involving use of a private automobile driving to and from employment.

The supreme court ruled that the Workmen's Compsenation Act covers an employee who lost his life when driving his car to his job pursuant to the employer's requirement that the employee furnish his own car.

The court, in a 4-to-3 decision, overturned a 1934 case which held that even though his job called for the use of a motorcycle, the employee did not get the protection of workmen's compensation because he was only "going or coming" to his place of employment.

IN THE CURRENT case, a social worker for the County of Ventura was involved. The worker was injured in December, 1965, en route from home to office, where he was required to report each morning before using his car to visit welfare clients during the day. He died from the injuries.

In reversing an order of the Workmen's Compensation Board, which denied compensation because the death did not arise out of employment, the court held that "the so-called going and coming rule" does not bar coverage.

The opinion said in part:

"When the employer requires that the employee engage in conduct, whether prior to the work day, or after it, whether on the premises of that employer, or away from them, the inurs to the benefit of the employer, the employer cannot claim immunity.

"The employment relationship can hardly be severed during the performance of an act required by the employer for his own purposes and advantage.

"In the instant case, the employer clearly benefitted from the employee bringing his own car to work."

THE MAJORITY said further:

"Surely in this day of a highly motorized society, we cannot cast the going and coming rule as a protective cloak over the shoulders of the employer, who for his own advantage, demands that the employee furnish the car on the job."

The court's new ruling makes it incumbent for an employer to have specific understandings with the employees whom he requires to drive his own automobile in the course of employment.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Almighty Taxpayers Penurious To Schools

This letter is written in response to your editorial of Saturday, Dec. 4.

I'll admit there is some substance to your implication that some people voted against school bonds because of the violent activities of a few students and even because of the demands of a larger number which seemed unreasonable from their point of view.

You might have reminded these almighty taxpayers of the parable of Sodom and Gomorrah in which the Lord promised to spare the city if Lot could find just 10 good men within the city? What arrogance on their part to say that if there are a few bad students, the institutions are not worthy of being saved!

Are you not guilty of playing both extremes against the increasingly effective students in the middle who wish to change the establishment to meet the needs of their generation and those of their children? Don't you want this awakening of political and social awareness which is happening on our campuses? Can you dispute the following statements?

(1) A large majority did vote in favor of our bonds but a small minority (less than 35 per cent in the case of the Tam District) ruled against the majority's wishes.

(2) These same people would very likely have voted against any other tax increase if they could have had a voice in the matter.

(3) Never have we had so much "buying power" left over after taxes and necessities (especially in Marin County).

(4) Never have we been so penurious toward the education of our youth on whom our future depends. The per capita income for the State of California spent on education has been decreasing, not increasing. As compared to six cents on the dollar spent on education in the '30s we now spend about one cent per capita income. And our child population ratio is considerably higher!

(Editor's note: According to the U.S. Office of Education, expenditures for public elementary and secondary education (not including college education) in California in 1966 amounted to 5.81 per cent of total personal income. This was the seventh highest percentage in the United States. Highest was New Mexico, which spent 7.61 per cent of total personal income on elementary and secondary education. These are the latest reliable figures that are available.)

Anyhow, It Was Guy With Same Name

Nixon's appointment of Will Rogers as secretary of state was a sheer stroke of genius. As is well know, Will said, "We never lost a war and never won a peace conference."

As for Nixon himself, you've got to admire a guy who can pick himself off the floor twice and still win the championship.

Bible Remains Best Authority

Your excellent Dec. 17 editorial entitled "To Restore Responsibility, Bring Back Woodshed" is worthy of favorable comment.

The Bible says, "He that spareth his rod hateth his son, but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes." (Proverbs 13:24) — and "Withhold not correction from the child, for if thou beat him with the rod, he shall not die." (Proverbs 23:13).

The Bible is still the best text book in child-rearing (Dr. Spock — please take notice!) and is still apropos in this so phisticated, God-rejecting and lawless age. Let's return to its precepts and authority. This is the solution to our social, economic and educational problems.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

The application blank for a new driver's license included this question: "Have you ever been arrested?" The applicant wrote, "No." The following question read, "Why not?" The applicant answered, "They never caught me."

A UCLA graduate produced the following classic poem of his own: "Rose's are red: Viloet's are blue. They both were miniskirts — and that's how I knew!

Referring to a notoriously stingy city editor, a Manhattan reporter told the staff, "The old so-and-so's announced his engagement, but met with an unfortunate accident while buying his girl a ring. He got his fingers crushed between two pushcarts."

WASHINGTON WINDOW

Don't Expect Speed From New Congress

By ROY McGHEE

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Barring a world crisis that would require hurry-up congressional action to safeguard the nation, the 91st Congress convening Jan. 3 will get moving with the speed of a lame tortoise.

"We will meet the statutory requirement and be through here by July 1," some of the leaders will pronounce. "We'll be out of here by Labor Day at the latest," others will predict. They will be sincere as ever —and quite probably just as wrong.

If things follow the form charts, Congress will quickly settle down to two or three months of inertia.

IT REALLY is not anybody's fault that very little of substance will get done in the opening weeks of the session. It's just the nature of the national legislature.

First, there is the matter of organization.

The House must completely reorganize itself. There will be a period of adjusting (although slight) to the shifts in party strength and new members.

Committee assignments will be made, and the committees themselves will hold organizational meetings. These actually are little more than sessions to install formally on the basis of seniority chairman of the committees and the subcommittees.

The Senate also will undertake organizational chores, but with far fewer members, they are not so arduous. Furthermore, the Senate considers itself a "continuing body" since only one third of its members are elected each two years, while all House seats are up for election biennially.

AND WHILE the sheer size of the House (435 members) will contribute to its inertia, it is the "continuing body" concept that is likely once again to tie up the Senate in a time-consuming rules battle.

In question is rule 22 —the one covering filibusters. It says that in order to cut off debate, two-thirds of those senators present and voting must agree.

Many liberals favor changing the rule so that debate can be ended by a majority somewhat less than two-thirds, possibly by a simple majority.

The conservatives generally want to keep the rule the way it is. They argue such a rule is necessary to keep rights of minorities from being trampled by majorities.

Liberals contend that in practice, the rule has worked in reverse — that it has prevented ninorities from securing their rights —especially, in recent years, civil rights.

UNDER the "continuing body" concept, the conservatives say, the Senate rules continue from one Congress to another. Thus, they are able to use the filibuster itself to block a change in the rules, a two-thirds majority being required for consent to bring such a change to a vote.

The liberals argue that the Senate at the beginning of each new Congress should be able to adopt new rules, unbound by the old rules, and that the new rules should reflect the will of a numerical majority only.

They have never won the fight, although they gained a little ground in 1959 when they succeeded in reducing the figure to two-thirds of those present and voting from a "constitutional," or outright numerical two-thirds of the Senate membership.

THE PROSPECTS are the liberals will once again mount a fight against Rule 22, and the prospects also are they will be no more successful than in past years.

But the fight may take weeks before it is settled.

Pragmatists say "so what?" since there will be little else the lawmakers can do anyway until the new President shapes his legislative program and gets it to Capitol Hill.

Nixon Statements Hint New Arms Race Speedup

WASHINGTON — In a recent private talk, President-elect Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Henry M. Jackson agreed that top priority in U.S. policy must go to maintaining strategic forces strong enough to deter military adventures by Russia and her allies.

The senator, although he is a Democrat, was Nixon's first choice to be secretary of defense. It is therefore not surprising that they were generally agreed, in their 45-minute conversation in New York, on the need for a stronger deterrent force.

The point is open to very serious disagreement, however, as events will demonstrate in coming months. The question, "how strong is strong enough?" is already provoking controversy, and it promises to generate a Great Debate in Congress after the House and Senate reconvene next month.

EVEN AFTER cuts totaling more than $5 billion, the defense bill passed by Congress in October carried $71.9 billion and was the largest appropriation in history. It provoked complaints from some lawmakers that defense outlays leave little room for aid to education, welfare programs and other national needs.

Two unsuccessful Democratic presidential aspirants, Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., and George McGovern, D-S.D., have been talking, since the election, of cuts in defense spending. Both warn of the pervasive threat of the military-industrial complex of which President Eisenhower spoke before he left the White House.

On the other hand, Sen. Richard B. Long, D-Ga., says defense spending must now increase. Long the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Russell moves over this year to head the powerful appropriations committee.

"Within a year," said candidate Nixon in a television speech, "the Soviet Union will catch the United States and, if we don't get a change of leadership and policy in Washington, will pass us in deliverable nuclear capability."

PRESIDENT-ELECT Nixon, recalling the "unquestioned" nuclear superiority of the Eisenhower years, sees the shifting power balance as a handicap for efforts of his new administration at defusing world trouble spots by negotiation.

Pentagon authorities dispute Nixon's campaign charge that "we have a gravely serious security gap." They too are concerned, however, about the Russians increasing strategic potential.

In the size of the lie there is always contained a certain factor of credibility, since the great masses of the people . . . will more easily fall victim to a great lie than to a small one. — Adolf Hitler.

How To End Missile Base Fuss: Put It On Farallon Islands

No one has seriously suggested it yet, perhaps because it is too simple and rational — why not put the anti-missile base on the Farallon Islands.

It would solve the arguments against putting the sentinel site on Wolfback Ridge or Angel Island, which center around other plans for the land — state parks or high-priced houses.

It would also answer the most serious strategic criticism of the anti-missile concept: That the base is too close to the bay area to prevent a hydrogen holocaust from incoming Chinese missiles. From the Farallones, a Sprint missile with its 30-mile range would have another 26 miles head start, which might save a few hundred thousand casualties when the time came.

The Army properly will object that construction on the Farallones would cost too much. Certainly it does cost a lot to ship building supplies 26 miles over water.

But balance that against the cost of buying Wolfback Ridge or Angel Island, and the cost of permanently losing either of those areas for public use. The government already owns the Farallones, and there are no neighbors to complain about noise, smoke, or visiting soldiers in the local taverns.

NEWSPAPERS, including this one, have thrown around a lot of high level numbers about the "value" of marijuana or dope seized in narcotics raids. The numbers are highly variable depending apparently on who announces the seizure.

The difficulty is that dope sales are one area where the old free market still operates. The seller can charge any price he can get, and "market value" fluctuates as new shipments arrive from Mexico or county and state "narks" raid a stash and cut the supply.

In general, according to lawmen, the price of marijuana in Marin has roughly doubled in the past year, since formation of the county narcotics abuse bureau. Part of the boost is probably due to the bureau's success in confiscating sizeable quantities of the weed.

IN APPROXIMATE figures, these are current average prices for marijuana, according to Sausalito Police Chief Edward S. Kreins:

A one-kilogram brick or "key," sells for about $125 (another source says $100 to $200 depending on quality). This is some 35 ounces of grass.

By the lid, or one-ounce package, marijuana sells for approximately $15. (This brings the price up to $525 a key, a 400 per cent profit and a quick explanation of why so many people are in the grass-selling business).

A single cigarette, or joint, once sold for 50 cents or less but today is more likely to cost a dollar. This is a further boost from the $15 an ounce price.

When a narcotics man talks of marijuana's market value he may be talking about prices in keys, lids or joints, and the value varies accordingly.

For everyday purposes, the price of $125 per kilo is approximately accurate. The next time you read of a million-dollar haul, figure it out on that basis and set your own value. And remember, inflation applies here too, and the price of marijuana is rising like that of everything else.

Blackout Hits Petaluma Area

Residents of the west side of Petaluma were without electricity for nearly two hours yesterday at mid-day.

Power went off at 11:05 a.m. and returned to most areas by 1 p.m. Clifford Bartlett Jr., manager of the Petaluma office for Pacific Gas and Electric Co., traced the trouble to a faulty circuit breaker.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Fair-Marin Story Should Be Enough To Startle Taxpayers

Here are some things that should startle the taxpaying citizens of the county:

This heading of an I-J story on Dec. 17 — "Fair-Marin Given Grounds Control." A sentence in the story: "The contract gives Fair-Marin board autonomy in managing the fairgrounds but gives the county control over planning and developing of the fairgrounds site."

Fusselman

Then further, this short paragraph: "Fair-Marin will have two budgets — one to operate the county fairgrounds property and another to run its own cultural activities off the Civic Center site." (Question? Is the second budget their money or county money?)

And still another: "Today's action climaxes a year-long battle between Fair-Marin directors and the county administrator's office over the extent of authority Fair-Marin would have over the fairgrounds."

Startling, even though there has been abundant presentation of the way of life out at Brasilia.

THE FIVE supervisors are receiving in total salaries $48,000 a year. The three highest in "COMMAND" (caps are mine) of the administrator's department receive a total of $64,392. So, it took one year for this $112,392 of talent to give "autonomy" to special interests, in the management of 80 of the 140 acres of the publicly owned Civic Center site, and that $112,392 is only the top cost of the talent involved. There are supporting actors and expenses as well.

Man, have they been having a Merry Christmas all year. Oh, but they have been terribly busy with other matters, too. Besides oratory and the ignoring of the waste basket snooping by one of the lesser lights, just what crop has been produced for the money?

I JUST TURNED on the television set (2:20 a.m.) and listened to the astronauts and Houston ground control talking back and forth as Apollo 8, now in oribt around the moon, came out from the dark side and with the voices from the space ship coming those hundreds of thousands miles distinct and precise, as they described what they were seeing through the window of their ship, at a distance of 69 miles from the moon — the sea of Tranqulity and that the surface of the moon had a drab coloration.

Even though you will have the complete story before this will reach you, there is a compulsion to write of it now. As a kid, like all others, I have lain on my back of a summer evening and watched that still placid golden face shine up there and then later in the year again watched it through the window as clouds scudding by gave it the illusion of a fast moving silver disk, and I would wonder and wonder, never dreaming that what has happened would take place in my lifetime. God grant that those courageous men return to their dear ones!

Hirohito Voted More Allowance

TOKYO (AP) — The Imperial household Economic Council decided Wednesday to increase allowances for Emperor Hirohito and his family to meet the rising cost of living in Japan.

The council, presided over by Prime Minister Esaku Sato, decided to raise the allowance 10 per cent. The decision is subject to approval by parliament.

Hirohito, Empress Nagako and Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko and their two children now get a lump sum of $233,330 a year as living expenses. Other members of the royal family, such as Hirohito's younger brothers, Prince Takamatu and Prince Misaka, get $20,000 a year each.

Hearing Loss Linked To Cholesterol

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (SS) — Studies indicate that a decline in hearing ability could be a warning of unhealthy veins or arteries, with high cholesterol levels to blame. Such levels have been linked to heart attacks and stroke.

The waxy substance could be clogging blood vessels in connective tissues between the tiny hearing bones, thus impeding the person's ability to hear.

Prof. A. H. Ismail, a Purdue University researcher, with Homer Tolson, speculates that reducing the blood cholesterol level could improve hearing ability.

Earlier, Dr. Ismail had directed a physical fitness program showing that regular, rigorous exercise lowers blood cholesterol levels significantly. To examine the theory, the Purdue investigators set up a fitness program for about 70 faculty and staff members. Before the physical conditioning began, all participants were given a series of hearing tests, besides other measures of physical condition. At the end of the four-month program, hearing tests were given again.

Many showed improvement in hearing over the four months, and none showed a deficit.

Drivers Warned To Try Coffee On Holiday Trip

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — California Highway Patrol Commissioner H. W. Sullivan is urging drivers on long trips during the Christmas and New Year holidays, to take time for a "coffee break" to prevent fatal accidents.

Sullivan said the patrol is supporting the National Coffee Stop program in which restaurant operators will be serving free coffee to motorists as a public service during peak hours of the holiday season.

The commissioner said, "A cup of coffee can help overcome fatigue and drowsiness which are contributing factors in a large number of highway crashes."

The restaurants joining in the program will display the official National Coffee Stop sign.

Co-sponsoring the event are the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association, the National Restaurant Association and numerous state restaurant groups, and the Coffee Information Service.

Three Handed Death Sentences

SEOUL (AP) — Three South Koreans convicted of setting up a Communist guerrilla base on a small offshore island were sentenced to death today in Seoul District Criminal Court.

Fourteen other persons in the ring received sentences ranging from one year to life in prison.

The prosecution said the leaders had been instructed to recruit guerrillas in the south for an armed uprising.

East Learned A Bitter Lesson In Not Taking Look At Declarer

Before you double for penalties, take a good look at the declarer. If he bears even a faint resemblance to Los Angeles star Meyer Schleifer, save your double for some other hand and some other opponent. One player at the recent national tournament in Coronado discovered that you can't get rich doubling Schleifer.

SINGLETON SPADE

West led the queen of hearts, and Schleifer won in his hand with the king in order to lead his singleton spade at once. West couldn't tell that the spade was a singleton, and played low in the hope of giving declarer some trouble.

As it turned out, all of the trouble was in the other direction. Schleifer won in dummy with the king of spades and began a crossruff. He ruffed a low spade, ruffed a club in dummy, cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart.

RUFFS CLUB

Declarer ruffed a second club in dummy, ruffed a second spade in his hand and then ruffed a third club in dummy. By this time Schleifer had taken the first nine tricks, and East was reduced to his four trumps. Schleifer still had two trumps and two clubs; dummy had the king of trumps, one heart and two spades.

When Schleifer now led a spade from dummy East had to put up the jack of diamonds in the hope of shutting out the eight of diamonds. Schleifer overruffed with the ace and ruffed a fourth club with dummy's king of diamonds.

DISCARDS TRUMP

East helplessly discarded a trump. When declarer then led another spade from dummy, East had the Q-6 of diamonds, and Schleifer had the eight of diamonds and a club. If East ruffed low, South would overruff; if East ruffed high, South would discard and take the last trick with the eight of diamonds.

Schleifer made his doubled contract with an overtrick, and East is still wondering what hit him.

First Novel

NEW YORK (UPI)—The first novel published in America, The Power of Sympathy or the Triumph of Nature Founded in Truth," was printed in two volumes in 1789 in Boston, Massachusetts.

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, Dec. 27, the 362nd day of 1968 with four to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full stage. The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1932 the largest indoor theater at the time opened in New York City—Radio City Music Hall.

In 1941 the Japanese bombed the neutral city of Manila.

In 1945 the United States, Russia and Britain announced they would govern Korea as joint trustees for five years, then grant independence.

In 1963 the Commerce Department authorized the sale of surplus wheat to Russia.

A thought for the day: Plutarch said: "The whole life of man is but a point of time; let us enjoy it, therefore, while it lasts, and not spend it to no purpose."

He Saw Smog

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Los Angeles Harbor wasn't too impressive to Juan Cabrillo, the Spanish explorer who anchored his caravel here in 1542. After seeing smoke from fires of primitive Indians, he named the harbor the Bay of Smokes and Fires—and then he sailed on.

Leon Spiro's Poems Due Use In Show

Peace poems written by Sausalito poet Leon Spiro are being incorporated into a television program being prepared in Italy for 1969 showing.

Included are a number of poems originally published in the Marin Poets' Corner of the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine.

The 20-minute show, on tape, is being produced in three languages — Italian, French and Spanish — by Benito Mattioli of Fidenza, Italy, and also makes use of art work and music by leading European painters, Sculptors and composers. It has been entitled "Pax 1969."

Selection of Spiro's poetry followed favorable reviews in such European publications as La Gazzetta di Parma, Grama of Alciras in Valencia, Spain, and the Journal of Birmingham, England.

Bangkok Reports Copter Flights

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thai troops spotted medium-size helicopters over northeast Thailand 15 times during the nights of Dec. 12-17, and the government assumes they were flying supplies to Communist terrorists in the area, Deputy Premier Praphas Charusathien told a news conference today.

General Praphas said the helicopters are believed to be flying from North Vietnam or from bases in Laos held by the Communist Pathet Lao.

License Sought

The Contractors State License Board, provided no written protests are filed, will grant a license to Kunst Brothers Painting Contractor, Inc., on January 13. The firm is operated by John R. Kunst of 76 Belvedere Street, San Rafael.

Pueblo Crewman To Have Full Military Burial

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Pueblo crewman Duane D. Hodges, described by his skipper as "a hero in every sense of the word," will be buried with full military honors tomorrow in his hometown, Creswell, Ore.

Hodges, 21, was the only crew member to die when the Pueblo was captured last Jan. 23 by the North Koreans.

Funeral services will be at the junior high school in Crewswell. Members of his former Navy Reserve unit will be pallbearers and a graveside rifle salute will be fired by active duty members of the naval reserve training center in Eugene, Ore.

The sailor's mother, Mrs. Jesse D. Hodges, said Pueblo skipper Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher told her that Duane was "standing on deck, bending over, destroying secret papers when he was hit by enemy fire."

"As he died," she said, "he was singing a Christian song."

Spanish Novelist Granted Retrial

MADRID (AP) — The Spanish Supreme Court has ordered a retrial for novelist Isaac Montero, sentenced by a lower court in January 1967 to six months and one day imprisonment on charges of illegal propaganda.

The Supreme Court ordered the retrial yesterday because the lower court had rejected evidence Montero tried to submit.

No date for the new trial was set.

Montero, 25, wrote a novel "Alrededor de un Dia de Abril" (Around an April Day) that he tried to publish without cuts suggested by government censors. They considered the novel offensive to the Franco regime.

Ditched Jetliner Repairs Slowed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Renovation is taking longer than expected on the Japan Air Lines DC8 that belly-landed in San Francisco Bay Nov. 22.

But officials say the jetliner may be in the air again by late next spring.

The $9 million plane, which landed in 10 feet of water just off Coyote Point three miles south of the San Francisco International Airport, is undergoing a $2 million rebuilding job at the United Air Lines maintenance hangar.

All 87 persons aboard survived the accident in heavy fog.

The plane's four engines, valued at $250,000 each, seemed undamaged by their salt water bath.

Lone Survivor Plans To Wed

MANILA (AP) — Corazon Amurao, the lone survivor of the 1966 Chicago nurse massacre, will marry her hometown sweetheart, Alberto Atienza, a lawyer, Jan. 5.

Miss Amurao, now 25, was elected a municipal councilor in San Luis after returning home from Chicago.

She hid under a bed while eight other nurses were slain in a dormitory at the South Chicago Community Hospital, and has since filed a multimillion-dollar suit against the hospital.

Miss Amurau was the key witness against Richard Speck, who was convicted of the killings and is now under death sentence.

Color Camera Next For Apollo Flights?

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Even as the Apollo 8 astronauts were presenting their last live telecast of their Christmas moonflight yesterday, engineers on the ground were figuring out ways to fly a tiny color camera aboard future Apollos.

The present camera used inside the moonship is an electronic marvel, weighing less than five pounds, but it can transmit only black and white pictures.

NEED COLOR

Pictures from space, such as the view of earth's globe which Frank Borman, James Lovell and William Anders featured in the last Yuletide telecast, lose much of their impact without color.

The shot of earth from 111,634 miles out, for instance, showed clouds covering much of North and South America. But in black-and-white, the clouds and the land appeared as similar shades of gray despite the sharp image transmitted by the camera.

In color the land would have stood out in rich greens and browns surrounded by royal blue seas and topped by puffy white clouds.

LAB WORK

"We think it could be made a little bit larger," he said. "This is just an idea right now, but it's an idea based on some very sound principles."

Weight is a big factor in Apollo, and squeezing a television camera down small enough to be carried in the moonship and to operate off its limited electrical current was a triumph of the new technology of miniaturization.

The Apollo camera is small enough to fit into the glove compartment of a car. It has both a wide angle and a telephoto lens. Built with miniaturized integrated circuits —specks of crystals carrying entire arrays of electronic components—it requires only six watts of power, compared with 500 watts for a studio camera.

SCAN SYSTEM

Lower power means it uses a different scanning system from a regular TV camera, producing 320 horizontal scan lines per inch compared to 525 lines for broadcast television.

Because of this ground station converters are needed to convert the signal for home viewing.

Collision Hurts Marin Woman

Yvonne L. Harren, 27, of 60 Fairfax Street, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts on her head and right knee following a collision in the 700 block of Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael.

Police said she was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, James Harren Jr., 30, which collided with a car driven by Joseph H. Prohaska, 28, of 400 Canal Street, San Rafael.

Harren was cited for illegally passing to the right, police said.

Succulents Lecture

San Rafael nurserywoman and succulent expert Lila Lillie will lecture, show slides and answer questions about succulents at 8 p.m. Jan. 10 before the Redwood Shade Garden Club in Whitaker Hall of St. Stephen's Parish, Golden Gate and Bayview avenues, Belvedere.

FEATURED THIS SATURDAY

William Penn Patrick is one of Marin County's most interesting and most widely known citizens, as well as one of its most controversial. He is known for his spectacular success in the cosmetics business. But perhaps he is even better known for his conservative political views, and for the methods by which he has put them to the test. I-J political writer Paul Peterzell gives you a "profile" of this fascinating Marinite in tomorrow's I-J Marin Magazine.

What was the New Year's observance like in turn-of-the-century Marin? Just how did it differ from our celebration today? Independent-Journal Historian Florence Donnelly answers those questions in another of her special features, written for tomorrow's issue of the weekend supplement. It is a story of another era when the passing of one year and the arrival of another was greeted in a far different style than it is today. You will want to read it and re-live another time.

U.S. Regains Davis Cup; Netters Try For Sweep

ADELAIDE, Australia (UPI) —The United States regained the Davis Cup for the first time in five years today when Californians Bob Lutz and Stan Smith thrashed Australia's John Alexander and Ray Ruffels, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2, in what may be the last all-amateur format of this 68-year-old competition.

The Americans disposed of the inexperienced Australian team in one hour and seven minutes.

The straight-set triumph coupled with singles victories by Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., and Clark Graebner of New York gave the Yanks an insurmountable lead in the best three-our-of-five match series.

Ashe beat Ruffels and Graebner defeated Bill Bowrey in blustery weather yesterday making today's doubles match before a gallery of about 4,000 fans in the Memorial Drive stands a must for the Australians.

Two single matches remain tomorrow — Graebner versus Ruffels and Ashe against Bowrey — but they will be little more than exhibition matches.

U.S. captain Donald Dell refused to celebrate the Cup victory today and said he would like to make it a 5-0 sweep.

Harry Hopman, the wily longtime team manager of Australia, attempted to avert disaster by inserting the untested Alexander in his doubles lineup, replacing Bowrey.

Alexander, the junior Wimbledon champion, is only 17 years old, making him the youngest Australian ever to compete in the Challenge Round. However, he has one of the strongest serves in amateur tennis.

Ruffels had never played before with Alexander and the two were mismatched against Smith and Lutz, the University of Southern California teammates who are regarded as the best amateur doubles team in the world.

After taking the first two sets in relatively short order, the U.S. required only 17 minutes to complete the rout. Ruffels lost his serve on the first game of the third set and Lutz made it 2-0 before Alexander held. Smith, the steadiest player on the court, opened up his cannonball service to hike the U.S. advantage to 3-1.

After Ruffels dropped his service again, Lutz held to make it 5-1 and then Smith clinched it on his service.

This was the 20th Davis Cup victory for the United States, only two less than Australia.

In the meantime, delegates from the Big Four of tennis—the United States, Australia, England and France—were to meet here tonight to discuss a formula for opening the Davis Cup to professionals.

HERB MICHELSON

How Will Joe Namath Deal With Raiders?

OAKLAND — Having last week sold the Raiders short (for a year's end capital gains tax break, of course), I'm puzzled about how to deal with them in Sunday's American Football League encounter in Shea Stadium with Mr. Namath.

As, I think, will be Mr. Namath

He must face an Oakland defense that a week ago denied a touchdown to a superior Kansas City team. And Joe has fewer runners of merit to throw the Raiders off defensive stride than did the totally embarrassed K.C.

YET, NAMATH has a weapon the Chiefs pitifully lacked: the best defense in the league, particularly a fine secondary. The defensive backs ruined Kansas City, as the five touchdown passes of Daryl Lamonica attest. A K.C. cornerman named Emmitt Thomas represented a 12th Raider. He will have a terribly lonely winter, and spring, and early summer.

The Raiders beat Thomas and his people with their offensive line, giving its (finally) best performance of the season. They must perform at least as brilliantly against the Jets if Oakland is to reach the Super Bowl for the second straight January, a very straight month in any event.

THE REASONING is straightforward: If his line gives Daryle plenty of time, he can find receivers on both sides of the field. If not, he is effective only to his right — where defenders soon will start partying.

Tackle Harry Schuh mainly was Lamonica's time provider against K.C. He must give Daryle those moments in Shea, for the fine Raider receivers need seconds on seconds.

THERE IS NOT one Emmitt Thomas in the Jets defensive backfield. There are, however, Johnny Sample and Jim Hudson.

Cornerman Sample warmed up for this classic AFL title affair by playing on two championship teams for Jet coach Weeb Eubank at Baltimore in that other league. Sample talks lavishly field in hopes of haunting such splendid receivers as Warren Wells and Fred Biletnikoff. He is, plainly, a pest.

HUDSON, USUALLY the strong-side safety, is quieter. You would be too if you were bitten on the leg by a black widow spider this past spring.

Hudson, and the Jets, survived, despite being rated behind Houston in the AFL East this season. I like to think that any man who defeats a black widow spider can also humiliate the defending champion Raiders.

Yet, the Jets could be hobbled by nearly a month of title euphoria. They clinched their division with two weeks left on the schedule and then had another week's rest while Oakland battered K.C.

THE RAIDERS, despite a nine-game win string, are just beginning to click. The must game against the Chiefs was probably their finest all-around effort of 1968. Now, one would assume, Oakland knows how.

But given a little time to pass (plus all that Shea encouragement), Namath can unlearn them. Any man who would shave a marvelous Fu Manchu mustache for $10,000, would be the kind to win two football games for 25 grand.

And, Lord knows, Joe could use a new fur coat. His present mink needs pressing.

Tars Lose Tourney Opener

I-J Special Report

SANTA MONICA — College of Marin's basketball team ran into one of the big boys last night at the Santa Monica Invitational Junior College Basketball Tournament.

The Tars were bombed by host Santa Monica, 82-62, despite a brief second-half comeback. They'll play Compton of Los Angeles at five o'clock this afternoon in the double-elimination tourney.

Foul trouble, not enough rebounding and a bothersome Santa Monica press turned out to be the recipe for a Tar defeat this time.

The Tars were whistled down 23 times and were outrebounded 62-48.

Guard Andre Horn whipped in 20 points for College of Marin and Pat Schafer scored 13 points.

College of Marin, after trailing by 17 points at the half, cut the margin down to seven points with 10 minutes left before a Santa Monica surge wiped out the Tars.

The Tars are now 4-7 on the season.

College of Marin Scoring — Cupples, 2-0-4; Horn, 8-4-20; Shafer, 4-5-13; Seidenberg, 2-0-4; Hoge, 1-1-3; Bornia, 3-0-6; Hansen, 1-0-2; Smith, 0-3-3; Leete, 0-1-1; Ravani, 2-2-6. Totals: 23-16-62.

PREP CAGE

Novato Quint In Tourney Semifinals

Novato High School's basketball team ran its season win-lost record to 8-2 and advanced into the second round of the Pacific Invitational Basketball Tournament by dumping Lincoln San Jose, 69-50, at San Leandro.

A big 31-point outburst by center Ed Herrnberger triggered the win, which was put away early as the Hornets piled up a 34-19 halftime lead.

SEMIFINALS

The Hornets will play in the semifinals at 7 p.m. today. Bob Ament with 13 points and Dave Perron with 10 helped Herrnberger.

Tamalpais of Mill Valley went into tournament action but didn't fare as well as the Indians lost to Washington of San Francisco, 61-50, in opening round of the John F. Kennedy Tournament in Fremont.

In non-tourney games, Redwood axed DeAnza, 66-57, at Larkspur, and Poly of San Francisco smothered Drake, 77-43, at San Anselmo.

Tamalpais led Washington, 30-29 at half, but a final-period deficit of 16-8 did in the Indians. Dave Larsen with 17 points topped the Tam scoring, followed by Ken Gommeringer with 13 and Don Mackin, 10.

TOP GAME

Redwood, getting top performances out of Jerry Piro and Jim Peters and an all-around floor game from Skip Corsini, broke to a 49-38 third quarter lead and was home free.

Piro scored 20 points and Peters added 17 points plus eight rebounds to go along with Roger Smith's 13 points.

The Redwood jayvees downed DeAnza's jayvees, 32-25, while the Giant Bees topped the DeAnza B squad, 49-23.

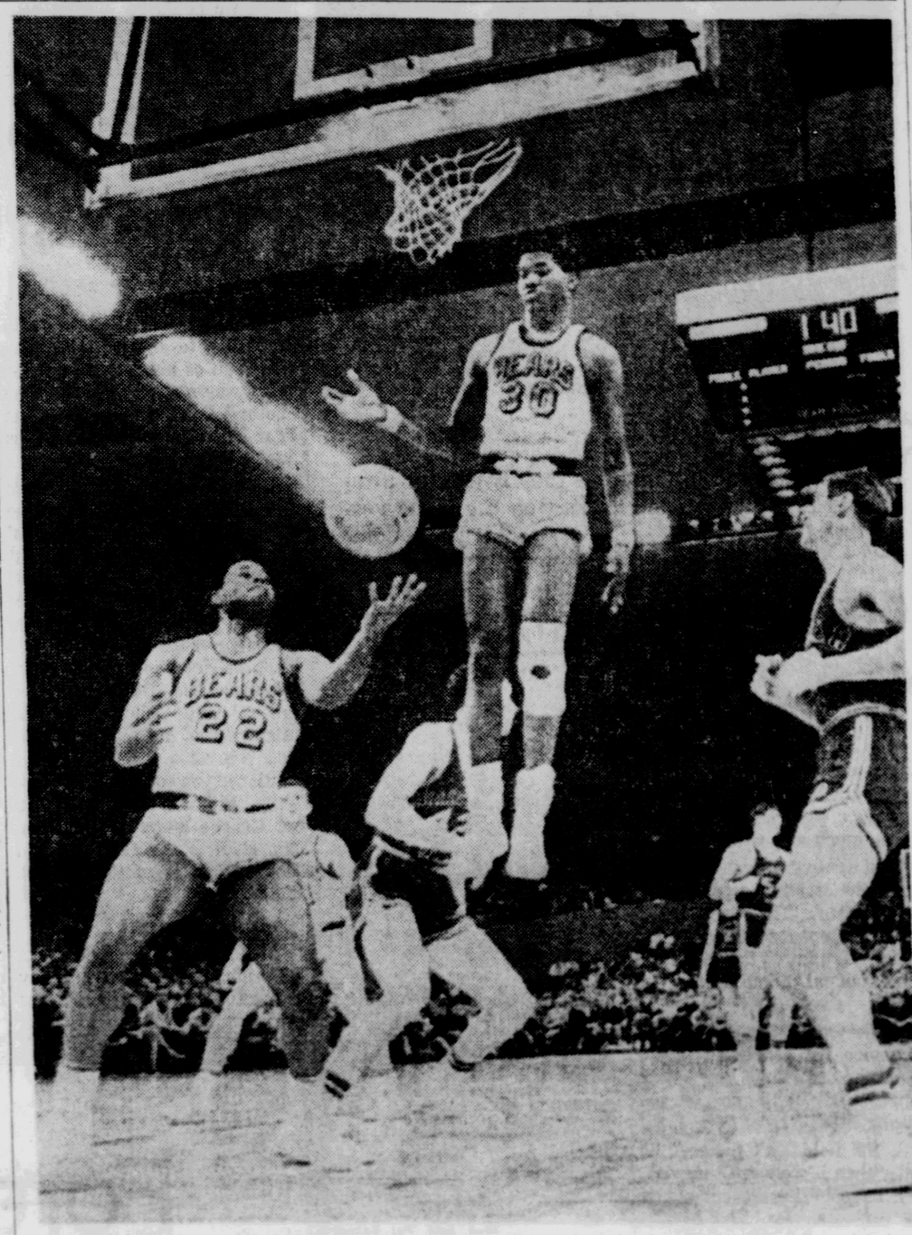
Shrine Oddsmakers Stymied



NEXT STOP: THE MOON — California sophomore Jackie Ridgle, seems to rise straight up in rocket fashion while trying for a rebound that wound up with teammate Waddell Blackwell (22) in the Far West Classic basketball tournament in Portland, Ore. The Bears lost to Brigham Young, 82-74.

Game Tomorrow Called A Toss-Up

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Duffy Daugherty, who never really has been that hot about a running game, throws a "full-house" backfield at the West tomorrow in the 44th annual Shrine East-West football game, which could turn out to be one of the most interesting in the series.

A check of oddsmakers late yesterday indicated there is too much difference between the two teams to pick a favorite.

CONTRAST

There is, too, with the East pitting a potent running backfield against the West's anticipated passing game.

The game, in Candlestick Park, will begin at 1:30.

"A coach would have to be crazy not to try to play all his running backs if he had the kind I have for this game," said Daugherty, and then added he will shoot with All-America Leroy Keyes of Purdue, Ron Johnson of Michigan and Charlie Jarvis of Army right from the start.

"I'll get Perry Williams (also of Purdue) in there when I can," said Daugherty, "and just turn those boys loose. No need to tell you what they can do. If our practice sessions have proved anything, it is this: These boys know how to run and I'd be crazy not to build our offense around them."

NO FLANKER

With no flanker in the lineup there will be little for quarterbacks Fred Summers of Wake Forest and Dennis Brown of Michigan to do except hand the ball off to Keyes, Johnson and Jarvis and then get out of the way.

On the other side, it will be a lot different.

Coach Bob Devaney has a pair of outstanding passers in Brooks Dawson of Texas of El Paso and Robbie Johnson of Oklahoma State. To make things easier for them he will split both Gene Washington of Stanford and Louis Thomas of Utah at all times.

Devaney will use a flanker, though, and leave the running to Bill Enyart of Oregon State, an All-America fullback, and more than likely Bill Davis of Nebraska with Ross Montgomery of Texas Christian and Jack Stewart of Texas Tech in reserve.

PASSING

"The makeup of our team dictates we pass as often as we can," said Devaney. "That doesn't mean we won't run, since it would be foolish not to give the ball to Enyart and Davis, but my guess right now is that we will try to get there (endzone) mostly with a passing game."

Keyes, Johnson, Jarvis and Williams will have their work cut out for them, if they have to carry the ball as often as Daugherty indicates.

That's because they will have to charge into such Western defenders as Joe Greene of North Texas State, George Buehler of Stanford and Ed White and Mike McCaffrey of

Players Expected Allen To Be Fired

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The firing of Los Angeles Rams' head Coach George Allen left most Ram followers puzzled and shocked today, but some players say they weren't totally surprised.

Allen, 46, was fired yesterday by Dan Reeves, president and general manager of the National Football League club. Reeves said a personality conflict led to his decision. "It was probably more my fault than his," said Reeves.

Allen called a news conference for today.

In three years with the Rams, after the Western Division team had suffered seven straight losing seasons, Allen turned Los Angeles into a winner with seasons of 8-6, 11-1-2 and 10-3-1.

The first public hostility between the quiet Allen and Reeves came after the Nov. 17 Ram game with the San Francisco 49ers.

The teams tied 20-20. After the game, Allen said the muddy field conditions were the worst he'd ever seen. Reeves called the comments unnecessary and ill-advised.

"But we heard rumors in training camp," said Roman Gabriel, the No. 1 quarterback of the Rams under Allen.

"We heard rumors that George Allen would be fired if we didn't win it all this year," Gabriel said. "And those rumors popped up more often as the season progressed.

"Before our last ball game with the Baltimore Colts, Coach Allen said he wouldn't be back next year," said offensive guard and co-captain Joe Scribelli.

Allen seems to always have commanded the respect of his players. In 1963, while a coach with the Chicago Bears, the team there presented him the championship game ball, an honor normally reserved for players.

"It's hard to realize that a man who's been a winner like George Allen could be fired," Gabriel said. "He gave more to his players than any other coach I've ever played for.

"If he goes to another team, and he wants me to play for him," Gabriel said, "I might make it known I'd like to be traded. I've also thought about sitting out a year or even retiring."

Allen came to the Rams the successor to Harland Svare, who had a 4-10 record in 1965. Reeves fought a court battle with Chicago owner George Halas for Allen, then gave his new coach a five-year, $40,000 a year contract.

Allen's deals earned him the name of The Trader and in 1966 the Rams were 8-6, their best record in eight years.

The following season Los Angeles was 11-1-2, won the Coastal Division title and, after a 28-7 loss to Green Bay for the Western Division crown, thrashed Cleveland 30-6 in the Playoff Bowl.

This year the Rams were hit by injury and illness but wound up 10-3-1, losing their last two games—to Chicago 17-16 and to Baltimore 28-24.

Allen, a native of Detroit, played football at Marquette in 1944. He began his pro coaching career with the Rams in 1957 after nine years of college coaching at Morningside in Iowa and Whittier in California.

He was at Chicago molding the Bear defense for eight years.

HOLIDAY TOURNAMENTS

Busy Weekend Of Action For West Coast Cagers

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Santa Clara and Oregon are still in and California is out after the first big night of holiday basketball tournament action.

UCLA gets going tonight as Lew Alcindor returns home to New York City for the Holiday Festival joust at Madison Square Garden.

Santa Clara, sixth ranked nationally, got a stiff fight from West Virginia at the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu before pulling away to a 72-58 victory last night.

Brothers Ralph and Bud Ogden and center Dennis Awtrey combined for 58 points. Unbeaten Columbia nipped Stanford 69-66 in the other game despite 19 by the Indians' Mel McElwain and 18 by Don Griffin.

Tonight at Honolulu, Purdue, Arizona, Hawaii and Subpac complete first round action. A Purdue-Santa Clara final might be in the works.

At Portland, Oregon took Yale 84-71 in the nightcap of the Far West Classic's first night play. Billy Gaskins had 17 for the Ducks as almost 11,000 watched the action.

But highly-rated California flopped again as Brigham Young upset the Bears 82-74. Bob Presley had 18 for the Bears, but only two came in the first half and the 6-11 Bear pivot man fouled out besides. Washington State, Syracuse, Oregon State and Arizona State go at it tonight.

UCLA meets Providence in the Holiday Classic at New York where a showdown between the nationally top-ranked Bruins and the number two rated North Carolina Tarheels seems likely.

There are tournaments getting underway all over the nation tonight and each seems to have a Western team. UOP is at the All College Tournament at Oklahoma City, USC hosts its own Trojan Invitational, Washington is at the Triangle Classic at Raleigh, N.C., Santa Barbara hosts its Winter Classic, USF is at the Blue Bonnet Bowl joust and Portland calls on Houston and San Francisco State is at Youngstown in a couple of other games.

Warriors Nip Phoenix For Third Win In Row

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Warriors are proving they can win without ace center Nate Thurmond and able Clyde Lee, both sidelined with injuries.

Hitting 50.6 per cent of their shots from the field, the Warriors rolled to their third win in a row, 119-118, this one over the Phoenix Suns last night.

Forward Bill Turner connected on 19 of 16 and finished with 28 points for a career high with the pros while playing 44 minutes for the Warriors. Hustling teammate Al Attles took only seven shots but sank six of them.

However Thurmond's replacement at center, 6-10 Dale Schleuter, tipped the balance in San Francisco's favor. Though scoring only 10 points, he picked off 12 rebounds to pace both teams while playing only 28 minutes.

San Francisco now embarks on a Midwest swing with a Saturday afternoon meeting at Detroit.

Seals Fall To Ranger Skaters

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers, who had only one victory in a string of 10 National Hockey League games, hung a 3-1 loss on the Oakland Seals last night, leading all the way.

The Seals, now 1-1 on a five-game eastern swing, are idle today. They play in Philadelphia tomorrow and in Pittsburgh Sunday.

Reggie Fleming took a perfect pass from Jean Ratelle to whip in the first Ranger goal 36 seconds into the second period.

Phil Goyette followed at 2:01 with a power play goal that

'GET LAMONICA'

Simple Jets' Game Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — "Get Lamonica."

That, says Gerry Philbin, is the best defense against the Oakland Raiders' passing attack.

The New York Jets, for whom Philbin plays a brilliant defensive end, must contend with that attack Sunday in the American Football League championship game, and if they can stop it, they could stop Oakland.

Daryle Lamonica is the center of the attack, and he devastated Kansas City with five touchdown passes last Sunday in the Western Division playoff.

"If we get to Lamonica early, then we could save what could be a long game for us," said Philbin, who was named to the AFL All-Star team earlier this week. "We've got to keep on his back. We have to get to him because when he's hot, he's hot.

"Even if you can't tackle him and throw him for a loss, you can get your hands in his face. If he has to throw over your hands, he's very likely going to throw a bad pass."

Lamonica didn't throw too many bad passes six weeks ago when he completed 21 of 34 against the Jets for 311 yards and four touchdowns.

"He had a pretty good day, but I think we put pressure on him," Philbin recalled. "We got to him twice, and we made him scramble a few times. Anyone is less effective if he has to run around while he's trying to see his receivers.

"But he throws so quick you have to get in on him or he'll hurt you. He's also one of the toughest quarterbacks around. We've given him some good shots in the past—nothing dirty but just hard—and he just bounces right back. You can't rattle him mentally either."

What the whole thing comes down to is how well the Oakland offensive line and the New York defensive line does against each other. The Jets dumped the opposing quarterback 43 times this season, third best in the league, while the Raiders have permitted the opposition to get to their quarterback 29 times, fourth in the league.

"I'd have to say they have one of the best pass protections in the Western Division," said Philbin, a 6-foot-2, 245-pounder now in his fifth pro season.

"In the Kansas City game they looked even better than I thought. They looked super. I think Kansas City got to Lamonica only once. You have to do better than that."

Throughout the season the Jet linemen have run a little pool in which they each put $10 weekly. The money would go to the man who tackled the quarterback the most times. This week, however, the $10 bills have stayed in their wallets.

"We don't have anything going on this game," Philbin explained. "We don't need anything. It's all or nothing. We don't need any extra incentive."

Hayes Beats Chamberlain In Star Vote

NEW YORK (AP) — Elvin Hayes, the sensational San Diego rookie, has been picked over towering Wilt Chamberlain for the starting center position on the Western team for the annual National Basketball Association All-Star game.

The 19th annual East-West classic will be played at Baltimore's Civic Center Jan. 14.

Forward Elgin Baylor, Chamberlain's teammate on the Los Angeles Lakers, was the only unanimous choice of the sports writers and sportscasters from the franchise cities who picked eight players. Western coaches will select the other four players for the squad next week.

The other starters, named today, include another Laker super star, guard Jerry West; guard Len Wilkens of Seattle, and forward Don Kojis, another San Diego star. Also selected were forward Lou Hudson of Atlanta, guard Jerry Sloan of Chicago and Chamberlain.

Phoenix and San Francisco were shut out.

Warm Raiders Leave For Frigid New York

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders, who spent an extra day in the relative warmth of the West, were to leave today for the frigid scene of their American Football League title game with the New York Jets Sunday.

Originally, the Raiders were to fly to New York yesterday, but they elected instead to spend one more day in Oakland to get in some warm-weather practice.

The strategy seemed to have backfired when nearly an inch of rain fell Christmas Day, but yesterday was bright and sunny, allowing the Raiders to get in a last-minute workout.

A noon workout, closed to press and public, was scheduled for New York's Shea Stadium tomorrow.

As might be expected, the main topic of conversation among the Raiders was the weather that awaits them in the East.

"We know the weather won't be ideal," said Oakland Coach John Rauch, without a trace of a smile. "We'll prepare for winter as much as possible.

"But really, we don't want to make the weather a psychological barrier. The way things have broken for us in recent weeks, I figure the sun will come out at game time," he said.

Raider quarterback Daryle Lamonica is concerned about what the freezing New York temperatures will do to the playing field.

"If the field isn't frozen," he said, "then it's okay. Otherwise, we'll have to discard our cleats and use sneakers. The breaks then become the difference.

"I don't mind the snow or the cold," Lamonica added.

"It's the ice and the whipping wind that can hurt you."

Should Daugherty switch to the air in the event the running game doesn't work, then Summers and Brown will have to try to angle their throws away from Al Worley, the All-America defensive back from Washington who set an NCAA record this past season with 10 interceptions.

Dawson will open at quarterback for the West. He was one of the nation's top passers in 1968 with 123 completions for 764 yards and 14 TD's. Gene Huey of Wyoming, although an end, could be the starter at flanker, thus giving Dawson three fleet runners to throw at.

Washington set a Pacific 8 Conference record this season with 71 catches, many of them of the circus variety; Huey was one of the top receivers in the Western Athletic Conference for three years and Thomas came on strong as a top-flight catcher this past year.

All Systems 'Go' For TV Blastoff Of Bowl Games

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's time for the nation's college football fans to go into orbit around their television sets.

All systems are "go" as the bowl season is about to blast off with 11 games in the next six days, most of them to be televised somewhere or other.

However, the University of Michigan, which missed out on a trip to the Rose Bowl, got its licks in last night by winning the Coach Bowl. The Wolverines tapped Glenn "Bo" Schembechler of Miami, Ohio, to succeed Chalmers "Bump" Elliott as head coach, The Associated Press learned. Elliott will move up to associate athletic director.

In six seasons at Miami, Schembechler's teams won 40 games, lost 17 and tied three. As a student there, he played under Woody Hayes, whose Ohio State team is going to the Rose Bowl.

The action on the field begins tonight when Ohio University, unbeaten, untied and ranked 15th in the nation, meets Richmond's Southern Conference champions in the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla.

The Bobcats of the Mid-American Conference were 16th in total offense, 14th in rushing offense and fifth in scoring with an average of 37.6 points a game.

Individually, quarterback Cleve Bryant was ninth in total offense and fullback Bob Houmard was fifth in scoring with 19 touchdowns.

Saturday finds Missouri against Alabama in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.; Auburn and Arizona in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., and two all-star contests—the East-West Shrine Game in San Francisco and the Blue-Gray at Montgomery, Ala.

Next week it's the Peach Bowl Monday, the Blue Bonnet Bowl Tuesday and the Rose, Orange, Cotton and Sugar Bowls Wednesday.

A crowd of 68,000 is expected to watch a defensive battle between Missouri and Alabama in the Gator Bowl. 'Bama ranked fifth in total defense and defense against scoring and seventh in rushing defense. Missouri was eighth in total defense and fifth in pass defense but the Tigers also ranked 12th in rushing offense and 21st in total offense.

They have an All-American in safety Roger Wehrli, the nation's No. 1 punt returner.

The Sun owl also could be a defensive struggle in this year of the exploding scoreboard. Although Auburn has a potent aerial duo in Loran Carter and Tim Christian and Arizona has a fine receiver in Ron Gardin, they also rank among the defensive leaders.

Arizona finished seventh in total defense and 14th in rushing defense while Auburn was eighth in defensing the rush.

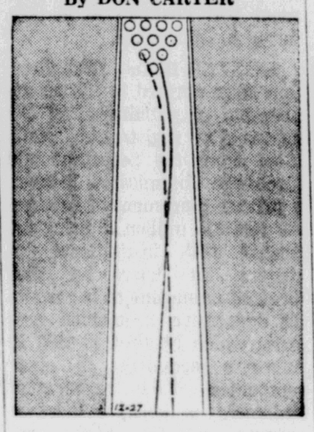
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



A slow lane — one that causes the ball to hook too much — can be combatted in several ways. First, move your starting position a few boards to the left so that your ball will have more room to hook. Second, increase your speed a little. Third, loft the ball out on the lane a few inches farther than usual.

gave New York a 2-0 lead.

Gary Jarrett's 16th goal for Oakland at 3:21 of the second period was the only one of 30 shots to get through Gilles Villemure, although another Jarrett shot which could have tied it hit the post.

The Rangers notched their final tally in the third period on Dave Balon's shot past Seals netminder Gary Smith.

Oaks To Go Against New Yorkers Tonight

COMMACK, N. Y. (AP) — The Oakland Oaks, a runaway leader in the American Basketball Association's Western Division, visit the New York Nets, last in the east tonight.

The Oaks lead in the west by 6½ games while the Nets trail in the East by 9½. Oakland's Doug Moe, who has been in the hospital with the flu and a kidney infection, will rejoin the team in New York, but may not play.

SOME INTERESTED FANS

These racing fans show deep interest in what's going on in front of them. It's part of the crowd that turned out for the opening of Santa Anita race track in Arcadia yesterday. By the looks of most of those in the picture, their money is riding on the wrong horse. (AP Wirephoto)

Finley Against Chub Feeney As Commissioner

OAKLAND (UPI) — Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland Athletics, doesn't think San Francisco Giants vice president Chub Feeney should be named baseball commissioner because of his strong ties with the San Francisco National League team.

Finley said yesterday of Feeney "is a nice guy and a hard worker who knows baseball, but I don't feel the commissioner...should have a mother who owns a major interest in the Giants."

Feeney is a nephew of Giant owner Horace Stoneham. Feeney's mother owned 19 per cent of the Giant stock when the club moved West a decade ago.

Feeney commented yesterday: "I was pleased that 17 owners thought I had enough integrity to overcome this. Hopefully, this would not affect my judgment if I would be appointed commissioner."

Old Bowling Team

DETROIT (AP) — The Stroh's team of Detroit is the oldest continuously sponsored bowling team in the country. They were organized in 1933 and the following spring they won the ABC title in Peoria, Ill.

Dawson, White West Captains

PALO ALTO (AP)—Quarterback Brooks Dawson of University of Texas-El Paso and tackle Ed White of University of California at Berkeley yesterday were named co-captains of the West Shrine team for the game with the eastern stars on Dec. 28 at Candlestick Park in San Francisco.

The Western and Eastern players sat down together for the traditional Christmas dinner and received watches and other gifts from the Shrine officials. The West squad did not work out today.

A Fat Report On Fishing From Weigh-station Boss

STEVENS

To begin today's column let's take note what Mike Crean of Sports of Spanish Flat, Lake Berryessa has to report. In brief Mike states the following:

"The trout have moved and have been relocated. They are lying outside major creeks, Marina Harbor launching ramp areas, and major coves leading toward a creek. The two marina harbor and launching ramp areas taking most of the trout the past two weeks have been Spanish Flat Launching Area to Cappell Creek and Steel Canyon mouths as well as Markley Cove launching area to Monticello Dam.

"Fishermen should troll shoreline leading toward the mouth of creeks, major coves and shorelines leading in and around launching ramps.

"The trout are still on the surface and hitting hard at Berryessa. Trollers should stick close to shore (30 feet) and use small Ford Fenders to attract. Best lures have been X-4 flat fish; 22 Okdokie, one two-ounce cast master and three-and-one-half-inch rebel.

"THE BASS have gone to deeper water due to the cold surface temperature Lake Berryessa now has. Bass are on the bite and averaging three to seven pounds per fish. The fishermen taking bass are plugging deep-running and bottom-bumping lures. Best lures have been bomber, water-dog, gold-bug bucktail, purple and black stingers, and Shannon twin spinners. Best areas north and south of the Vineyard, the Ranch House Cove, Skier's Cove, Spanish Flat Harbor entrance, and Eticura Creek at the Fill.

"The catfish are hitting clams and sardines. Best area forty-five in Portuguese Canyon, the Vineyards, Cappell Creek and Steel Canyon Park Headquarters and Eticura Creek Fill.

"CATS AVERAGING two to four pounds per fish, 'Doc' Baliff, our local Berryessa barber, brought one in this week topping the scales at eight pounds, so we also have the big lunkers, if one fishes deep for them like 'Doc.' Most of the cats in the two- to four-pound range are caught in shallow water near streams, coves and weeded areas.

"Note: Fish are being taken in both bad and good weather, which is good but strained. A photo showing nine bass and one trout was taken in the Vineyard during a northwind, but unfortunately cannot be reproduced in print."

The above report came in from Mike Crean, manager of Port of Spanish Flat (Official Weighing Station). For up-to-date fishing reports and weather call (707) 966-2346 Tuesday to Sunday, ask for Mike Crean or call Spanish Flat Marina.

Stocks Take Slight Dip At Closing

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market closed slightly lower today. Trading was moderate.

Stocks wiped out a small early gain and settled to the downside as bullish influences were lost in the welter of year-end transactions.

The averages were off a little, and losses exceeded gains by a small margin.

Prices near the close included:

American Cement, off 3/8 at 19 3/8; Central & Southwest Corp., off 1 1/4 at 43 3/4; Clorox when distributed, off 1 at 26 3/8; M-G-M, off 1 1/4 at 44 1/8; INA Corp., off 3 3/4 at 49 1/8; Lowe's Theatres, up 1 1/4 at 50; Roan Selection Trust, up 7/8 at 11 1/8; and Westinghouse Electric, up 1 7/8 at 68 3/4.

A technical recovery from six days of decline began yesterday and continued for a while today but ran out of steam.

Losses outnumbered gains in late trading by fewer than 100 issues.

Central & Southwest Industries, off more than a point, had the biggest volume, followed by M-G-M, down nearly a point.

Loew's Theatres, up nearly 2, was the best gainer among the 20 most-active stocks. In the same group INA Corp. dropped 3, Reynolds Tobacco, Shell Oil and Northwest Industries preferred a point or more.

Although the tradition of the yearend rally was still in mind, it was an unusually inactive week for the last one of the year. Caution prevailed before the weekend. The outlook for the economy, and the stock market seemed to remain in limbo and traders were taking no changes.

Yearend cross currents obscured the trend as it does so frequently in the last week of trading. Only two more days of trading remained after Friday.

Johns-Manville picked up 2 points. Westinghouse Electric, U.S. Smelting, Phelps Dodge, General Dynamics and International Telephone gained a point or better.

THE WEEK IN BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber Sees Slowing Down In '69

The economic outlook, according to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, is for a slowdown in the rate of expansion in 1969 accompanied by continued upward pressure on prices, even if the federal budget is held close to balance and a prudent monetary policy is followed.

The federal deficit (on a National Income Accounts basis) will almost disappear next year, says the chamber, falling from $12 billion in fiscal 1968 to $1 billion in fiscal 1969 as receipts rise faster than expenditures.

The Gross National Product is predicted to rise 6.5 per cent to about $915 billion. But more than half of this gain (or 4 percentage points) will represent price increases. The "real" estimated growth will decelerate to 2.5 per cent, substantially down from this year's 4.3 per cent rate.

The upward trend of federal spending will continue in 1969, although at a sharply reduced rate from 1968.

Construction outlays next year will depend largely on the cost and availability of mortgage money. A recent McGraw-Hill forecast of contract dollar volume in 1969 predicts a gain of 9 per cent — almost as much as this year's 10 per cent, but the projected increase is based on expiration of the surtax in midyear.

LFC FINANCIAL CORP. is the new name of Lytton Financial Corp. following completion of a recapitalization and reorganization plan. LFC has issued 4,115,818 shares to purchase the assets of Equitable Savings and Loan Association and Mission Savings and Loan Association and to retire $16.5 million in outstanding debts. Directors of LFC have named Charles A. Wellman, president; George A. Edwards, executive vice president, and William A. Giraldin, senior vice president.

CLIMATROL INDUSTRIES, INC. is the new name for the Worthington Air Conditioning Co. The company employs nearly 2,000 people and has approximately one million square feet of manufacturing and office area under roof on 172 acres in the United States. Large commercial and industrial heating and air conditioning equipment will continue to be produced in East Orange, N. J. and Decatur, Ala. Residential and light equipment will continue to be produced in Milwaukee.

ANIXTER BROS., INC. directors have decided to file an application of withdrawal of the company's registration statement from the Securities and Exchange Commission. Instead, a private placement of between $12 and $15 million is being arranged with institutional investors. The board has also directed management to resume its aggressive acquisition program which resulted in 1968 in Anixter's acquiring 13 other companies. The registration statement is being withdrawn because of the SEC's requirement that it contain audited statements of earnings of all purchased companies. Some audited statements were unavailable.

ISI SALES CORP., a soon-to-be formed corporation to distribute all funds, insurance and related products of Insurance Securities, Inc., has named Robert B. Ritter Jr. president. He was formerly general agent for Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. He will also become a vice president of the parent company.

PACIFIC SOUTHWEST AIRLINES has filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board an application for approval of its approved acquisition of control of Western Air Lines, Inc. PSA also requested a ruling that would allow shares of Western stock to be placed in a voting trust, thereby permitting consummation of an exchange of stock received in exchange for PSA stock without waiting for CAB approval of the merger.

EMCO DISTRIBUTORS will be the name used by Eiselman Distributing Co. of Emeryville and Moore and Clark of San Jose when they begin merged operations Jan. 2. Headquarters will be centered in Emeryville.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

More Aggressive Plans Could Bolster Portfolio

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I try to be a conservative investor because I will be turned out to pasture in a few years — I am 58. My holdings are $30 M Treasury Notes, Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, American Natural Gas, Bethlehem Steel, Eastern Air Lines, Plymouth Rubber, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Union Carbide. I would appreciate suggestions for improving my situation.—W.D.

A. You still have some productive years ahead — enough to justify a more aggressive approach toward investing.

Treasury Notes currently selling below par should be held for redemption in 1970. Both Amer. Natural Gas and Std. of New Jersey have a strong record of up-trending earnings and should be held. Air Reduction, although closely tied to the steel industry has expanded its penetration into other areas — particularly cryogenics — and should be held for growth. Eastern Air Lines' poor performance both in earnings and share action reflects industry problems of overcapacity. But long-term position and an apparent bottoming-out justify retaining the shares. Carbide, also in cryogenics, though a market laggard, now seems to have turned the corner and should be held.

I would replace Allied Chemical and Plymouth Rubber, which have reduced their dividends, and Bethlehem Steel, which may reduce, with equal dollar amounts of Boise Cascade, H. J. Henize and Magnavox. In each case capable management has demonstrated the ability to achieve a strong growth pattern. A continuation of these improving earnings trends should be reflected in share price.

Q. In 1941 I bought 16 shares of Container Corp. at 13 7/8. I can't find the original certificates, but do find certificates for 32 shares dated 1951, 8 shares 1954 and lots of 100 and 20 dated 1956. I have no idea where or at what price these shares were purchased. Can you give me the approximate cost?—B.V.

A. Judging by the dates and amounts I would say that these shares were acquired as the result of splits and a stock dividend. In 1951, after a 2-for-1 split, your original 16 shares were reflected by 32. A 25 per cent distribution added another 8 shares in 1954. Your final two certificates increased your 40 shares to 160 as the result of a 4-for-1 split. After all adjustments your original cost is reduced to $1.39 per share.

ANOTHER VOYAGE — The Apollo 8, which began a half-million mile journey around the moon and back last Saturday aboard a thundering Saturn rocket, is hoisted aboard the carrier Yorktown today for a 1,000-mile ocean trip to Hawaii. Photo was taken from a TV screen. (AP Wirephoto)

BULL'S-EYE LANDING ENDS APOLLO'S HISTORIC TRIP

Crew Decides Moon 'American Cheese'

ABOARD THE USS YORKTOWN (UPI) — America's amazing Apollo 8 astronauts blazed perfectly to a bull's-eye Pacific Ocean splashdown from a Yuletide journey around the moon today and reported it was "made of American cheese."

The lunar pioneers tore into the upper fringes of the air surrounding the "good earth" at nearly 25,000 miles per hour and streaked across the dark sky like a roller coaster to a landing only 6,000 yards from this veteran aircraft carrier.

They were safe, sound and happy at the end of the half-million mile Christmas journey that took them around the forbidding moon 10 times. It was an odyssey unprecedented in the annals of man.

The astronauts remained in their gently bobbing, charred command craft for more than an hour in the pre-dawn darkness. A cabin light shone through a window while the pilots waited for enough daylight to safely leave the moonship.

Beaming proudly in the first rays of the dawn, the spacemen left their craft at 9:04 p.m. PST and stepped out on the deck of this proud old ship 20 minutes later while its sailors cheered.

"We can't tell you how much we really appreciate being here, and how tremendous it is to take part in this event," said Apollo 8 Commander Frank Borman, who shaved with a small electric razor in the helicopter before boarding the carrier. His two companions, James Lovell and Wiliam Anders, wore heavy beards.

In the Houston Control Center, an American flag was unfurled over the tracking board, and the room blossomed with smaller flags on every console, and erupted in cheers.

"It's not made of green cheese at all," reported Borman as the spacecraft floated in the rolling seas waiting to be taken aboard the carrier. "It's made of American cheese."

It was a remarkable end to a mission that followed the book as closely as any in American spaceflight history.

"Hello there, Houston, how you doing?" Lovell said when the Space Center established contact with the astronauts, floating on the rolling seas.

"This is something for all mankind," said Dr. Thomas O. Paine, acting director of the U.S. Space Agency, at the Houston Space Center. "Man has started his drive out into the universe."

The six-ton Apollo cabin slashed into earth's atmosphere at an estimated 24,530 miles per hour and flashed across the night sky above the eastern Pacific leaving a trail of fiery gases in its wake.

The return was some 7,000 m.p.h. faster than previous earth orbital re-entries, and super-heated air boiled off the ship's heat shield at an estimated 4-740 degrees.

The astronauts' return was marked by the calm, business-like behavior displayed ever since Apollo 8 blasted from Cape Kennedy last Saturday on a mighty Saturn 5 rocket.

The astronauts rolled up a staggering list of "firsts" for both space and mankind—first men to leave earth's gravita-

November Sees Living Cost Hikes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Living costs rose another four-tenths of 1 per cent last month, continuing the sharpest price spiral since 1951, the government reported today.

Although grocery prices dropped five-tenths of 1 per cent in November, sharp increases for housing, clothing, transportation and medical care pushed the Labor Department's consumer price index up to 123.4.

The index figure means it cost $12.34 in November for every $10 worth of typical family purchases in the 1957-59 base period.

The price index rose 4.8 per cent during the first 11 months of 1968 and Asst. Commissioner Arnold Chase of the Bureau of Labor Statistics said the 1968 rise will probably wind up at about that level.

This would be the largest increase in consumer prices since the 5.9 increase in 1951 during the Korean war.

Gross weekly earnings of 45 million rank and file workers dropped from $110.38 to $109.21 in November because of a decline in the average workweek and price increases clipped another 1.5 per cent from the purchasing power of the average paycheck.

Compared with November 1967, purchasing power was down five-tenths of 1 per cent for the average worker with three dependents, the bureau said.

"That is the first time in 1968 the real spendible earnings dipped below year-ago levels," the bureau added.

A major factor in the November living costs increase was a boost of seven-tenths of 1 per cent in housing costs. Clothing was up six-tenths, transportation and medical care up five-tenths each and recreation costs up four-tenths.

The wholesale price index, reflecting the cost of wholesale food and industrial raw materials, rose five-tenths of 1 per cent last month to 109.6. Preliminary December figures indicate another rise of two-tenths this month.

The cost of a broad range of consumer services rose six-tenths of one per cent in November, the bureau said.

"Costs of owning and maintaining a home claimed eight-tenths of 1 per cent in November three-tenths of one per cent higher as widespread, in some cases unusually large, increases were posted," it added.

Biggest increases for clothing were for men's and boy's wool winter clothing. Over-all retail clothing prices rose 6.5 per cent during the year.

Furniture prices rose seven-tenths of 1 per cent in November and were nearly 6 per cent above a year ago, the report said.

New car prices rose 1 per cent, about usual for the month, and higher gasoline and oil prices added to the rise in transportation costs.

Food prices were down largely because of declines for eggs, pork and poultry. The over-all drop in grocery prices was about the usual seasonal decline, the bureau said.

Among wholesale industrial raw materials, the sharpest increases were for lumber and plywood, up 2.5 per cent in November and about 5 per cent more in December adding to an increase totaling nearly 20 per cent in the last year.

About 142,000 workers with wage-escalator clauses in their labor contracts will receive pay increases based on the rise in the government's consumer price index. These will range up to eight cents an hour based on varying periods.

Prayers Said By Families For Crewmen

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — For the families of the Apollo 8 astronauts the 147-hour ordeal of the space ship's fantastic round trip to the moon ended as it began: on a religious note.

And the wives of Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., and Air Force Mja. William A. Anders got a telephone call from President Johnson minutes after word that the space craft and its intrepid crew had splashed down safely.

The President told the wives, in a conference call, that the prayers of the whole country had contributed to the success of the flight. He said he expected to see the astronauts and their wives soon.

"Thank you, Mr. President," said Mrs. Borman. "I think it is a well-deserved victory. Thank you for your thoughtfulness. Thank you very much."

Mrs. Lovell began her day with a private communion at St. John's Episcopal Church.

And a mass was recited in the living room of the Anders home — just as it was on launch last Saturday.

Mrs. Frank Borman had the comfort of the Rev. James C. Buckner from St. Christopher's Episcopal Church in League City, Tex., just as on Saturday.

There was champagne in the ice box at all three homes, and friends—especially wives of other astronauts—arrived early with cakes.

There was one family member, however, who got out of bed only briefly for the festivities. Four-year-old Eric Anders became ill during the night and had 102-degree temperature. Mary O'Neill, a nurse who is a family friend, said it was nothing serious—just a head cold.

Red Chinese Nuclear Test Is Detected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist China detonated early today a nuclear device with a yield of about three megatons or three million tons of TNT, the Atomic Energy Commission announced.

The AEC said the atomspheric test, the eighth detected by the United States, occurred in the Lop Nor area about 2:30 a.m. Est.

The last nuclear blast detected from China occurred Christmas Eve 1967. It was the seventh since 1964 and was equal in force to about 20,000 tons of TNT, the AEC said then.

The blast today contained about the same amount of force as the sixth Chinese test on June 17, 1967, the AEC reported.

The Lop Nor area is the same region in which China detonated its seventh nuclear device. It is in the western desert in Sinkiang province about 450 miles from the Soviet border.

The United States is still awaiting the first Chinese long-range missile test which is more than a year overdue. In anticipation of the Chinese developing a force of intercontinental missiles with nuclear warheads by the mid-1970s, the United States has started on the Sentinel anti-missile defense system.

28-Mile Hoop In Heavens Meant Life Or Death For Astronauts

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—An imaginary hoop 28 miles in diameter hangs at 400,000 feet over the Pacific Ocean, about 1,150 miles due west of the Hawaiian islands.

Those 28 miles today were the most important distance figure for the Apollo 8 astronauts—Frank Borman, James Lovell and William Anders—to worry about.

That was the "hole in the sky" through which the spacecraft had pass to make the most demanding and potentially dangerous atmospheric re-entry ever faced by astronauts.

A mere one degree variation either side of the correct path posed the threat of death for the three men—either by fire, if they came into the atmosphere too sharply, or by suffocation, if they reentered at too shallow an angle.

LONG AIM

The astronauts aimed the spacecraft from almost a quarter-million miles away, and their aim—while the earth was merely a white, blue and brown ball in space—was so carefully taken they needed only one small course correction on the way back from the moon.

Lt. Gen. Samuel Phillips, head of the Apollo program, described why the spacecraft had to hit the hoop with such accuracy.

"The (re-entry) corridor is set on the upper limit by the skip-out boundary, and if we miss the corridor on the high side and in fact skip out, then it's a spacecraft and crew loss kind of situation," he said prior to the mission.

SKIPPING IN SPACE

In this case, the spacecraft would dip briefly into the edge of the air, and then, just as a flat stone strikes the surface of a pond and leaps back into the air, "skip" back into space and orbit.

Since the spacecraft separates from the service module, containing many of the life support systems as well as the big rocket engine that kicked them into and out of orbit around the moon, they would run out of air and electricity before they orbited close enough to the earth to try coming down again.

"The lower limit of the corridor is set by the high deceleration limit that the spacecraft would be subjected to if it came in too steeply...the deceleration would exceed 20 g's (20 times the force of gravity)," Phillips said.

"The heating rates would be in excess of those for which the spacecraft was designed, and there would be a structural breakup and loss of the spacecraft and crew."

In the latter case the end would come quickly.

But two unmanned apollo flights have proved the heat shield covering the moonship and the computer-guided entry monitor system, showing these can indeed bring astronauts home from the moon safely.

The re-entry path was planned to subject the astronauts to up to six g's.

Fiery Roller-Coaster Ride Ends Right On Sea Target

ABOARD THE USS YORKTOWN (AP) — Apollo 8, fresh from the moon, splashed down in the dark Pacific Ocean today within four miles of this target ship — a stunning display of accuracy after a tough, hot, roller-coaster re-entry.

It was one of the most accurate landings in the history of the manned space flight program. The spaceship was sighted in the water—its bright light flashing—within seconds of splashdown at 7:50 a.m. (PST).

Gemini 9 chalked up the most accurate landing, hitting within 300 yards of its target point. Gemini 11 was the closest splashdown to the recovery carrier—two miles.

But the Apollo 8—performing a difficult "bounce" re-entry full of potential dangers—landed at night after the hottest and fastest re-entry yet. It plunked down within 6,000 yards of this aircraft carrier.

So close was the splashdown that recovery helicopters were hovering over the spaceship within minutes, and one recovery helicopter illuminated the sea around the spaceship, almost immediately.

Swimmers had to wait for the first glint of morning light—but even then the frogmen were in the water around the bobbing spaceship 45 minutes after splashdown.

Mission Control in Houston said it had been advised by recovery forces that "a sonar technician from Columbia, S.C. named Chester Coggin" would be first in the water.

The other swimmers to follow Coggin were Lt. (j.g.) Richard Flanagan of Oklahoma City and Donald L. Schwab of Imperial Beach.

They hovered 50 feet above the bobbing capsule in the Pacific Ocean in a helicopter piloted by Cmdr. Donald S. Jones of Madison, Wis.

Jail Inmate Escapes From Here To There

Answering "here" to someone else's name seemed like a good way to get out of the "drunk tank" at the Marin County Jail early Christmas morning.

James Russell Shannon, 30, of San Francisco, now faces felony charges, however, for his unusual way of bailing himself out of jail.

Sheriff's officers said Shannon was booked into jail Christmas Eve for investigation of being drunk. About 2 a.m. on Wednesday a bail bondsman arrived to free another man in the drunk tank, Richard Allen Just, 29, of Santa Rosa.

When Just's name was called out, Shannon responded in place of the sleeping Just.

About two hours later Just awakened, identified himself and the mistake was discovered.

Officers, who learned that Shannon had gone to Marin General Hospital for treatment for alcoholism, arrested him again.

This time Shannon's bail was set at $1,000. He was to enter a plea today in Marin Municipal Court on the felony charge of attempted escape.

Cosmonauts Praise Crew

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten Soviet cosmonauts sent congratulations to the Apollo 8 astronauts today for "another milestone in scientific and technical progress."

Their telegram, made available here by the Soviet news agency Novosti, also relayed congratulations to "American scientists and all the American people on your successful flight."

Signing the telegram were cosmonauts Gherman Titov, Andrian Nikolaev, Pavel Popovich, Valery Bykovsky, Valentina Nikolaeva-Tereshkova, Boris Egorov, Konstantin Feoktistov, Pavel Belayev, Alexei Leonov and Georgy Beregovoi.

Pueblo Crewmen Applaud Apollo

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The 82 crewmen of the USS Pueblo freed from North Korean captivity congratulated the Apollo 8 astronauts today on their "tremendous achievements ... and triumphant return."

The congratulations came in a message to Apollo 8 families, who earlier this week wired the Pueblo crew that "your reunion has brought great joy into our hearts."

The telegram to the astronauts said:

"Although we 82 tried to monopolize the headlines, you three were just too much. We gladly relinquish the limelight."

Health Of Crew Concerns Probers

LT. EDWARD MURPHY
Misleads captors

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Navy is conducting intensive questioning of the freed crewmen of the USS Pueblo after examining doctors reported finding no serious defects, other than malnutrition.

A team of more than 100 intelligence specialists began talking with crewmen yesterday afternoon in what will become one of the most exhaustive investigations of a loss of a ship in Navy history, officials said.

The investigators want to know precisely how much sensitive electronic equipment may have been left intact when the North Koreans took control of the intelligence vessel.

MANY QUESTIONS

The circumstances of the Jan. 23 capture and treatment of the Americans also concern the questioners in great degree.

The word on the health of the 82 crewmen, returned to the United States last Tuesday after 11 months captivity in North Korea, came in a news conference yesterday from Rear Adm. Horace D. Warden, commanding officer of the U.S. Naval Hospital here.

"All of them show effects of malnutrition . . . instability in balance . . . and no doubt there are other deficiencies which we have not yet had time to study in depth," Warden said. Until now, he said, there have been no serious defects noted.

MISTREATMENT

He said all crewmen examined had been physically mistreated. There were no signs of tuberculosis, he said.

Warden said the men also are undergoing psychological testing since "all persons who have undergone an ordeal such as these men are subject to psychological pressures and changes. We must evaluate it."

One of the men to undergo some of the most intensive debriefing will be the ship's executive officer, Lt. Edward R. Murphy Jr., who was navigator on the bridge when the Pueblo was captured.

Murphy, looking more rested than at his first stateside news conference Tuesday, told newsmen he deliberately misled his North Korean captors when they forced him to draw charts that gave the Pueblo's position inside North Korean waters at the time of the capture.

"I wanted to make sure there were enough inaccuracies in what I was saying to be identified," Murphy said.

He said the North Korean officer "who had to prove the whole farce" had no navigational experience and allowed obvious errors to pass.

OTHER 'ERRORS'

The 31-year-old lieutenant from San Diego said the errors included positions that would have required a speed of 2,500 knots to maintain, and another position 32 miles inland. He said he planned the inaccuracies to show to the world that the evidence was doctored by the North Koreans.

"There is absolutely no question in my mind and the minds of the crew or of the captain that during no time did we intrude into the territorial waters of North Korea. At absolutely no time," Murphy said. "We never got anywhere near their territorial waters."

Murphy was not allowed to talk in detail about the actual capture of the ship. Navy officials said that only the ship's skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, could give those details. Bucher, who is ill, was not present.

At the same news conference, a Navy spokesman presented an exhaustive study which he said convinced the Navy that the Pueblo was no closer than 16 nautical miles from the nearest North Korean land when it was taken.

Police Led To Hidden Girl's Body

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A fugitive from a Missouri mental hospital has been charged with murder after leading police to the frozen body of 10-year-old Pamela Powers, missing since Christmas Eve.

A self-styled minister who identified himself as Anthony Erthell Williams, 24, a Negro, wordlessly directed detectives to Pamela's half-clothed body, wedged between a culvert and the side of a snow-covered 15-foot embankment, yesterday.

Police waited results of an autopsy to determine how the blonde, blue-eyed fourth-grader died and how long she had been in the spot near Mitchellville, 10 miles east of Des Moines on Interstate 80.

Des Moines Police Chief Wendell Nichols said Williams agreed to disclose the place to detective Capt. Cleatus Leaming and Lt. Wallace Nelson during the automobile trip from Davenport, Iowa, where Williams had turned himself in yesterday morning.

After his arraignment on an open charge of murder under heavy guard at the Des Moines police station yesterday, Williams spoke only to his lawyer, Henry T. McKnight of Des Moines.

Nichols said officers did not press Williams for details of the Christmas Eve abduction or slaying under terms of an agreement with McKnight on Williams' surrender.

Officers who accompanied Williams and the two detectives to the girl's body said Williams showed no signs of emotion.

"He was almost casual and not downcast," said one.

JOHN HIGGINS
How he looks now

'SLENDERELLA'

Crewman Sheds About 70 Pounds

SAN DIEGO (AP)—The low-fat diet of his North Korean captors helped John Higgins shed unwanted weight—about 70 pounds.

Behind the walls that held America's USS Pueblo crewmen, his mates tried to joke in their misery by calling Higgins "Slenderella."

The 6-foot-5 sailor from St. Joseph, Mo., still was no 97-pound weakling. He weighed 280 pounds when the U.S. intelligence ship was seized last Jan. 23. When he reached the 121st evacuation hospital in Ascom City, South Korea, last Sundy with the other 81 survivors, Higgins weighed 210.

There, he chowed down on such American nonsolids as chicken noodle soup, coffee, milk and juices. In five days he gained five pounds.

"I'd like to eat every kind of food there is," he said.

Most of his fellow captives lost 20 to 40 pounds in the compound at Pyongang, North Korea. Their diet consisted of the food of the season—"during winter we had turnips a lot. In the summer we had some kind of spinach plant and we had a lot of cabbage."

Admiral Holding Off Pueblo Prejudgment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chief of naval operations, says "I'm not going to prejudge" whether the officers and men of the U.S. intelligence-gathering ship Pueblo conducted themselves properly while held captive by North Korea.

At least two admirals have referred publicly to Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher, the Pueblo's skipper, and the other 81 surviving crew members as heroes.

"Some people have expressed personal opinions," Moorer acknowledged when asked about this in an interview. He indicated he was not criticizing them.

The Navy's top admiral insisted expression of personal opinions by high ranking officers will not impair a Navy court of inquiry's ability to reach an objective judgment.

ADM. THOMAS MOORER
'I am confident'

Moorer said "I am confident" the Pueblo did not enter North Korea's claimed territorial waters.

If the ship had done so, Bucher would have been violating his sailing orders to stay at least 13 miles clear of North Korean territory.

A Navy court of inquiry at San Diego under Vice Adm. H.G. Bowen probably will open proceedings in two weeks after the recuperating crew has had some leave.

Pacific Fleet commander Adm. John G. Hyland, who will review the findings of the court, told the Pueblo's crewmen earlier this week that "you are regarded as a group of young heroes."

Rear Adm. Edwin M. Rosenberg has spoken of Bucher as "a hero among heroes."

Among other things, the court will consider whether the crew men lived up to the Code of conduct which specifies how American military men shall handle themselves when prisoners of a hostile nation.

A key section of the code states that:

"When questioned, should I become a prioner of war, I am bound to give only name, rank, service number, and date of birth. I will evade answering further questions to the utmost of my ability. I will make no oral or written statements disloyal to my country and its allies or harmful to their cause."

This code was drawn up in 1955 following instances in the Korean war in which Americans signed statements critical of their country while imprisoned in North Korea.

There were several occasions when the North Koreans released film and tape recordings of Pueblo crewmen allegedly confessing to espionage and aggression.

In one such film, Bucher was recorded as admitting the Pueblo was well within the North Korean territorial sea limits.

Also, relatives said they had received letters from members of the crew in which they wrote of their guilt. However, many of the relatives said the language in the letters was stilted, unnatural and strained.

In a news conference after being freed, Bucher told newsmen he had surrendered the Pueblo to avoid useless bloodshed. He also said the alleged confessions were made to "save some people from some very serious misfortunes."

Seeking Course

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Jewish group has petitioned the National Association of Temple Educators to initiate a course dealing with the history of their people in Eastern Europe.

David Klonoff of Daly City, acting chairman of the student ad hoc committee for education of Soviet Jewry, presented the petition Thursday to delegates at the national convention of the association.

The request, which is expected to be acted upon this week, urged the association to create a course on Soviet Jewry in religious schools of the nation. The petition also asked that such a course be given for eight-week periods in the ninth and tenth grades of schools belonging to the association.

REDDING (UPI) — Sunny skies provided an opportunity yesterday for Redding's 16,000 residents to dig out from under snow dumped by the worst storm to hit northern California this season.

Damage caused by the 18 inches of snow was estimated at $3.2 million by the Shasta County Civil Defense Department.

The roofs of at least 10 buildings caved in under the load of snow in Redding and accounted for $2 million of the damage total.

Hundreds of homes were without electricity for nearly five days of the storm.

Denies Jet Attack

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The government denied today a charge by an Israeli cabinet member that the Lebanese regime was to blame for the attack on the El Al jetliner by two Arab terrorists yesterday in Greece.

The Israeli charge was made by Transport Minister Moshe Carmel.

A statement carried by Lebanon's official news agency said the government here considers the charge unfounded and without basis.

Apollo 8 Success Hastens Date For Lunar Landing Experiment

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 8's trail-blazing flight around the moon has given space planners a firm foothold to try for a moon landing in the next few months—maybe April or May.

One major piece of Apollo hardware still remains to be qualified, the lunar module spacecraft that will taxi future astronauts from a three-man Apollo craft in lunar orbit to the moon's surface.

That four-legged lunar lander is to get its first manned space test about Feb. 20 during America's next three-man mission, Apollo 9.

If the lunar module performs perfectly in earth orbit on Apollo 9, astronauts conceivably could land on the moon on the following flight, Apollo 10, in April or May.

Present plans for Apollo 10—to be flown by a three-man crew headed by veteran astronaut Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford—call for the pilots to fly a moon orbit mission in which the lunar module separates from a three-man Apollo spaceship and approaches within 10 miles of the surface, but does not land.

"Our present plans are to not commit Apollo 10 for a landing," said Air Force Lt. Gen. Samuel C. Phillips, Apollo program director. However, "We might want to exercise a more ambitious option," he noted, as was done when the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) decided to send Apollo 8 around the moon.

The first lunar landing mission is now expected by Apollo 11, next May or June. Astronauts have not yet been assigned for that flight.

The particular lunar module assigned to Apollo 10 does not have fuel tanks with enough capacity and weighs too much for a lunar landing. So if a decision is made to fly the Apollo 10 crew to the moon's surface, another lunar module would have to be assigned to the mission, Phillips pointed out.

Television will continue to be an important factor in the space flights.

Apollo 9 in February may include a live telecast of astronaut Russell L. Schweickart walking in space from the lunar module back to the three-man Apollo craft. With him in Apollo 9 will be Air Force Col. James A. McDivitt and Lt. Col David R. Scott.

And television cameras will also be aboard on the following missions—including the lunar landing itself.

Chemist Calls U.S. World's Top Polluter

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The United States apparently is the world's worst polluter of the planet's atmosphere and oceans with pollutants ranging from pesticide residues to radioactive fallout from past nuclear tests, a scientist said today.

Dr. Edward D. Goldberg, a chemist of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, La Jolla, Calif., said in a report to the 135th meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science:

"The United States, in comparison with the rest of the world, appears to be responsible for around one-third to one-half of many of the contaminants introduced into the atmosphere or oceans."

Speaking especially of the growing "chemical invasion of the oceans," with industrial and other pollutants released by the United States and many other nations, Goldberg indicated in his prepared remarks that conceivably this might have detrimental effects on certain species of sea-life—and even backfire on man by contaminating some of the food he gets from the sea.

He urged increased research to determine whether such dangers exist, and added:

"The ability to predict undesirable results along these lines may lead to necessary and protective public policies concerning such encroachments."

He said the oceanic levels of new-type pesticides, such as DDT, have risen since their introduction following World War II to such values "that the body burdens of such deep-living fish as the tuna are similar to those of terrestrial organisms, including man."

"Radioactive species from the detonation of nuclear devices and missions from nuclear reactors are found at all levels in all oceans," he said.

At the same meeting, researcher Reid A. Bryson of the University Wisconsin said the climate of the world has shown a slight cooling trend since 1940 and that this appears to be directly related to the increased smoke and dust pollution of the atmosphere by mankind's industrial and other pursuits.

And its conceivable, he added, that if such pollution remains unchecked, profound effects on world climate could result.

Apollo Flight Amazes Cousin

PRAGUE (AP) — A Czech cousin of astronaut James Lovell said today he plans to cable congratulations to his famous relative as soon as Apollo 8 gets back from the moon.

Dr. Frantisek Masek, head physician at the children's hospital in Pilsen told the newspaper Svobody Slova: "The whole family is sitting at the TV screen, and we are listening to the reports of this amazing flight. We will be sending a telegram of congratulations as soon as he lands."

Lovell's mother, Blanka Masek, was one of six members of the family who emigrated from a small village near Pilsen to America "several dozen years ago," the paper said.

Hallway Spat Delays Marijuana Sentencing

Sentencing of a convicted marijuana seller was continued today in Marin Superior Court following a heated argument over courthouse hallway comments by a narcotics agent.

Scheduled for sentencing on his Nov. 20 conviction for selling over two pounds of marijuana Feb. 6 was Fred Mark Ambrozic, 30, of no fixed address.

Jesse W. Johnson, deputy probation officer, said in his report to Judge Joseph G. Wilson that the agent, Alfred Texeira of the Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau, told him in a hallway following Ambrozic's arrest that Ambrozic had used several minors to make marijuana sales.

Judge Wilson noted that no such testimony was made during the trial and said he considered such a charge as "critical enough" to postpone sentencing until the agent can testify on the matter.

He said the issue may mean the difference between giving Ambrozic only a year in county jail, or sending him to state prison.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Jerry Herman asked the prison term, calling Ambrozic a "professional" seller of marijuana. He cited Ambrozic as "the ideal case" of "grand scale operations" in narcotics.

"We must make it apparent to everybody in Marin County that we're not going to tolerate this traffic in marijuana," said Herman. "It's time we made people . . . realize that Marin County is not a Mecca for dope peddling."

Johnson told Judge Wilson that Ambrozic had boasted to him of making $4,000 in a few days by selling marijuana in the Squaw Valley area.

The defendant responded, "That's a flat lie." He said he made the money at odd jobs in Squaw Valley and denied ever making such comments to Johnson. He also denied having used minors in any sales.

In view of the accusations and denials, Judge Wilson said the continued hearing will be held when Texeira is available for further testimony.

tional field, first men to orbit the moon, fastest and farthest from Earth men have ever traveled.

The astronauts were expected to remain aboard the Yorktown tonight and fly to Hawaii tomorrow. They are due home at Houston early Sunday.

Borman, Lovell and Anders brought back hundreds of photographs that may yield significantly new scientific data to the understanding of the celestial sphere that has awed man since his beginning.

Apollo 8's course was so accurate that a final steering correction planned earlier today was canceled.

When told they were one minute away from entering the atmosphere they had missed for six days, all that was heard from Borman was a terse "Roger."

Quickly the force of gravity built up to 6.8 times that felt by man on Earth, then it began easing off. About the same time, Apollo 8 passed through the hottest part of its re-entry.

"A real fireball," came the comment from one of the astronauts.

"We're looking good," came a report moments later.

State Financial Picture Brighter

SACRAMENTO (AP) — California's General Fund revenue was about $306 million higher between July 1 and Nov. 30, 1968, than in the same period one year ago, Controller Houston I. Flournoy said today.

But Flournoy reported that receipts for the first five months of fiscal 1968-69 still were about $138 million below expenditures. The state normally borrows from other funds to meet General Fund deficits.

But this year's borrowing is about $30 million, compared to $103.5 million at the end of November, 1967, Flournoy said. He said the increased revenue this year was a result of new taxes enacted in 1967.

Federal Probe In Fatal Crash

Representatives of the Federal Aviation Agency today were investigating the cause of the crash of the small plane at Gnoss Field in Novato yesterday in which two men were killed.

A spokesman for Marin Aviation at the airport said that federal officials were at the airport today.

Stephen McCaffrey, 23, of Santa Rosa, an instructor for Marin Aviation, and his pupil, William J. Filkorn Jr., 31, of Mill Valley, died in the accident.

It was the first fatal crash at Gnoss Field since opening of the airport in 1959.

Busy Year Seen For Tax Rulings

CHICAGO (AP) — This could be the most prolific revenue ruling year in the history of the Internal Revenue Service.

Commerce Clearing House, in a study, said IRS has already published some 500 revenue rulings, and the projection by year's end could exceed 750.

The IRS annually issues thousands of private letter rulings to individual taxpayers.

One reason for the increase in rulings is that the 1954 code has revamped the nation's tax laws. Also new rulings replace or eliminate old, obsolete rulings as part of the agency's house-cleaning program.

Deer have a four-chamber stomach that makes possible the breakdown of cellulose in plants into a usable form.

Prince Carlos' Family Booted

MADRID (AP) — The family of Prince Carlos Hugo of Bourbon-Farma, the Carlist pretender to the Spanish throne, has been ordered out of Spain, a family spokesman said last night.

Gen. Francisco Franco's government expelled the prince Dec. 20 after he made a speech critical of the government and Franco's favorite for the throne, Prince Juan Carlos of Bourbon.

The family spokesman said Carlos Hugo's father and mother, Prince Xavier and Princess Magdalena, and his two sisters, Princess Maria Teresa and Princess Maria de las Nievas, were returning to their home in Paris.

Promotion Seen Only For Anders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only one of the three Apollo astronauts who returned today from a voyage around the moon probably will get a spot military promotion.

The other two were upgraded after previous space trips and have reached the upper limit of such promotions.

Air Force Maj. William A. Anders is expected to be raised to lieutenant colonel.

Air Force Col. Frank Borman and Navy Capt. James Lovell will stay at their present rank, Pentagon officials said.

New Supervisors Due Oath Jan. 7

Three new members of the Marin County Board of Supervisors will be sworn in on Jan. 7, the first regular meeting date of 1969.

County Clerk George H. Gnoss said he plans to swear in supervisors-elect Peter R. Arrigoni, Louis H. Baar, and Michael Wornum in the supervisors chambers at the Civic Center. The three will then join Supervisors William A. Gnoss and John F. McInnis for the year's first session.

Arrigoni will replace Ernest N. Kettenhofen of the Second District, Baar will take over the Fourth District post from Thomas T. Storer, and Wornum will succeed Peter H. Behr of the Third District.

Chamber Elects New Directors

Four new directors of the Greater San Rafael Chamber of Commerce have been elected to three-year terms by the chamber membership.

They are Paul Ciampi of Ciampi Distributor Co., Sidney Dorn of Macy's, Ken Reichard of the Photo Shop, and James Wieder of Minto & Wilkie Insurance Agency.

Benjamin Farnham, Carlos Gonzales, Richard Martz and David Kahler were the defeated candidates.

The new board will meet on Jan. 8 at the Elks Club to elect a new president, vice president and treasurer.

The election results were announced by Jean Bushing, Sue Croke and Andrew B. Busey, the chamber's election committee, after counting of the ballots today.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Acts Implied In Contracts

Mrs. Johnson had made a contract to lease an apartment. One day she leaned against a balcony railing. It gave way and she fell and hurt herself badly. She sued the landlord for negligence.

In most leases the tenant — not the landlord — has the legal duty to keep a place in repair. Although the law of California by statute puts the duty of repair on the landlord if the premisies are for human habitation, the parties can agree otherwise.

Even when the place needs repair and the landlord keeps it in repair, the tenant usually has to report to the landlord any work that needs to be done.

The lease said that Mrs. Johnson had to keep the place in repair, and report to the landlord any needed repair work. This she had failed to do.

Ordinarily this fact would have ended the lawsuit. But another factor entered. A county ordinance said handrails and balconies could be only so high, and had to be anchored solidly.

In this case, the court agreed that the county laws and building codes were, in effect, unwritten parts of Mrs. Johnson's lease. Where the lease contract and the laws differed, the laws would prevail anyhow. So she had a case against the landlord after all.

Building codes and county safety laws aim to safeguard life and property. A landlord's neglect in obeying these laws, as a rule, can make him liable for any injuries that others suffer as a result.

Thus, many state and local rules control. Whether the agreement says so or not, these laws often become an unwritten part of a contract.

The California Division of Industrial Safety puts out safety regulations; and tenants, business callers, or workers have a right to rely upon the property owner to obey them. The state housing laws call for protection of health and safety in hotels, apartments, and dwellings. In certain cases this law may well be part of leases for such places.

Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.

Role Of White Rat Now Is Challenged

By SCIENCE SERVICE

WASHINGTON — When the House of Hanover sailed from Germany to England in 1714, the ship transported rats as well as kings. The rats, pugnacious east Asian natives dubbed Norway rats or Rattus norvegicus, had quickly become the dominant strain in Europe, displacing the common black rat which is probably the strain the Pied Piper led out of Hamelin 430 years earlier.

By 1822, when rat baiting was a popular sport in England and France, albino forms of the brown norvegicus appeared and were often rescued from the baiting pits by collectors and breeders.

Through the precise origin of these white rats is unknown, records show they were being used experimentally in Paris by 1856, thus beginning their climb to supremacy in the scientific world.

By the early 1900's psychologist John B. Watson was running white rats through mazes, building the theories of behavior and learning that held dominion over psychology for 40 years, and the rat's position in research was, and virtually still is, assured.

Only now is the white rat's role as chief guinea pig for psychology being challenged, not directly by psychologists but by psychologists with a strong background in biology.

Dr. Robert E. Lockard of the University of Washington in Seattle contends that the white rat, somewhat randomly selected for learning studies in the first place, has become so transformed by generations of captivity that it is not only not a human being, as common extrapolations from animal studies might suggest, but is not even a very good rat. It is certainly unlike the wild Norway from which it sprung. The wild animal is pugnacious, the domestic mild; the wild is afraid of man, the laboratory breed is not. The white rat is 20 per cent fatter than its now distant cousin, but its brain, thyroid and adrenal glands weigh less.

"It is possible," Dr. Lockard suggests, "that the white rat is an anomalous freak. We don't know how it has degenerated genetically. Research with it is risky, particularly psychological research."

Animals, Dr. Lockard observes, are the result of certain combinations of genes from the gene pool of the population. Differences among species exist because gene pools differ. In the same way, strains of the same species differ because they do not share the same pool, even though some genes may be held in common. At this point, he contends, white rats have very little in common genetically with wild Norway and very little in common with any other animal. "They are, in fact, man-made animals that never existed before."

And that is critical, even to behavior studies.

"Theoretically every gene may contribute to some degree of behavioral variance," says Dr. John L. Fuller, a behavioral geneticist at the Jackson Laboratories in Bar Harbor, Maine. Just as certain genes are associated with fur color or bone structure, other genes can be associated with behavior and learning. If an animal loses the need to behave or learn in certain ways, within a few generations the genes originally responsible for that behavior could be weakened or lost.

Psychologists studying learning in white rats, Dr. Lockard declares, ignore the genetic determinants involved, favoring the belief that learning differences are due to "emotional factors, mere physical differences, or sometimes to parameters or constants in equations." In addition, he charges them with seeing learning as a single process, a completely general mechanism that operates roughly the same way in one species as in another. Learning should be viewed, he says, as a complex of processes related to the animals' adaptive needs.

Youths Booked In Drug Probe

Three Novato youths, two 15 and one 16, have been cited to the sheriff's juvenile bureau for alleged possession of marijuana.

Deputies said the trio was found parked on Crest Road, Black Point, about 1 p.m. Monday.

Sheriff's officers found a brown paper bag containing a small quantity of marijuana in the car, officers said. They said a pipe used for smoking narcotics was also in the vehicle.

Troupe Member To Read On Campus

Joseph Lomuto, a member of the San Francisco Mime Troupe, will give a "performance of poetry" at 3 p.m. Jan. 7 at the Sonoma State College student lounge.

Lomuto performed at the college last year and has since been on a national tour of college campuses and coffee houses. His program is part of the college poetry series.

Motorist Sought In Cash Theft

Sheriff's officers today sought a motorist for questioning in the theft of about $200 from a cash box at Julian's Strawberry service station, 798 Redwood Highway, Strawberry.

Roy E. Saunders, station employee, told deputies a tall Negro with long bushy hair drove up about 2:25 p.m. Wednesday, and entered the office. Saunders said he went outside to service another car and that the money was missing upon his return.

He said when he began questioning the man, the man ran outside to his car and drove away.

Little Things Go Awry On Apollo

ABOARD USS YORKTOWN (AP) — In this space age, sometimes the simplist things don't work.

The swimmers attaching flotation collars to the Apollo 8 space capsule, were unable to make a simple telephone connection work.

But their little hand radios got through fine, to the astronauts three feet away.

Hayakawa Is More Hopeful Now Of Peaceful Reopening Of State

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—S. I. Hayakawa, acting president of San Francisco State College, says it appears now that his campus might be able to reopen peacefully Jan. 6.

But he hinted at a news conference yesterday he is ready to rely again on "massive police forces" if they are required to quell disturbances on the 18,000-student campus.

He expressed the hope and the warning at the same time he announced allocation of $300,000 in new funds to stave off a possible faculty crisis next spring.

Without the money, word of which came from state college Chancellor Glenn Dumke's office, 120 faculty positions might have had to be slashed.

Hayakawa said it was a kind of "Christmas present" from Dumke's office.

(In Marin tonight, a rally was scheduled at 8 p.m. in Mill Valley City Hall to discuss strike issues. Strike leaders and San Francisco State faculty members were to speak at the rally, sponsored by the San Francisco State Support Committee of Marin.)

Hayakawa said his optimism for a peaceful campus reopening following the Christmas vacation stems from communications with the Black Students Union and the Third World Liberation Front, two militant student groups.

He did not elaborate.

Hayakawa said the college is ready to establish a black studies department in February, and that Negro professor Nathan Hare will head it.

The department is the college's first system for offering a four-year course leading to a bachelor's degree in black studies.

"It would appear now," Hayakawa said, "that any further expenditure of energy in striking for increased minority opportunities is clearly self-defeating."

Today in San Francisco, representatives of higher education's "silent majority" were to gather for an organizational meeting to solidify their efforts to prevent further campus disruptions around the state.

Hayakawa said representatives from 20 campus units of the fledgling Committee for Academic Environment would meet through tomorrow in planning sessions at San Francisco's Hilton Hotel.

The committee became prominent during two weeks of San Francisco State violence when members passed out blue armbands, symbols of opposition to student disturbances and strikes.

Palace Hotel Will Be Saved

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—San Francisco's Sheraton-Palace Hotel, a historical landmark, will not be torn down.

Ernest Henderson III, president of Sheraton-Palace chain, yesterday issued a denial of rumors the structure would be razed. The rumors apparently resulted from discussions with city officials over the possibility of building a new skyscraper hotel.

"Sheraton has been considering for many years the possibility of a second hotel for San Francisco," Henderson said.

Los Angeles Builds Widest Freeway Yet

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The world's widest highway—a freeway with 12 lanes of traffic—will be constructed over a three-mile stretch in Los Angeles starting in the fall of 1969.

The highway is the San Bernardino Freeway which is now six lanes in the section to be widened. Engineers hope to keep six lanes of traffic flowing throughout the project which will be completed in late 1971 or early 1972.

Leary, Wife, Son Booked On Marijuana

LAGUNA BEACH (AP) — Dr. Timothy Leary, a leading proponent of the mind-bending drug LSD, was arrested with his wife and teen-age son last night on marijuana possession charges.

Police Sgt. Wendell Faulk said a patrolman discovered marijuana in their car when he cited Leary for stopping it in the middle of the street.

Leary, 48, told the Associated Press the arrests were part of a continuing "police provocation and harassment."

Leary was booked on suspicion of possession. His wife, Rosemary, 34, and son, John, 19, were booked on suspicion of possession with intent to sell. Faulk said Leary and his wife were released on $2,500 bail each.

But he said the son was being held "because of his condition." Faulk refused to elaborate.

Faulk would not say how much marijuana was found other than "an amount sufficient to warrant the intent charges."

The Learys have lived in a beachfront cottage here since they were married in November 1967.

After his release, Leary said in a telephone interview, "This is the 23rd time in 13 months that my family and I have been stopped and searched in a car and, for much of this time, our house has been under police surveillance."

He said his car had been "legally parked in front of the house of one of John's friends. We'd been there three or four minutes, saying goodbye to John before dropping him off, when the policeman showed up."

Czarist Fortune Claimant Weds

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Anna Anderson, 67, who claims to be Russia's long-lost Grand Duchess Anastasia, was married Monday to a 49-year-old former history professor at the University of Virginia.

The bridegroom is Dr. John E. Manahan, who has been active for a decade in her efforts to prove herself the youngest daughter of Czar Nicholas II and only survivor of the Russian royal family. He met Mrs. Anderson last July.

Most historical sources say the czar and all his family were assassinated by the Bolsheviks in 1918. Mrs. Anderson, however, says she was only wounded by the firing squad and was smuggled into Romania by a young Russian soldier named Anderson, whom she later married.

Trees, Snow Cushion Jet's Crash; 66 Safe

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) — An Ozark Air Lines DC9 jet with 62 passengers crashed into heavy snow in a grove of trees on take-off from the Sioux City Airport this morning, but no one was killed or seriously injured.

"The snow is what saved us," said a passenger, Airman Larry Cornwell, 22, Pender, Neb. "It was a soft landing. There was no real hard jar. Just a nice, floating stop." The airplane, on flight No. 982 from Sioux City to Chicago, landed on its belly after its right wing dipped as it took off, witnesses said. The plane's right wing was sheared off.

Ambulances rushed at least 32 persons, many of them returning home from Christmas holiday visits, to hospitals, where spokesmen said most of the injuries consisted of bruises and cuts.

"It made me a firm believer in seat belts," said another passenger, Spec. 5 Curtis Eng, Flandreau, S.D., who was headed for Fort Campbell, Ky.

"As we were leaving the end of the runway and making our sharp climb, I heard a popping noise in the right engine," said Cornwell, who is stationed at Stewart Air Force Base near Newburgh, N.Y.

"The plane veered off to the right, then veered sharply to the left, and the next thing I knew we were crashing through trees and snow."

One engine continued to whine after the jet came to rest in about 14 inches of snow.

The plane cut a wide path through the trees before coming to rest upright. There was no fire.

The plane, with a crew of four, crashed at 7:05 a.m. at the north end of the runway.

Asst. Fire Chief Allen Molsko, one of the first persons on the scene, said people, many of them in shirtsleeves, were streaming out of the plane in temperatures in the low 20s.

"One stewardess was cut up pretty bad," said fireman Jerry Strand, "but she wouldn't get into the ambulance until everyone was out of the aircraft."

Rural House Fire Kills 6 Persons

GRANVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Six persons, two of the children, perished early today in a fire that destroyed a two-story frame house in a rural section. Officials said the temperature was 15 below zero and the fire might have been caused by an overheaded wood stove.

Mrs. Elizabeth Buschee, the wife of the owner, and one of her three children, Thomas, 10, escaped by jumping from a second-floor window. They were taken to a hospital in satisfactory condition, suffering from frostbite, shock, bruises and lacerations.

Joseph Buschee, 32, the owner, his brother, Edward, 36, Mrs. Nellie Williams, 68, Fred Steele, 65, Ruth Jane Sumner, 5, and Walter Carl Sumner, 10, were killed.

Running jackrabbits have been timed at 40 miles per hour.

Drunken Train Driving Charged

MONZA, Italy (AP) — An investigating judge is trying to decide what to do with two engineers who police say got drunk and took the Sondrio-Milan electric train on a wild run.

Police said Ferruccio Civardi and Giuseppe Villani, both 55, took 30 bottles of wine from a freight car and drank most of it.

In a police report turned over to the judge today, witnesses told of empty bottles flying from the locomotive window as the two men piloted their train Sunday through the Alpine foothills. Sometimes they went slow, sometimes fast, and now and again they'd stop.

When they stopped, many of the frightened passengers jumped off.

The judge will decide what charges, if any, are to be brought against the pair.

A Pleasant Diversion Makes Bow

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — Give the old boy-meet-girl routine a mild little age twist and you get a moderately pleasant diversion called "Forty Carats," which opened last night at Broadway's Morosco Theater.

Romance this time involves a Prince Charming of 22 who gets all wow about a twice-divorced damsel of 40, with a subplot hooking up a lass of 17 to a big daddy of 45 just to keep the gender generation gap balanced.

Since the heroine of the title — which rather desperately equates years somehow with diamond facets—is played by Julie Harris, the charade maintains an engaging plausibility. Miss Harris projects a neat combination of uptight old-fashioned morality and new-fangled complacency about changing attitudes.

Having met her on a Greek island holiday, the swain (Marco St. John) pursues her through the sleek and swinging byways of fashionable Manhattan, so that we can get in some quips about everything from apartment-hunting to psychedelic jazz.

The comedy was adapted by Jay Allen from a French piece written by Pierre Barillet and Jean Pierre Gredy, who previously provided producer David Merrick with the source material that became his longrun "Cactus Flower."

Mrs. Allen doesn't write with urbane uniformity, so some quips twinkle, others thud and once she resorts to jarring crudity. Most of the dialogue glides along with predictable amiability.

Abe Burrows has directed with functional suavity, and the Will Steven Armstrong settings colorfully switch events from the Aegean to the Hudson. A fashion display of latest male and female attire wins plaudits for William McHone.

"Forty Carats" doesn't weigh in on the theatrical scales at anything near that value, but it is an affable, amusing pastime."

FLEET MEN, FLEET FEET

First Lady Reviews Five Hectic Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson says the thing she's happiest about leaving behind after five years in the White House are all the early morning, often ominous, telephone calls to the President.

"The horrendous ring of that telephone at 4 o'clock that drags you to consciousness and you know on the other end that it is something significant," Mrs. Johnson says. "And it is never good when it rings at that time.

"It is—and then, the sense of responsibility. It is not my responsibility but it does spill over into the whole climate of your life."

Mrs. Johnson also says she will be happy to leave behind the deadlines she and the President constantly face and the 18-hour work days.

Mrs. Johnson says the President, like other men across the nation, brings the problems of his job home with him. And he also brings home unexpectedly the people he works with.

She said, however, she wanted the President to bring the burdens home to her after a long day in office.

"When he comes alone, he brings the problems and, you know, I would feel that it was—I would feel somehow I had failed if he didn't," she said. "Because where else can he feel more relaxed about them and more—where would he have an audience better suited to hearing about them quite privately and quite honestly?"

One of the most difficult things for her to leave behind, Mrs. Johnson said, is what she calls the magnetism of the White House.

"This house is a magnet, a crossroads of good conversation, for ideas, for stimulation," she says. "All the political leaders of the country and indeed of the whole free world come through these doors, and businessmen and labor leaders and people from arts and entertainment and scientists.

The bagpipe was one of the earliest musical instruments used in Europe.

LBJ Hails Apollo Feat As New Era

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, sending his congratulations today to mankind's first pathfinders to the moon, told them they had ushered the world into a new era.

"We rejoice that you're well and we send you congratulations from all your fellow countrymen and all peace-loving peoples in the world," the President said.

"Well done."

Johnson disclosed the White House had used the hot line to Moscow to keep the Soviet government informed of the progress of the historic flight to the moon and back.

"The Soviets were very solicitous about the welfare of you astronauts and expressed great interest," Johnson said.

The President said the Apollo 8 astronauts' triumphant return from space had made people proud to be alive at this moment of man's greatness.

"You made us feel kin to those Europeans five centuries ago who first heard news of the New World," Johnsaon said.

Congratulating Air Force Col. Frank Borman, Navy Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., and Air Force Maj. William A. Anders, the President told them:

"You've seen what man has never seen before."

LBJ's Biggest Wish Still Vietnam Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, nearing the end of his service as president, said today the one goal that has eluded him is peace in Vietnam

Johnson summed up his accomplishments and looked ahead to his years out of the office at a far-ranging news conference held while the moon traveling Apollo 8 astronauts were being picked up in the Pacific.

Johnson pointed to the success of the Apollo mission as one of the high points of his years in the White House.

"We've come so fast, so far and so good," he said, "that I've said many prayers these last few days in thanks for what we've done."

Johnson also pointed to the health of the economy, the return of American war prisoners from Cambodia and the release of the Pueblo crew by the North Koreans as reasons for him and the nation to be thankful as the year ends.

But what really counts, the president added, "is to keep people from dying."

He said that Cyrus R. Vance, deputy negotiator for the United States at the Paris peace talks on Vietnam, told him he believes "we can get going on substantive talks when he returns there." Vance is due back in Paris tonight.

Asked for specifics on Vance's remarks, Johnson said only that "he expressed the hope that when he got back progress could be made."

Johnson, his voice hoarse, looked tired. He said he was going home to his Texas ranch in hopes of making better progress toward clearing up a persistent cough than he has been able to make in Washington.

Johnson was hospitalized for four days last week with the flu.

He said his immediate future when he leaves the White House will be devoted to three things: rest, reading and writing.

He said he will undertake no jobs of any kind, including positions on any board of directors or chancellorships of any universities.

One task that will keep him busy, he said, is working over 31,000,000 pages of records of his administration to prepare them for storing in the Johnson Library to be built at the University of Texas.

Computer Cannot Fool A Politico

ROSWELL, N. M. (AP) — A computer at the Eastern New Mexico State Fair in Roswell recently returned these remaks when Gov. David F. Cargo fed in his signature:

"You derive a lot of pleasure from discussion of the issues of the day. You are well qualified to direct people in the field of learning. Unique experiences have given you great love for others. You believe in the powers of persuasion, but never abuse it."

The governor said he "had known this all along."

Giant Tax Bill For Sophia Loren

ROME (AP) — Actress Sophia Loren and Carlo Ponti have been given the largest city tax bill of any couple in Italy.

Rome tax assessors listed yesterday a combined taxable income for the couple of $1 million and called for $147,000 in taxes. Miss Loren was credited with $560,000 in earnings. Her tax equals that of Giovanni Agnelli, president of Fiat industries and considered Italy's richest man.

Santa Rosa May Get Air Service

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Air West's northbound service from here, halted in September, will be resumed next April if the Civil Aeronautics Board approves the airline's proposal to consolidate former Pacific and West Coast airline routes still being operated separately.

Air West formed last April with the merger of Pacific, West Coast and Bonanza airlines.

The northbound service from Santa Rosa was halted by the airline on the grounds that it lacked traffic and needed the equipment on more popular routes.

The northbound service would connect to Eureka and Portland, Ore., and will be resumed April 27, 1969, if consolidation of the routes is approved by the CAB, the airline said.

Louis Armstrong Tops In Britain

LONDON (AP) — Louis Armstrong's recording of "Wonderful World" was proclaimed today the No. 1 pop disc in Britain for 1968.

The Beatles took the title of top pop chart stars for the year — as distinct from the popularity of any one record.

The charts are prepared by two rival entertainment weeklies, Disc and Music Echo and The Melody Maker.

The Beatles' protege, Mary Hopkins, was top girl in the disc chart with her world hit "Those Were The Days," and also was top individual girl star.

American Herb Alpert took eighth place with "This Guy's In Love," his first singing record.

Refuge Closed By Fish-Game

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Department of Fish and Game yesterday ordered the Sutter National Wildlife Refuge closed to hunters indefinitely because of flooding.

The department said the area probably will not reopen during the current waterfowl hunting season which ends Jan. 12, although hunters with reservations for the coming weekend will be rerouted to other nearby areas.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Marin Dining And Wining

New Year's Eve Fast Arriving; Parties Will Need Reservations

In Times Square they drop a ball on New Year's Eve.

In Japan, bells gong 108 times. Italians hurl glass out the window. Scots walk through the streets carrying a barrel filled with tar, and in Geneva they set off every piece of available artillery.

In case anyone missed hearing that the New Year was in, the next day the French visit all their friends. And what could be more natural south of the border than for the Mexicans to hold a fiesta.

Wherever you go this is the most widely celebrated holiday in the world.

At midnight next Tuesday, some Marinites may find themselves drawn to the city fleshpots across the bay, but most of them will remain in the county to celebrate at home, with their friends — or in local nightspots.

There are many such places eager to help in expanding a one-second interval between two calendars into a festive three or four-hour occasion, depending on the location, celebrations will come in all dimensions and in all prices.

But by now, wise celebrants will have reserved space at some establishment to assure an evening of fun. Others may have to take their chances on making successful last-minute arrangements.

For the past two or three weeks we have been mentioning places to go and here are a few more that still may be able to give you service. They are well worth checking.

CALL BOB'S OF MARIN in Corte Madera. There may be some space left here. New Year's Eve champagne dinner at $10 starts at 9 p.m. in the dining room. Chef Louis Peppras is preparing a fine selection of food, with a choice of six entrees.

There will be a combo for dancing in the small banquet room.

HAVE YOU EVER spent New Year's Eve at San Rafael Joe's? There's as much Auld Lang Syne warmth and celebrating per square foot here as at any dinery in the county and it's right on downtown Fourth Street.

For music there'll be Larry Vannucci. The menu will be selective but the food and drink will be as rewarding as the geniality of the hosts — Rubinis and the Farinas. Reservations are being taken.

THE SPINNAKER in Sausalito, by this hour, may be booked up for the final evening of the year. In any event you'll have to phone for reservations. The Spinnaker serves its usual sumptious menu on New Year's Eve and it's a fine place to go for steaks — and a beautiful view over the water. You'll be in luck if you can get a table.

My understanding is that the Spinnaker will close for a week after Jan. 5.

TRADITIONALLY, Galli's Famous Dinners in Ignacio also plays down the hoopla on New Year's Eve and devotes its attention to the food, which will be by regular menu. Make reservations.

After New Year's Galli's will close down for about two weeks.

AND THERE is a quiet evening in store for patrons of L'Europe Restaurant on the San Rafael Miracle Mile that night.

The regular menu is being served from 5 p.m. and you can come when you want and stay through midnight if that is your plan. I'd suggest a phone call for reservations.

HERE'S A PLACE you should definitely include in your considerations for New Year's Eve — Deer Park Villa in Fairfax.

There are two dinner periods that night — from 5:30 to about 7:30 p.m., when no reservations are needed and the regular menu is served — and from 8 p.m. when there will be a special menu. Dinners will run in the $6.75 to $8.50 range. Nancy Valencia will be the organist.

AT BLACK POINT INN, chef Jay Reinhardt is providing a choice of four entrees for the New Year's Eve champagne spread at $7.50 each. There will be music and dancing. The newly decorated surroundings make it a very attractive place to eat, listen, dance and enjoy yourself.

HERE'S SOMETHING DIFFERENT for the end of the year arrangements:

Fleur de France (formerly Mission Inn) in San Rafael is featuring a New Year's Eve buffet dinner at $3.50. There'll be a battleship round of beef (with chef Milt Judd carving), a seafood newburg, Swedish meat balls, several salads and dessert on an all-you-can-eat basis. Dinner service is from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. that night and the food is good here.

In the Green Room, newly decorated, Joe Carter and The Starlighters will play for dancing.

DEE BRUNAL out at Oak Tree Inn, San Geronimo, tells me that she and Ray still have some space left for Tuesday night. Dinners start at the regular time and entertainment begins at 9 p.m. There's a combo for dancing. Tab is $15 per couple.

FRANCHINI'S CHATEAU is serving at regular prices, with a program mostly performed by the celebrants themselves. From past experience there should be many of them headed in that direction, so make a reservation.

ANOTHER PLACE that observes New Year's Eve without fanfare is Dominic's Harbor Restaurant in San Rafael. No dance orchestra or horns, and the regular menu will be served.

IN NOVATO, there is a good program at Cloud 5:

Dinner will be served downstairs in the dining room to 10 p.m. And upstairs, starting at 9 p.m. Ruth Overly and Lynn will play for dancing until 1 a.m.

At midnight, Chris Bolton and Archie Sawyer are serving a "Bavarian Wiener Roast." The entire place has recently been remodeled.

I WOULD GUESS BY NOW that Rancho Nicasio is sold out for New Year's Eve—but you might try Nick and Mary Kobseff up at McCloud River Lodge —that is, if you want to drive that far.

PIER 15 in San Rafael has completed its annual Invitational Liar's Dice Tournament benefitting Guide Dogs for the Blind, and out of 56 competitors, Norman Peterson of Fairfax emerged as the winner. The restaurant plans on having the tournament as a regular December attraction.

This place is best known to people who work or live in the East San Rafael area and to scores of patrons who have been visiting here since the days it was first opened by Pete Lind. Favorite servings to Betty and Harry Craft are turkey and pastrami sandwiches, respectively.

THE SAN ANSELMO RESTAURANT, Mr. T-Bone, has been closed by the owners, Carl and Nisha Dover.

However, they are still very successfully operating the Mr. T-Bone in the Montecito Shopping Center in San Rafael. At this time there has been no decision on a reopening in San Anselmo.

Felony Narcotic Charges Follow Scaring Teener

A San Rafael man, who Novato police said attempted to enter a home and frightened a 13-year-old girl, yesterday was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court on a felony complaint of marijuana possession.

The man, James Albert Sprague, 24, of 14 Sentinel Court, also is accused of being under the influence of narcotics, a misdemeanor charge.

Plea entries were scheduled for this afternoon.

Police, who arrested Sprague on Highway 101 on a description by the girl, said he had two packets of a substance believed to be marijuana. They said Susan Valim 1032 First Street was standing in front of the home about 2 p.m. Wednesday when Sprague approached. He chased her into the house, she locked the door behind her, and he unsuccessfully attempted to enter a side door, she told officers.

FIREFIGHTING THE HARD WAY

Post Office Quits As Congress Watchdog

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Post Office Department, accused by a Republican senator of doing hatchet work for President Johnson, said today it was giving up its watchdog role over congressional mailing privileges.

The decision, which said congressmen should decide for themselves whether the franking or free mail privileges were being properly used, made no mention of charges by Michigan's Robert P. Griffin.

But the senator issued a statement saying both he and the department, which passes from Democratic to Republican hands next month, will benefit. He said he will press for Congress to draw up its own guidelines in the next session.

During the peak of the controversy last fall over Abe Fortas' nomination as chief justice of the United States, the Post Office Department accused Griffin of misusing the franking privilege and said he owed the government $25,000.

Griffin led the successful fight to block nomination of Fortas, an old friend and adviser of the President's.

"When you stick your neck out and buck the Johnson administration, I guess you have to expect this sort of thing," Griffin said at the time.

The new decision follows a Nov. 26 meeting between Griffin and Postmaster Gen. W. Marvin Watson at which Griffin said he submitted a 15-page legal memo arguing he had not misused the franking privilege as charged during his tough 1967 campaign.

The department said Griffin had franked a newsletter that had political—and therefore improper—implications in its reprint of a statement by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman.

Until now, Post Office policy has been to issue rulings on possible violations of the privilege, leaving collection or prosecution to some other agency.

Because congressmen use the privilege to report on their activities in Washington, a good deal of which are naturally political, misuse falls into a gray area that makes enforcement hard. As far as it is known there have never been any convictions.

In the new policy statement, Timothy J. May, general counsel of the Post Office Department, said the use of the franking privilege for official correspondence "is a matter strictly between the member of Congress and his conscience."

May said that after examining past situations he feared it could led to constitutional problems involving possible censorship of Congressional mail.

He said there was no way, and should be no way, in which the Post Office can assess a payment.

"Congress has not ordered the department to police the behavior of members in the use of franking privilege, nor is there any regulation under which the Post Office Department can collect payment if such an abuse occurs," May said.

New York's Fuel Crisis Held Easing

NEW YORK (UPI)—A city official said today the crisis caused by last week's fuel oil drivers' strike appeared to be easing, but an estimated 10,000 seriously ill New Yorkers were said to still be without heat.

Deputy Mayor Timothy W. Costello, speaking in the absence of Mayor John V. Lindsay who left for a vacation in the Bahamas yesterday, said "we are cutting sharply into the priority list for emergency deliveries of fuel oil. I would say the crisis is definitely easing."

The city health department yesterday declared the city in a state of peril because of delays in delivering fuel oil after a week-long strike by truck drivers and nechanics. A strict priority system for the deliveries was set up by the city.

Costello said the situation was "more perilous" than during the nine-day walkout by garbage collectors in February.

The strike was settled Sunday, but many drivers refused to work on Christmas Day, at two and one-half times regular pay, to cut down a backlog of orders that piled up during the strike.

Since the beginning of the week, the health department has received complaints from residents of about 28,000 apartments without heat or hot water.

Health officials said three deaths have been directly linked to the fuel oil shortage so far and 2,400 New Yorkers would die the last week of December, 300 more than during the same week last year.

The automobile industry in the United States consumes one-fifth of the nation's steel output.

High Death Rate Due To Hong Kong Flu

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Hong Kong Flu has caused widespread or regional illnesses in 33 states and deaths attributed to pneumonia-influenza more than doubled during the third week of December, the National Communicable Disease Center reports.

Officials are standing by their earlier predictions that the epidemic will not hit its peak until early or mid-January.

During the week ending Dec. 21, The center's figures show approximately 500 more deaths from pneumonia-influenza in 122 selected cities throughout the nation than might normally be expected.

However, Dr. David J. Sencer, the center's director, cautioned that the figures from the 122 cities are "purely a sampling." He said that they should not be interpreted too strictly.

Sencer said the NCDC is taking the unusual step of using an editorial on the front page of its weekly report to caution about relying upon interpretations of the figures.

The spokesman said the new strain of flue has become so widespread that "if you're getting the flu, it's the Hong Kong flu."

Liberals Welcome Udall Bid To Challenge McCormack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Morris K. Udall's startling challenge to the House Democratic leadership was welcomed by liberal-moderates today, but he faces a stiff battle to unseat Speaker John W. McCormack.

Udall, in announcing yesterday he was after 77-year-old McCormack's job, said he had reached the decision without lining up any prior backing or consulting with the liberal-moderate leadership.

Several members of the liberal-moderate Democratic Study Group, a largely informal alliance of some 140 members, including Udall, said they were surprised by the four-term Arizona congressman's announcement.

"His chances are very good. He's very popular personally and he's very articulate. But it depends entirely on what the one's in the middle do," said a source aligned with the DSG.

There was a feeling among others, however, that Udall's pledge to call for other nominations if he unseats McCormack on the first ballot was the strongest factor going for him.

The belief is that a Northern or Western liberal wouldn't stand a chance against the speaker from Massachusetts, but that many members disatisfied with McCormack would go for such a candidate if they thought it was a gimmick that could lead eventually to election of their own man.

First test of Udall's strength will come by secret ballot at the Democratic caucus Jan. 2. The nominee of the caucus will be presented to the full House when it convenes Jan. 3. Since the Democrats hold the majority 243 to 192 their choice is a sure thing.

Although there has been talk of trying to unseat McCormack, speaker since 1961, some liberal-moderates have said that attempts to alter the rigid seniority system and seize some committee chairmanships from conservatives would take precedence in the new Congress.

In announcing his decision to make the race, the 46-year-old Udall, brother of Interior Secretary Stewart udall, said he would construe a first-ballot defeat for the McCormack "not as a decision that I should be Speaker" but only "a vote that a change is desired."

Jail Term Given In Assault Case

Larry Don Rupe, 30, was given 60 days in Marin County Jail and placed on three years' probation yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for assaulting his wife, Mary Gay Rupe, 38.

Rupe, of San Rafael, pleaded guilty Nov. 5 to assaulting her during an argument Oct. 27.

Plea Is Scheduled In Burglary Case

Plea entry for Raymond Bruce Edwards, 26, accused of burglary, was scheduled in Marin Municipal Court yesterday for 2 p.m. Thursday.

Edwards, of 809 Atherton Avenue, Novato, is charged with burgling the home of David Elliott Stovel on Lochinvar Road, San Rafael, on Dec. 1.

Family Still In Dark Over Death Of Son

A crisply worded telegram from the Army, saying that Sp/4 Robert Norman Potter died "from a blow on the head," was all the explanation a distraught Petaluma family had today as they waited for his body to return from Germany.

His wife, La Verne Potter of 418 Eighth Street; his mother, Mrs. Christina Potter, and his father, Elwood Potter, got the telegrams Saturday. Since then, they have been given no further details.

Potter, 24, died Dec. 20 at his post near Frankfurt, according to the telegram from the Department of the Army in Washington, D.C.

"All they told us was that he went back to his base and was found unconscious in his bunk," said Mrs. Potter. An investigation is underway, according to the telegram.

The dead man's brother, Air Force Capt. James E. Potter, is accompanying the body back to Petaluma.

The body is to arrive tomorrow at the Parent Funeral Chapel.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday. Entombment will be in Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

A native of Petaluma, Potter was a 1962 graduate of Petaluma High School. He entered the Army in 1966, and was to be discharged in October 1969.

He also is survived by a second brother, William C. Potter of Santa Rosa, and a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Sheridan of Cotati.

Mill Valley Youths Facing Trial In Bulgaria On Marijuana Count

SOFIA, Bulgaria — Three Mill Valley men are among five Americans who will be tried here next week on charges of smuggling marijuana from Turkey, the Bulgarian News Agency reported yesterday.

The three are Eric M. Rosse, Anthony (Bud) Almada Jr. and Stephen J. Carter, according to the report, relayed by Reuters, the British news service.

Rosse is the son of J. Martin Rosse of 301 Reed Boulevard, architect of many schools in Marin.

Almada's mother, Mrs. Anthony Almada of 26-A Circle Avenue, told the Independent-Journal her son had written only that the three had to stay in Bulgaria pending a trial for a traffic accident in which they were involved. A Bulgarian was injured in the accident, according to young Almada's letter to his sister in Germany, said Mrs. Almada.

Mrs. Almada said her son, 22, and the other two, both in their early 20s, have been traveling around Europe in a camper since September. They intended to travel "until their money ran out," she said.

According to the Bulgarian News Agency, the three were charged with smuggling 22 pounds of marijuana in their camper on Nov. 20.

Charged in a separate incident were David Harley Mills and Richard B. Meunier, both of Templeton, Mass. They were accused of carrying 91 pounds of marijuana into Bulgaria on Nov. 18.

The news agency said the five were not kept in custody, but were freed after they signed promises to appear for their trials.

If convicted, each could be sentenced to six years in prison.

Mrs. Almada said she last saw her son and his companions early last month while visiting her daughter in Germany.

Her son, in his letter to his sister, said the three were in contact with the American Embassy in Sofia, said Mrs. Almada.

She declined to give Carter's address, saying "his mother doesn't know anything about this."

The three attended College of Marin, she said.

Judge Denies Marijuana Trial Move

Judge Hadden W. Roth of Marin Municipal Court ruled illegal today a move by James D. Kimmel, former Novato High School teacher, to move his trial on a charge of marijuana possession to another county.

The magistrate said the request for a change of venue can only properly be made in Marin Superior Court when the defendant is held over to the higher court following a preliminary hearing.

He scheduled the hearing for 9:30 a.m. Jan. 30.

Kimmel is accused of having marijuana Nov. 15, with using minors to secure the marijuana, and with resisting arrest.

He made the change of venue request on grounds that the pretrial publicity has prevented a fair trial. His attorney, Carl Shapiro of San Anselmo, said today he will renew the motion in Superior Court if a holding of Kimmel is made.

Houseplant Pot Leads To Charge

A 20-year-old Larkspur woman, who allegedly kept a marijuana plant in a wooden bowl in her home, was arrested last night by Larkspur police.

Darrah Hallowitz of 100 Edison Avenue was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of possessing marijuana and released on $625 bail. She is scheduled to appear at 2 p.m. Monday in Marin Municipal Court.

An 18-year-old youth, visiting Miss Hallowitz, Douglas W. Gower of 33 Serra Way, San Rafael, had a half-gallon jug of wine and was arrested for possessing an alcoholic beverage as a minor, police said. He was released from the County Jail on $65 bail and also will appear at 2 p.m. Monday in Municipal Court.

Police said they observed the marijuana in the house Christmas Eve while investigating a burglary in the neighborhood. They returned last night and made the arrests after getting a search warrant.

Family Fuss Results In Wild Booking

Gripping a shotgun by the handle like a baseball bat, a San Rafael man was arrested last night on suspicion of threatening three police officers.

Patrick Albert Cannon, 29, of 1135 Fourth Street, was booked for investigation of battery and resisting arrest in an incident that San Rafael police said began with a spat with his wife, Diane Adale Cannon, 33.

The suspect's wife called police after attempting to make a citizen's arrest againts Cannon. When police arrived the suspect held the shotgun in a threatening position, but after repeated orders, put it down, police said.

Cannon was then placed under arrest by his wife, police said, but again the suspect refused to let officers get close. Surrounding the suspect, they jumped him after a struggle in which Cannon allegedly punched and kicked the officers, he was finally subdued.

While being booked, officers reported, Cannon attempted to knee one of them in the groin and was finally placed in a padded cell.

Police reported Mrs. Cannon's face was bloody and she had a cut over the left eye. Cannon's arraignment was set for this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court. Bail was set at $620.

'The Stuffed Bear' To Be Given Tomorrow

"The Stuffed Bear" will be presented by the San Francisco Ensemble Theater at 1:30 and 2:30 p.m. tomorrow at the Mill Valley Golf clubhouse.

The play, sponsored by the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts, was written and will be directed by Jerome Markel with musical adaptations from A. A. Milne's "Winnie the Pooh."

U.S. Agrees To Sell Israel 50 Warplanes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department announced today final agreement on a $200 million deal to provide 50 Phantom jet fighters to Israel

A spokesman said delivery of the planes to Israel will begin before the end of 1969 and continue into 1970.

The deal is essentially a sale of the F4 Phantom jets to Israel at a cost of about $200 million. Part of that amount is being covered on U.S. credit.

Completion of the negotiations, which President Johnson announced last Oct. 9, was reported by press officer Robert J. McCloskey, who said:

"Agreement to meet Israel's request for 50 F4 aircraft has been reached. Delivery of the planes will begin before the end of 1969 and continue into 1970."

U.S. officials said the basic policy covering completion of the agreement is to assist Israel in maintaining some degree of balance with the Arab states, particulariy Egypt, which has been rearmed by the Soviet Union since the Arab-Israeli war of mid-1967.

The Johnson administration has discussed with the Soviet government and others the possibility of agreeing on an arms limitation arrangement for the Middle East but no signs of success have been seen so far.

The delivery schedule disclosed by McCloskey means that the delivery of the planes will not begin until long after the Nixon administration has displaced the Johnson administration here.

One of Nixon's advisers, former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, has talked about conducting what he has called a more even-handed U.S. policy in the Middle East to build stronger relations with the Arab countries.

However there has been no indication that Nixon or his principal supporters objected to the Phantom jet sale to Israel.

Boy Seriously Hurt In Wreck Of Bike, Auto

An 8-year-old Mill Valley boy was seriously injured at 12:15 p.m. yesterday when he rode his bicycle in front of a car on Tiburon Boulevard, the California Highway Patrol said.

John Gates of 155 Blackfield Drive was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital with a skull fracture and multiple bruises and scrapes.

The driver of the car, Ernest H. Jackson, 44, of Concord, told officers that the youngster was riding with a friend along the south shoulder of the road when he swerved in front of the car.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Sandra E. Gates, 28, rushing to the scene of the accident, drove her car into a vehicle stopped on the road. Neither she nor the driver of the other car, Mrs. Billie Lee Rose, 41, of 73 Reed Ranch Road, Tiburon, was injured.

Sierra Crash Victim

AUBURN (AP) — William McKelroy, 21, of San Francisco, died Wednesday night in a one-car accident on Interstate 80 about 30 miles east of Auburn, when his auto went out of control.

Bomb Blast, Not Bullet, Hurts Teener

A 15-year-old San Rafael boy, earlier reported shot while walking along Lucas Valley Road, actually was injured in the explosion of a homemade bomb, sheriff's deputies said today.

The youth, Michael Johnston, son of Gordon R. Johnston of 2 Mount Tioga Court, was in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital. He suffered a left hand cut and a right shoulder injury.

Deputies said the youth reported he went to a creek area near Lucas Valley Road, packed a copper pipe with tiny pellets, then used the heads of matches to cause an explosion.

They said he told them he had made explosives before, but this one went off earlier than expected. A motorist who found the wounded youth walking along Lucas Valley Road about 10 a.m. yesterday told deputies the youth was believed to have been shot.

Pope Watches Apollo On TV, Tells Wishes

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI watched the Apollo 8 splashdown today on television in his private Vatican apartment, a Vatican spokesman said.

The pontiff expressed "his most fervent wishes" that the achievements of Apollo 8 would be of use to the whole world, the spokesman added.

Ten Accused In Murderous Orgy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —Seven men and three women were arrested today on suspicion of murder of a 19-year-old girl in what police indicated was a sadistic orgy in the Haight-Ashbury hippie district last night.

Inspector William Armstrong tentatively identified the victim as Ann Jiminez of Seattle. He said there was evidence she had been sexually molested, beaten and subjected to sexual indignities.

The coroner's office reported the young woman had suffered a traumatic head injury, but the cause of death would be determined by an autopsy.

Gas Chamber Set For Dual Murder

FRESNO (AP)—Weldon Lee Hathcock, 31, has been sentenced to die in the gas chamber for the murder of Barbara Simon and Albert Owens.

The sentence was imposed yesterday by Superior Court Judge Leonard I. Meyers.

The bullet-riddled bodies of Owens, 40, and Mrs. Simon, 26, were found in a deserted area outside Fresno last January. Authorities said they were slain after an apparent argument at Hathcock's Fresno home.

Another man, Bruce Wisner, 36, of Fresno, was sentenced to life in prison in the case several months ago, after he testified that Hathcock did the actual shooting.

U.S. Reports Lull In Viet Ground Action

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command said today that American troops are doing less fighting than they have at any time in the past three months.

But the South Vietnamese government said ist forces killed 146 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in four clashes yesterday, captured 49 new Viet Cong draftees and uncovered a sizable store of munitions.

The South Vietnamese said their losses were nine killed and 33 wounded in the four clashes. Three were in the Mekong Delta and the fourth was near Da Nang.

The heaviest of the fights raged for several hours about 20 miles southwest of Da Nang. There South Vietnamese Rangers reported 74 North Vietnamese and seven rangers killed and 30 rangers wounded.

A government spokesman said the Viet Cong conscripts were captured 23 miles north of Saigon and apparently put up little resistance.

"There was some exchange of fire, but I think because they were draftees, they just surrendered," he said. Three South Vietnamese soldiers were wounded.

The spokesman said the government soldiers took the enemy by surprise while searching the area just after daybreak, while the 72-hour cease-fire proclaimed by the Viet Cong for Christmas was still in effect.

"They were still having their truce period and maybe because of that it was such a big haul," he said.

The Viet Cong cease-fire extended until 1 a.m. today, but the U.S. and South Vietnamese commands ended their Christmas stand-down at 6 p.m. Wednesday.

The U.S. Command reported only light contact in scattered actions for U.S. forces.

One high-ranking U.S. officer said it was too early to determine the significance of the lull. But he said the Christmas cease-fire undoubtedly was a factor.

"We felt that for the most part there was a fairly good effort on the part of the Viet Cong to stay by the truce," he said.

American reconnaissance continued during the 24-hour allied cease-fire, and the officer said the enemy apparently did not make any great effort to maneuver troops and supplies during the period.

FLEXIBILITY KEY IN PARIS: VANCE

No. 2 Negotiator Flying Back To Talks With Pledge To Settle Seating Dispute

NEW YORK (AP) — Cyrus R. Vance, the No. 2 American negotiator in the Paris peace talks, departed for the French capital today after high-level meetings in Washington.

Vance told newsmen at Kennedy Airport that "we are continuing our efforts to find a breakthrough" in the difficulties that have stalled the negotiations looking for settlement of the Vietnam War.

"No one should be rigid," said Vance. "There must be flexibility on all sides."

Vance is chief deputy to Ambassador W. Averill Harriman.

During Vance's consultations Christmas week with President Johnson, President-elect Richard Nixon and other U.S. leaders, the U.S.-North Vietnamese talks lapsed into a holiday lull while the rival Vietnamese delegations stood firm in their entrenched public positions.

Vance, a Johnson appointee, has agreed to stay on about a month after the Jan. 20 inauguration to ease the transition. Nixon has yet to name a successor to Harriman, who is quitting the negotiations next month.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegations emerged yesterday from the Christmas intermission in Paris with new moves in their campaign for recognition of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

A joint communique said the start of the peace talks was being blocked by the refusal of the U.S. and Saigon governments "to recognize the Front as an independent and equal party to the conference." The communique said to get the parley going, the U.S. and Saigon delegations "must immediately sit" at the round table demanded by North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Winchell Rites Set In Arizona

SANTA ANA (UPI) — Funeral services for Walter Winchell, 33, son of newspaper columnist Walter Winchell, will be held in Scottsdale, Ariz., near the home of his mother.

The sheriff's office said the younger Winchell shot himself shortly after eating Christmas dinner with his wife and their two children.

Deputies said he had tried to kill himself before and had been under psychiatric care in the past. Death was listed as suicide.

In addition to his parents, wife and children, Winchell is survived by a sister. Funeral arrangements were incomplete.

A Dizzying, Activist Social Year

By BARBARA HOSMER

As 1968 passes into the history books, social confrontation was the keynote of the leap year which had little of the traditional frivolity. A war year at home and abroad, hardly could guests gather at a party just to socialize without talk turning to the social revolution popping all around. Issues such as student demands for a relevant education, protests against the unconcerned, racism and the election polarized opinions as soon as the potables and hors d'oeuvres were passed.

A fleeting comment by a youth on TV summed up the "Now" Generation: "It's an age when holding on to something doesn't seem to have any meaning," while bewildered adults who finally got the message that "The Times They Are A-Changing" felt their bedrock of tradition slipping away beneath them.

A Palo Alto mother faced a jail term for refusing to allow her son to be drafted; housewives were forced to support or reject the grape strike each time they visited the supermarket; parents stood helpless as sons and daughters were busted for drugs; Dr. Spock, a trusted household name to a whole generation of mothers, was sentenced to jail for anti-draft activity; and certainly Eartha Kitt started the year with a verbal bombshell when she stood up at a ladies luncheon at the White House and told Lady Bird just where it was at with U.S. youth and the Vietnam War.

UNUSUAL WEDDING ceremonies, rocketing prices, Shirley Temple curls, Bonnie and Clyde defiance of authority, the Nehru jacket and natural hair for chic black girls were all a part of the passing scene.

Some of the biggest newsmakers were women — Jacqueline Kennedy topped the lot with her surprise marriage to jillionaire ship owner Ari Onassis. Coretta King and Ethel Kennedy awed the world with their heroic composure in tragic times. Peggy Fleming took the Olympic gold medal in women's figure skating. The legendary Helen Keller died. Lynda Bird Robb's baby was born . . .

First marriages that made headlines were Julie Nixon's to David Eisenhower, singer Miriam Makeba's to black militant Stokeley Carmichael, anti-war crusaders Joan Baez and David Harris, and singer Elvis Presley's.

A Canadian nun became the first woman delegate to the United Nations General Assembly. Lurleen Wallace died of cancer; Penelope Tree emerged as a top model; Diahann Carroll became the first black woman to star in a weekly series on television.

People grew hair, curled hair, cut hair, shaved beards, grew mustaches, shaved mustaches and grew sideburns . . . "Harper Valley PTA" lampooned in song the small town-style parents club . . . Nuns streamlined their habits . . . Mini skirts and boots stayed in . . . but the Nehru jacket came and went, while the turtleneck stayed . . . "Little Women" had a 100th birthday; Janis Joplin split with Big Brother and the Holding Company; Cass went single from the Mamas and Papas; folkies Joni Mitchell and Judy Collins hit the pop music charts; Penny Early tried to become the first female jockey, then pro basketball player, without luck.

HERE IN MARIN the times were changing also. Mill Valley's Jane Marsh signed a German opera contract and sang with the San Francisco opera. Dedicated conservationist and beloved Marinite Caroline S. Livermore died early in the year. Death also took Molo Lowell of Mill Valley, known to all ages for her crafts classes and for her special love for children. Sister Patrick retired from the presidency of Dominican College and Sister Samuel, an alumna, succeeded her.

Marin debs bowed in San Francisco for the first time, and the Concours d'Elegance was held by the Marin Circle of the Florence Crittenton Home outside of Marin also — at Silverado Country Club at Napa.

Their 100th birthdays were celebrated by Mme. M. R. F. Valle of Mill Valley and Mrs. Ava Campbell of San Rafael, who received a message from President Johnson.

COUNTY LIBRARIAN Virginia Keating retired after 38 years of work among the stacks. Mrs. Roy Kanoff of Novato, Marin County Board of Education president, returned to college for a teaching credential, then resigned her

IT WAS PURE 1968 with its blend of fashions when Connie Bremer and Lonnie Frisbee of the Christian Hippies were married in Novato in one of the unusual weddings of the year.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Problem Of Telling Children The Truth Brings Convictions

DEAR HELEN:

Your advice to "Confused" was so wrong! Her husband accuses her of being under a Puritanical mother's thumb and being hooked on rigid morality because she tells her children she was married a year before her real wedding date. Why shouldn't she shield them from the "had to" angle? If they know her secret, perhaps they will think, "Well, it worked out fine for my parents, why not for us?"

You sided with the husband who wanted to tell the children the truth when they asked. Why risk a happy family life just because a man is overly honest? Or maybe he's proud of being premature.

MODERN GRANDMOTHER

DEAR GRANDMOTHER:

Why live a lie which will surely be found out when the children grow older? Young people's attitudes toward "premature births" are considerably different from yours, Grandmother. Told of their parents' mistake, they may learn not to do likewise, but they won't condemn nor will they be ashamed — not if the matter is handled as wisely as the father intends.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

That moron who signed himself "Against Frigid Women" has some nerve, saying he asks a gal first, and if she won't put out, he doesn't date her.

Where does he find these women — in waterfront bars?

Maybe not, for women have lowered themselves to all kinds of things during the past 20 years. At one time they were superior to men, and men put them on a pedestal. Now they're equal, and therefore trampy. And that stupid moron, AFW, is selling it to new customers! What modern women need is more self-respect. Just because we don't throw ourselves at every man around, doesn't mean we are frigid. — AGAINST "IDEA" MEN

DEAR HELEN:

I wear shorts to garden in, and as we live in the South, that means most of the year. We moved here last September. I noticed my neighbors stared when I came out in a swim suit, but what else can you wear when it's hot?

Then I started getting anonymous letters in the mail about how the Lord frowns on nudity and fornication. I didn't think I fitted in either category, so I ignored them.

Next, Helen, you won't believe this, but the village minister walked down the street, dropped to his knees near where I was digging, and started praying for my immortal soul. Though I think he said "immoral."

I honestly think some of these women are so repressed they blindfold themselves when they take a bath. No wonder their husbands — and the minister — go kind of bug-eyed. My husband doesn't mind my shorts. Should I cover up for the prudes, or keep on being the town — JEZEBEL?

DEAR JEZ:

Grin and be stared at! — Sounds as if the town needs a good jolt. If you cover up, you may ruin the best gossip they've had in years.

(But hope your husband gets an early transfer out of "Joyland.") —H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Joan Richman's World Is Dominated By Space Shows

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — A friend called Joan Richman one day to ask, "Are you interested in space?"

And thereby began an unusual career for a St. Louis-born girl who's watched the United States' current lunar spectacular with as much fascinated interest as any one of the scientists and technicians at Cape Kennedy and the Houston Space Center.

Miss Richman, an attractive brunette of 29, is coproducer for the space coverage television specials which Walter Cronkite has been doing since American-manned shots began in 1961.

"Do you realize the whole import of this?" says Miss Richman of the Apollo 8 moon orbit. "Man is seeing the moon closeup for the first time. And man is seeing his whole earth for the first time too."

Miss Richman talked about "working" a space liftoff and follow-through just before departing for Cape Kennedy and helping to put on the CBS network launch. She'll be on the project, helping to mastermind telecasts from Houston and tracking stations around the world until Apollo 8 splashes down in the Pacific off Samoa Friday morning.

Miss Richman is one of the few women producers in network television and probably the only one whose world has been dominated by space shows.

The world involves everything from deciding how many writers and technicians are necessary to stage the show to figuring placement of cameras and where special telephone lines must be strung. And most of all, it involves knowing right down to the atom what goes on with a space shot.

JOAN RICHMAN

Miss Richman, who once was "a simple English major," can tell you that America's three astronauts — Frank Borman, James A. Lovell and William A. Anders—swung into earthly and then lunar orbit in an 83-foot long spacecraft, that the Saturn 5 which lifted the craft into the heavens is 59 feet taller than the Statue of Liberty, is more powerful than 92,500 locomotives, has the thrust of 115 Boeing 707s at takeoff, weighs in at 6,220,025 pounds, as much as the nuclear submarine Nautilus.

It was just by chance that Miss Richman is in space. Right out of Wellesley College in 1961, she landed a job at the network clipping newspapers for its library. Soon she was promoted to research.

Then a friend in the special events department, hearing of an opening, called to ask if she were interested in space.

"I didn't know anything," Miss Richman recalled, "None of the technical side of space exploration. But I began a cram course of reading for myself, and of course as the program itself has developed, we all have learned." She was reading up on the moon the day we talked.

Her attendants were Celia Matthews, sister of the bridegroom, who was maid of honor, and bridesmaids Lindsay and Catherine Badenuoch, cousins of the groom.

The Waning Days Of Activist Year—

board post late in the year. Dominican College junior Peggy Glockner, elected to the board of the Marin Association for Mental Health, was youngest in the state to serve on such a board.

Mrs. Julian Rice retired from volunteer work at Marin General Hospital begun 16 years ago when the hospital was built. Mrs. Walter Johnson stepped down after seven years' chairmanship of the Marin County Chapter of the March of Dimes but continues with the organization's efforts.

Shirley Bomio of Novato was junior division winner for the state sewing contest with wool fabrics with her bright blue coat and yellow dress ensemble. Linda Thaning, San Rafael High School senior, last spring won a trip to New York for her fashion know-how and modeling experience.

Director of nursing at Ross Hospital Teresa Monaghan retired after a 36 year career that began on a Winnebago Indian reservation in Nebraska.

Vivian Hallinan was national organizer of the Jeanette Rankin Brigade which led a women's peace march on Washington, D.C.

Cellist Jean Mitchell and her husband were San Francisco Symphony members who made the concert tour of Japan.

Mrs. Benjamin Ballard of Ross, of the women's "Hiking and Sipping Society," entered the grueling Dipsea race to Stinson Beach.

Other notable Marin women retiring from long careers were Dr. Anne Brady, Marin' first pediatrician, who began practice in 1931; and Adele Alpers, who spent 12 years on the Marin County board of education.

QUITE A FEW Marin housewives and career types had a chance for bit parts in locally made films — "Petulia" caused excitement when it was screened here; "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" had a few local faces on screen briefly; the much-discussed "Graduate" had others; and the current film "Bullitt" has more.

Three young Indian girls came to spend a few weeks with Novato families in a Baptist Church sponsored program. Ann Davis, Sally Ward and Ann Pfeiffer went on Camp Fire Girls sponsored conservation trips in the U.S.

Black history was a new course at Katharine Branson School, taught by Mrs. Festus Adebonojo of San Anselmo. A special day camp at Arequipa was enjoyed by Marin City girls. Marin City women, too, demonstrated soul food cookery during Marin Co-op's black history week. Also a special secretarial and grooming course was set up for young women from Marin City at San Domenico School.

WEDDINGS OF Marinites took some unusual twists — One bride was so efficient that she listed zip codes for all attendants and family members on the I-J wedding form. Another bride said her vows at Doctor Popper's Laboratory on Cannery Row, made famous in the Steinbeck stories; others chose vintage Pierce Arrows and Rolls Royces to convey them to the wedding reception. Most confusing was a double wedding of sisters who served as each other's maids of honor.

Most unusual were two weddings in Novato. Connie Bremer and Lonnie Frisbee of the Christian Hippies group which attend Novato All Saints Lutheran Church were married in unusual garb — Both wore white; she in full length satin gown and bonnet trimmed with daisies, and he in white tunic top and bell bottom trousers, a crown of daisies, beads and moccasins trimmed with bells. A folk rock outfit played for dancing and the church women gave the reception. A hillside ceremony in May followed by an old-fashioned picnic of fried chicken, homemade ice cream and bread under a huge old oak were features of Kathy Croughan's wedding to Joel August in Novato. Her father, the Rev. C. M. Croughan performed the rite.

VISITORS TO Marin shores included some well knowns — Mary Martin made Belvedere her home during the San Francisco run of "I Do, I Do;" Lynda Bird and Capt. Robb came to lunch on the deck of the Windjammer in Tiburon, surrounded by secret servicemen, ducking publicity, and finally agreeing to a photo. Princess Margaretha of Sweden (Mrs. John K. Ambler) went sailing with her husband aboard the Swedish Consul General's sloop in Sausalito. Actress Jeff Donnell stopped by the office for a few hours' chat, laughing that she is still often called Alice from the days of her wifely role on the George Gobel show. U.S. consumer champion Betty Furness came to Novato on a campaigning jaunt . . .

Many Marinites had interesting travels — The Ed Weeds and Jim Wilhites made the voyage across the Atlantic aboard a yacht following partially the route of Columbus. The Art Lindauers were hustled out of Panama from their canal cruise just as shooting broke out in Panama. Others voyaged around typhoons in the Pacific, reported vile weather and high adventure.

Martha DeKay, Terra Linda High senior, had a weekend at Hyannisport with Ethel Kennedy and family, as a guest of Joseph Kennedy III whom she had met on her return as an exchange student to Austria.

IT WAS ANOTHER booming year for women's groups—

The Sunny Hills Bargain Box formed an auxiliary group; Peter Pan Chapter of the Children's Home Society set up a bicycle registration program to help police locate missing bikes; Family Service League began its A.M. lecture series of nationally-known speakers; a mother and daughter headed different Belvedere Guilds of Sunny Hills — Mrs. Robert Sitkin and Kathy Sitkin, who led the junior guild; the Pathfinders initiated Monday lunches at Octagon House at Marin Art and Garden Center;

Animal Aid Association was organized as liaison between the Humane Society and the public; the Dental Auxiliary's Mrs. Stanley Schwebel saw her idea of College of Marin's dental assisting students going to Marin public schools to demonstrate tooth care put into practice; president of Ross Hospital Volunteers Mrs. Edwin R. Christie was appointed to the California Hospital Association subcommittee on mental health and statewide committee on volunteer services; Hawthorne Nursery School was opened as the fourth facility of the Belvedere Nursery School system; the Officers Wives Club cancelled the Hamilton Air Force Base debutante ball; Mrs. H. Nordmark Williams of Belvedere won a recognition award from the national Delta Gamma council; Mrs. Charles F. Lester coordinated formation of a Parents Club of the Sausalito School District.

MARIN ALPHA Phi alumnae gave a Resusci-Ann dummy to Marin General Hospital; through the Marin chapter, March of Dimes National Foundation a genetics evaluation and counseling clinic opened at Ross Hospital for Marin families; pre-schoolers from the YWCA creative play groups visited a Marin dairy ranch to see where milk really comes from; teen-agers Madelyn Angress and Pat Dahl took awards at the statewide Food Comes First for Youthpower conference for their food projects.

Women of the San Anselmo First Presbyterian Church decided to quit talking and "do something" so they set up SWAP (Summer Workshop and Art Program) for low income family children as a means of improving community relations.

There was some frivolity . . . The Sausalito Woman's Club Jinks has some psychedelic goings on, the women's golf clubbers decked themselves out in various costumes for kooky tournaments and Belvedere Brownies decorated a Christmas tree for the birds.

AND WITH THE heavy, activist days of 1968 waning, it's time to welcome in the first year of the lunar age.

Portland School Attempts To Raise Standard Of Education For The Poor

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)— Alonzo is six, a bright boy with a winning smile and an eagerness to learn. He likes school but he rarely gets there on time.

"If he lived in your home or my home," said Dr. Harold A. Kleiner of the Portland public schools, "he would go to college and become a doctor or a lawyer or some other kind of professional person."

BUT ALONZO LIVES with his grandmother. A kindly woman who wants Alonzo to do well, she is almost totally uneducated and can give the little first grader no help at home to go with his schooling.

Her rundown home, just half a block from Humboldt School, doesn't even have a clock. Alonzo is often late because no one at home knows what time it is.

Humboldt is a model school — one of nine into which Portland is pouring all the resources and ideas at its command in an effort to help poor children reach the same educational level as their middle class counterparts.

THE FIRST STUDY of results shows "Gains that may warrant cautious optimism." In fact, according to the report, what began "as a program of compensatory education is becoming a program for the development of advanced educational systems."

This program, which Kleiner heads, attacks the learning problems of the "disadvantaged" from every possible angle right down to buying an alarm clock for Alonzo.

Incorporated into the model schools are teacher aides, National Teacher Corps interns, volunteer tutors—both adult and student—specialists in reading and speech, community aides, extra staffing by nurses, field trips, summer school classes, tutorial groups and constant evaluation of each child's progress.

IN ADDITION, there are arrangements for making sure children get glasses, dental care and clothing. Boy and Girl Scout troops, often missing in poverty areas, are encouraged.

Teachers add neatness and manners to the usual reading, writing and arithmetic.

To get more Negroes onto school staffs, as many aides as possible are recruited from the neighborhoods. Rated among the most successful by Herbert A. Hale, principal of Humboldt, is Kenneth Shepard, 18, who graduated from Jefferson High School here in June.

HALE IS HELPING with plans for Shepard to go to college and eventually become a full time teacher.

Although many Humboldt children know him as "Ken," a neighbor, at school he is "Mr. Shepard." Hale said, "He can really get through to some of these youngsters, especially the boys."

GETTING THROUGH to the youngsters is the key to the whole program. There are some instances of success.

Hale cited one boy, considered four years ago to be mentally retarded. Today, in the fifth grade, he is one of the better readers in his class. His assigned work is done quickly and correctly.

Another measure of the success of the program is student behavior. Before the program began three years ago, Hale acknowledged, "There were always some students who couldn't make the adjustment," and so became behavior problems and had to be suspended.

It has been a year and a half since he suspended any student.

KLEINER DESCRIBED the entire model schools program as one of filling a gap.

He sketched two lines several inches apart. Indicating one line, he said, "Everybody starts here." Pointing to the other line, he added, "Everybody must reach here if he is to become at minimum a responsible, jobholding citizen and raise a family."

HE DREW a series of blocks between the lines to represent the contributions of home, community and church to the growth of children. The blocks for the middle class child stretched three-fourths of the way between the lines. The blocks for the child of poverty reached only half as far.

HE DREW TWO final blocks, each the same size, to represent the contribution of the school. For the middle class child the "school" block filled in the space between the others and the "finish" line.

But for the poverty child there remained a large gap.

"Now we're trying to fill in the gap with the school," he said. "Can we?"

He answered his own question with a shake of the head.

HE'S AMAZED

Bagley Is Tops On Expense List

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, apparently cost taxpyers more than any other Assemblyman during 1968.

Bagley, according to nearly completed salary and expense records in the office of Controller Houston I. Flournoy, has been paid $23,132. The average legislator was paid $20,000 in salary and expenses, Flournoy's office reported.

Marin's other state legislator, Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael, was paid $20,486, including $585 to go on a legislative junket earlier this month to Hawaii.

Flournoy's office noted that its figures were almost complete totals, but that some claims for expenses still will come in during the next month.

The lowest payments were $19,614 in the Assembly and $18,955 in the Senate.

Bagley was topped only by Sen. James Q. Wedworth, D-Inglewood, who was paid $53 more.

Leland B. Artz, chief of Flournoy's legislative accounting office, noted that the disparity between sums, often reflects the lawmaker's position.

Bagley, for example, is chairman of the Assembly Judiciary Committee and travels between legislative sessions for hearings by his committee throughout the state, said Artz.

Bagley told the Independent-Journal his expenses were higher than usual because he made two trips East during the year, one to represent the Legislature at the funeral of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and one to Washington to meet with consultants to his committee who are studying reform of court procedures.

Bagley conceded he was "amazed" to find his expenses higher than those of the average legislator.

Each legislator is paid an annual salary of $16,000, plus $25 a day for expenses while he is on legislative business. Also, each is paid his air fare to travel outside the state, the amount of his hotel bill and $12.50 a day for meals.

Finally, each legislator is entitled to drive a car leased by the state, with no ceiling on his use of an oil company credit card. He is paid 15 cents a mile if he drives his own car.

McCarthy Will Introduce Plan To Cut North's Highway Funds

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

A bill that would deny Northern California some $40 million a year in highway funds will be introduced in the 1969 Legislature by Sen. John F. McCarthy, R-San Rafael.

"It's incumbent on us of the north to do this," McCarthy told the Independent-Journal when asked why he would change Southern California's share of highway funds from 55 to 60 per cent.

"We need to give this concession," he said without further elaboration.

Northern California legislators long have resisted a change in the sharing of highway funds, which will reach almost $800 million this coming fiscal year.

However, the north's opposition is weaker each year because the Supreme Court's "one man, one vote" edict has increased the number of Southern California representatives in the Legislature.

The new Legislature convenes a week from Monday.

Northern California legislators, faced in past years with the argument that about 60 per cent of the state's population lived in the 13 southern counties, have countered by pointing out that 56 per cent of the mileage in state highways is in the northern counties.

McCarthy predicted that Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, chairman of the powerful Senate Transportation Committee, "will go for it this time." Collier's opposition in the past has been a major factor in killing proposals to change the sharing formula.

The present formula has been in effect since the 1930s, when it was changed from a 50-50 formula.

In a related proposal, McCarthy, noting his legislative program still was indefinite, said he may introduce legislation to increase the state's excise tax on gasoline from seven to eight or nine cents per gallon.

This additional revenue would be reserved to build county and state highways not part of the interstate system, said McCarthy.

He had no estimate of how much additional revenue a one or two cent raise in rate would raise.

The present price per gallon also includes four cents federal tax.

Collier also has suggested in recent months that he may seek to increase the state excise tax on gasoline by two cents per gallon.

Asked if he saw legislative support for using some gas tax revenues for public transit, McCarthy said representatives of several major gas companies had told him they would support such a proposal.

SEN. JOHN F. McCARTHY
A $40 million proposal

Collier has strongly opposed use of any gas tax funds for public transit.

Another bill McCarthy said he will introduce would be a second try for passage of his 1968 bill to require consideration of recreation facilities in all flood control and water projects.

Gov. Ronald Reagan, even though the bill did not make provision of such facilities mandatory, vetoed it on the ground that it could cost the state money that should be raised locally.

McCarthy predicted the bill will pass this year, adding this time he will lobby the governor to ensure his support.

McCarthy backed off somewhat from his October press statement that he was preparing legislation to empower police to round up hippies and lock them in hospitals "for medical care."

To do this, he said in October, he would seek amendments of both the California and United States constitutions.

Now, however, he said he favored only mandatory treatment of persons with communicable diseases who refuse to be treated voluntarily. He said he had not yet figured out how such legislation would be written.

On the subject of regional government in the Bay Area, certain to be proposed in the coming session, McCarthy said he had heard "a great deal of mixed emotions" on whether formation of a regional government was desirable.

Many persons in the Napa and Solano county portions of his district, he noted, "want to keep things as they are."

McCarthy said he had not read the proposal for regional government made early this month by Joint Committee on Bay Area Regional Organization. McCarthy, one of the eight legislators on the committee, said he could not comment on the proposal until he had studied it.

The committee is to vote sometime next month on the proposal.

McCarthy noted he still favored his seven-year-old proposal that the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District be replaced with a Golden Gate Authority that would run all bridges, airports and highways in the Bay Area.

Most of all, he stressed, he wanted no more studies of the subject of regional government. "I'm so sick and tired of all these studies," he declared.

Another bill McCarthy said he would introduce would provide that supervisorial elections be held with the November general election whenever there were only two candidates. This proposal was made recently by Second District Supervisor-elect Peter Arrigoni Jr., who unseated Supervisor Ernest N. Kettenhoten in the June primary.

Arrigoni and Kettenhoten agreed the proposal would eliminate the long "lame duck" period of a supervisor who lost in June, but who remained in office until the end of the year.

McCarthy noted that his legislative program, as in past years, will draw heavily from suggestions by the three boards of supervisors in his district. The Marin board will adopt its legislative program next month.

Other bills being considered for introduction by McCarthy include those creating a Joint Committee on Education of Drug Abuses and lowering from age 5 to age 3 training for mentally retarded children.

The drug committee would develop a required course for schools to educate teachers and students about the dangers of drug use.

McCarthy, in his interview with the Independent-Journal, at first said he would introduce a bill lowering the voting age to 18, but later said he would only vote again for such a bill if one were introduced.

McCarthy introduced 36 bills in the 1968 Legislature, of which 14 were signed into law.

Camera Is Stolen

Victor M. Koweell of 320 Via Casitas, Greenbrae, last night told San Rafael police that someone took a $150 camera from his car parked in a vacant lot at Fourth and Ida streets. The burglar apparently used a key or a prying instrument to enter the locked car, police said.

Friendly Warning, No Goodbye Open Czech Family Freedom Try

By MARY LEYDECKER

A warning from a friendly officer, a few clothes thrown into the family car and no goodbyes.

This, in brief, is the story of the successful escape from Czechoslovakia by a Czech scientist and his family who had been trying to leave for years.

Mr. and Mrs. Josef Chrastil and their daughters, Nelly, 15, and Simona, 8, who are staying with friends in Terra Linda, described what life was like behind the Iron Curtain.

"Freedom is a possibility here," Chrastil said simply about the United States.

Although Chrastil is a scientist and has spent his life in research, not politics, he found it impossible to avoid the ire of the Communists.

Surprisingly, however, Chrastil explained that "it's better now" in describing the situation in his country since a liberal regime brought the Russians down hard on Czechoslovakia.

"Before, the Czechs were suspicious of each other — now, everyone is united against the Russians," he said.

Only about 15 per cent of the Czechs belong to the Communist Party, Chrastil said, and since World War II this small group has run the country.

Last January the Dubcek government came into power and began to make many reforms, and "for a little while we thought we could have freedom," Chrastil said.

When the Russians, angered at the possibility of losing political control as well as valuable industries in Czechoslovakia, sent 500,000 troops into the tiny country in August, the honeymoon ended.

Although the Czechs did not fight the Russians except in a few isolated instances, there has been a passive resistance, Chrastil said, with "99 per cent of the Czechs against the Russians."

Chrastil soon found himself back in the same situation he had faced for years — a non-Communist scientist in a Communist country.

Chrastil's own story goes back a number of years to the time when he was working at the Academy of Sciences, a government research institution, in Prague. Chrastil, who holds a Ph.D. in chemistry, was engaged in bio-chemical research at the academy but became unpopular because he was not a party member.

In 1957 he and his wife decided to try to escape, leaving Nelly, who was only four then, behind with relatives in hopes of getting her out later. They obtained a visa to go to Italy and set off on a train, but at the border the train was searched and police found chemical research papers that Chrastil was carrying.

After this incident, the Chrastils spent a year in prison, part of the time in a concentration camp. After they got out of prison, he could no longer work at the academy; so he found a job in the small town of Trutnov, where there is a large textile industry.

For the past few years the scientist has done research with dyes and plastics and other textile matters, all the time hoping to escape from Czechoslovakia to Germany or the United States.

"Then for a few months last year, we all hoped," Chrastil said with a faint smile. Under Dubcek, trade was increased with the west, censorship of newspapers was lifted, political persecutions ceased and many restrictions were lifted.

"We could actually read what was going on in Czech newspapers," Chrastil said.

This all ended, and Chrastil was in danger again.

A friend who is a police officer said to him, "Go now."

"We didn't even say goodbye to our parents or friends," Chrastil said. The family had a four-day visa to Austria and, pretending to take a vacation, put only enough clothes for a short stay into their car.

They didn't bring any valuables with them, not wanting to give away the fact they were not returning. Chrastil laughed when asked if they brought any money out of Czechoslovakia. "Czech money is worthless anyway," he said.

In Vienna, the Chrastils contacted their old friend, George Dolesal of Terra Linda. Dolesal and Chrastil were boyhood friends and they had seen each other again last year when Dolesal went back to Czechoslovakia after his father died.

Dolesal, who has been in this country for 15 years and lives with his Swiss-born wife at 581 Woodbine Drive, agreed to sponsor the Chrastils' immigration to the United States. The family flew here in November on a plane sponsored by the International Rescue Committee.

What are the plans for the future?

"First, is a job," Chrastil said. He has been looking for a chemical research position but without success so far. "Maybe there is nothing in the Bay Area," he said.

The scientist, who speaks six languages, communicates well in English, a language he learned from a Mexican-American who stayed with his family during World War II.

"After I find a job, other problems are nothing," he said.

Mrs. Chrastil, a shy brunette, speaks only a few words of English, but the girls are beginning to learn.

Nelly, the 15-year-old, has been going to Terra Linda High School for about two weeks. "She was horrified by the lack of discipline," Mrs. Dolesal said.

The girl had completed high school in Czechoslovakia and finds such subjects as algebra very easy but wants to learn English before going on to college.

Although the family is worried about Chrastil finding a job, they all managed smiles as they gathered around a Christmas tree in the Dolezals' pleasant home.

"Democracy is possible here," Chrastil repeated.

Baar's Council Seat May Remain Empty Until April

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The vacancy on the San Rafael City Council which will be created by resignation of Louis H. Baar may go unfilled until the April 15 municipal election.

This would be possible under a change in the city charter which was approved by the voters last year. The period for filling a council vacancy, formerly 20 days, was extended to 60 days. And in place of the appointive power going to the board of education if the council failed to act within the prescribed period, the change calls for a special election if the 60 days expires without an appointment.

Baar, who gave his "swan song" speech at the Dec. 16 council meeting, has not yet submitted his resignation, and has indicated he intends to resign as of Dec. 31 — just in time to begin his term on the county board of supervisors.

This would give the council until March 1 to select a successor. The mechanics of setting up a special election after that date would make it impossible to hold the election before April 15, so there would then be no vacancy.

The possibility of the seat remaining vacant until April arises because of the large field of applicants. Nine men have applied for the appointment. Several of them have indicated they plan to run in April whether or not they get the interim post.

Baar's term and that of Councilman Harry A. Barbier both expire in April, along with the two-year term of Mayor C. Paul Bettini.

So far, there has been no formal discussion by the council regarding Baar's successor, pending receipt of his resignation. But there appears to be no unanimity for any of the nine candidates.

Councilman Fred Jensen has suggested that, if unanimous agreement on an appointee seems unlikely, the seat be left vacant until the April 15 vote.

Seeking the appointment are three members of the planning commission, three who were council candidates two years ago, and three others.

Planning commissioners in the running are chairman Frederick C. Robbins Jr., an attorney; Joseph J. Garbarino, a proprietor of Marin Sanitary Service, and John J. Adams, a San Francisco auto sales executive.

Candidates from two years ago who seek the appointment area Joseph D. Dahlman, attorney; Gene F. O'Connor, insurance broker, and Orlando Conti, retired plumbing contractor and former planning commissioner. O'Connor has not filed a letter of application, but has applied verbally.

Other aspirants are William J. Wider, retired Pacific Telephone Co. official; Richard A. Clarke, attorney, and James Dougan, insurance man. Dougan has indicated he would be interested in a planning commission appointment in lieu of that to the council.

Apparent front runner is Robbins, reportedly favored by Mayor Bettini and Councilman Barbier. Jensen has said he would be willing to appoint Robbins if the other three councilmen favor him. Councilman John A. Miskimen has made no commitment.

Adams has announced he plans to run in April regardless of whether he receives the interim appointment. Dahlman, Conti and Garbarino also are expected to be April candidates, with some of the others possibly entering that race regardless of whether they win interim appointment. Filing for the April election will open Jan. 30.

Drug Charge Case In Court

Melvin W. Hing, 28, was arraigned in Marin Municipal Court yesterday on a felony charge of possession of marijuana and possession of methamphetamine. Plea entries were scheduled for 2 p.m. Jan. 13.

Wing, of Montague, Siskiyou County, and two companions, Jill L. Williams, 19, of 2141 Center Road, Novato, and Jeffrey J. Morse, 22, San Francisco, were arrested after Novato police halted them Wednesday for making an illegal U turn in the 2300 block of Center Road, officers said.

Miss Williams and Morse are charged with being under the influence of marijuana.

Unions Bicker Over Airline Representation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks (BRAC) is charging the Teamsters Union with "forged, fraudulent and misleading" propaganda as the two unions battle to represent employees of Pan American World Airways.

Walter R. Williamson, director of the air transit division for the AFL-CIO, yesterday asked the National Mediation Board to impound all employees' ballots in the collective bargaining election until the charges are investigated.

Employees of the airways have been voting since November to choose either BRAC, the Teamsters, or no union at all.

Williamson charged that letters sent by an unnamed source carried a forged signature of the BRAC president and advised Pan Am employees that they could best help the union by not voting in the election. He said this position was opposite of BRAC's stand.

Two previous collective bargaining elections at Pan Am have been ruled invalid because of unfair election practices.

Among Pan Am employees involved in the election are those working in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Seattle.

The baby, named Tricia, is their second child. Fisher, 39, formerly was married to Debbie Reynolds and Elizabeth Taylor.

State Surrenders On Serra Route

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A five-year fight over routing of a 4.2-mile strip of the proposed Junipero Serra freeway has ended.

The State Highway Commission will go along with the city's insistence on a ridge route, chairman Vernon J. Christina announced yesterday.

State engineers originally proposed the freeway section along the Crystal Springs reservoir, which holds San Francisco's water supply.

City officials feared possible contamination, especially from highway runoff water.

They proposed the longer, more expensive route curving further from the reservoir through foothill ridges.

Judge Holds Up San Francisco Renewal Project

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A preliminary injunction was issued yesterday by U.S. Judge William T. Sweigert against removal of persons from buildings slated to be dismantled for replacement in the Western Addition.

The action stopped the flow of federal funds for the extensive redevelopment program.

M. Justin Herman, executive director of the San Francisco Redevelopment Agency, said: "If this injunction goes on for, say, six months, then we are completely out of business."

Earlier, Sweigert had issued a memorandum saying persons living in the Western Addition A2 redevelopment area had a right to court review of relocation plants.

The memorandum was a response to a suit filed by the Western Addition Community Organization.

Truckload Of Bombs Causes Traffic Snarl

PLEASANTON (AP)—A truck carrying 22 tons of bombs was stuck in the mud for two hours last night, causing rerouting of traffic on U.S. 580.

The bombs, which were not fused, belonged to the Army and were headed for Port Chicago, the depot for munitions bound for Vietnam.

Russ Ships Move

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Contact Sensitivity To Many Substances May Cause Blisters

VAN DELLEN

Many individuals develop miniature blisters on the hands varying in size from a pinpoint to a B-B shot. Fungal and yeast infections used to be blamed for these outbreaks, but now we know there are many causes ranging from sensitivity to the plastic material in a steering wheel to ringworm infection of the toes.

IN SOME INSTANCES, the origin is obvious; in others, months elapse before the culprit is found.

During this time the lesions may come and go, but their location, timing, and intensity are influenced by many factors, including friction, climate, psyche, and stigmas (spots or impressions on the skin).

This type of dermatitis may be an allergic manifestation, called "an Id reaction." Hand involvement may represent a sensitivity reaction to an infection elsewhere in the body. It follows not only athlete's foot of the lower extremities, but bacterial infections, especially in the teeth, tonsils, sinuses, cervix, or prostate.

Unless the original source is removed, the lesions will remain on the hands.

DURING THE summertime, the blisters may be due to blocked sweat ducts, with retention of fluid. The condition is related to prickly heat. It is aggravated by warmth, emotional stress, and stimulants such as coffee, spices, and alcohol.

Tiny vesicles on the hands may be due to contact dermatitis; the individual touches a substance to which he is sensitive.

Poison ivy is the prime example, but formaldehyde or turpentine is capable of producing a similar outbreak. There are so many other irritants it is not always easy to pinpoint the specific offender.

CLEWS ARE OBTAINED from the victim's occupation and the site of the blisters.

Paints, solvents, metals, and plastics are suspected in those who work with these substances. Colored chalk is supected when the teacher is bothered; whereas hair tonics may be causative in barbers.

Dentists may react to novocain. There is no end to the contactants for the housewife — she handles everything from disinfectants to onions.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

THYROID, CHOLESTEROL

L. H. writes: A serum test showed a blood cholesterol of 261 and my doctor prescribed thyroid extract for me. What is the connection between cholesterol and the thyroid gland?

REPLY

Low thyroid activity is associated with an elevated blood cholesterol; and overactivity of the gland with a decreased cholesterol.

VASOCONSTRICTORS

E. E. writes: What are vasoconstricting drugs?

REPLY

Vasoconstrictors are drugs that cause constriction or narrowing of the blood vessels. Examples of these agents are ephedrine, Neo-Synephrine, or Triaminic preparations. Many elevate blood pressure, quicken the pulse, and relieve congestion (as in the nasal passageways or bronchial tree.)

TWO FLU SHOTS

M. T. writes: Is it safe to take the first flu vaccine shot from one doctor and the second from another?

REPLY

Yes, provided the dosage is known. The vaccine is the same.

HIGH FEVER IN CHILDREN

Mrs. H. writes: How high can the temperature go in a child before it becomes dangerous?

REPLY

It is not the height of the fever but the cause that is significant. Children with infections usually run higher temperatures than do adults. But any youngster who has a temperature in excess of 104 degrees for 24 hours or longer should be seen by a physician.

PAINFUL EYEBALLS

A reader writes: What causes painful eyeballs that are tender when I put my hands over them?

REPLY

When the eyeballs are overly sensitive to the touch, inflammation or glaucome is suspected. Bring this to the attention of your opthalmologist.

VITAMINS IN MILK

G. O. writes: Does skim milk contain vitamins?

REPLY

Yes. When the cream is separated from fortified whole milk, the vitamins and other nutrients remain. Only the fat is removed.

SISTERS CRAVE FRECKLES

E. A. writes: My sister and I have been bothered by this problem for some time. Is there any way of getting freckles by using certain sun oils or a home remedy? We love freckles and want some on our cheeks. Please answer because we are very anxious to try whatever you recommend.

REPLY

I have nothing to recommend except cosmetics containing dyes that could be daubed on your face. It is difficult to overcome heredity. People either are born with skin that freckles or the type that does not freckle.

STRETCH MARKS

A reader writes: What causes stretch marks and is there any way to get rid of them?

REPLY

These marks, called striae, are difficult to eradicate because they usually occur after the skin has been stretched because of pregnancy or obesity. The marks represent scar tissue.

AIRBORNE TUBERCULOSIS

W. E. writes: Can tuberculosis be picked up on a bus?

REPLY

Yes. Tuberculosis is transmitted largely via airborne droplets. These are sprayed out when an infected individual sneezes, coughs, talks, or even exhales while sitting or standing in a bus.

Today's Health Hint — Croupy coughs should not be neglected.

Time For U. S. To Lay Down Terms To Ky

It is difficult to guess what kind of negotiating may go on in Paris among the United States and the two Vietnams, if they ever get down to negotiating. So far, the performances of Hanoi and Saigon have been in a class to be matched for silliness only by the Black Students Union and the Students for a Democratic Society.

Eventually, though, there must be an end to the fighting. And if the Paris talks get nowhere, the formula must be found in Washington. It seems abundantly evident there will be no help from Saigon.

There has been a long period of virtual silence over our role in Vietnam, ever since the party primaries of last summer. Both candidates, Richard M. Nixon and Hubert H. Humphrey, vowed the war must end. Neither was specific about how this should be accomplished. Both had an excuse for not being specific: the Paris talks initiated by President Johnson.

BUT THERE S NO point in just sitting and waiting to see whether anything happens in Paris. We should be formulating our course in case nothing happens there — which seems highly possible, and perhaps probable.

It is encouraging, therefore, that one of the more clear-headed pre-primary critics of our Vietnam policy has broken the politics-imposed silence to speak out again for some action by the United States to end the stalemated war.

Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, who was a late-blooming entry in the Democratic presidential sweepstakes but was a Vietnam critic long before that, has voiced a "dump Ky" proposal.

"While Ky is playing around in the plush spots of Paris and haggling over whether he is going to sit at a round table or a rectangular table, American men are dying to prop up his corrupt regime back home," McGovern declared.

"Haven't we had enough of this little tinhorn dictator who wastes American tax funds in Paris and American blood in Vietnam? . . .

"Let us, in the name of humanity and common sense, stop the killing and tell General Ky that if he wants the war to continue, he is welcome to give up his plush accommodations in Paris and go back to take charge of his troops, but without the help of any more American blood and treasure."

THAT IS PRETTY strong talk. But we expect it is the kind of talk that Nguyen Cao Ky could readily understand if it did not lose too much in the translation. And we expect it is about the only kind of talk that might have an effect on him.

Sometimes the United States seems determined to make itself ridiculous, and to waste its wealth and its manpower in doing so.

We have proved we are ready to help bring the war to a conclusion. We have proved we are willing to try to find a meeting ground for the two Vietnams — the two parties to the war into which we intervened for reasons that become more cloudy as time goes on.

IT IS TIME we let both of them know that, since we hold the power, we propose to lay down some terms. Then if they will not accept those terms, the blood is on their hands, not ours.

And it is time we began to thresh those terms out in our own national capitol, not waiting on a pair of "tinhorn dictators" at a round, square, oblong or hexagonal table in Paris.

The Split Driving Personality

Sometimes we have observed friends or relatives, who are seemingly sane, normal humans, becoming veritable maniacs behind the wheels of cars on Marin's clogged traffic arteries.

Somewhere in the cerebral cortex there may be a cubic millimeter of cells which constantly proclaim "I am a born racing-car driver and I can weave in and out of the fabric of traffic like a needle in the hand of a skilled tailor; I can out-accelerate, outmaneuver and out-run anything on the road; and if this is not so, I will turn in my Volkswagen."

Luckily, most of us also have a pinhead of cerebral cells, which says, "I am a human being with human limitations and if I drive my garden-variety car like a racing car, I am courting disaster." But, unfortunately, not everyone has this balancing knot of brain flesh.

Court Ruling Extends Protection To Employee Driving To Work

By HENRY MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — An entirely new concept of protection for workers covered by workmen's compensation may result from a recent state Supreme Court decision involving use of a private automobile driving to and from employment.

The supreme court ruled that the Workmen's Compsenation Act covers an employee who lost his life when driving his car to his job pursuant to the employer's requirement that the employee furnish his own car.

The court, in a 4-to-3 decision, overturned a 1934 case which held that even though his job called for the use of a motorcycle, the employee did not get the protection of workmen's compensation because he was only "going or coming" to his place of employment.

IN THE CURRENT case, a social worker for the County of Ventura was involved. The worker was injured in December, 1965, en route from home to office, where he was required to report each morning before using his car to visit welfare clients during the day. He died from the injuries.

In reversing an order of the Workmen's Compensation Board, which denied compensation because the death did not arise out of employment, the court held that "the so-called going and coming rule" does not bar coverage.

The opinion said in part:

"When the employer requires that the employee engage in conduct, whether prior to the work day, or after it, whether on the premises of that employer, or away from them, the inurs to the benefit of the employer, the employer cannot claim immunity.

"The employment relationship can hardly be severed during the performance of an act required by the employer for his own purposes and advantage.

"In the instant case, the employer clearly benefitted from the employee bringing his own car to work."

THE MAJORITY said further:

"Surely in this day of a highly motorized society, we cannot cast the going and coming rule as a protective cloak over the shoulders of the employer, who for his own advantage, demands that the employee furnish the car on the job."

The court's new ruling makes it incumbent for an employer to have specific understandings with the employees whom he requires to drive his own automobile in the course of employment.

Almighty Taxpayers Penurious To Schools

This letter is written in response to your editorial of Saturday, Dec. 4.

I'll admit there is some substance to your implication that some people voted against school bonds because of the violent activities of a few students and even because of the demands of a larger number which seemed unreasonable from their point of view.

You might have reminded these almighty taxpayers of the parable of Sodom and Gomorrah in which the Lord promised to spare the city if Lot could find just 10 good men within the city? What arrogance on their part to say that if there are a few bad students, the institutions are not worthy of being saved!

Are you not guilty of playing both extremes against the increasingly effective students in the middle who wish to change the establishment to meet the needs of their generation and those of their children? Don't you want this awakening of political and social awareness which is happening on our campuses? Can you dispute the following statements?

(1) A large majority did vote in favor of our bonds but a small minority (less than 35 per cent in the case of the Tam District) ruled against the majority's wishes.

(2) These same people would very likely have voted against any other tax increase if they could have had a voice in the matter.

(3) Never have we had so much "buying power" left over after taxes and necessities (especially in Marin County).

(4) Never have we been so penurious toward the education of our youth on whom our future depends. The per capita income for the State of California spent on education has been decreasing, not increasing. As compared to six cents on the dollar spent on education in the '30s we now spend about one cent per capita income. And our child population ratio is considerably higher!

(Editor's note: According to the U.S. Office of Education, expenditures for public elementary and secondary education (not including college education) in California in 1966 amounted to 5.81 per cent of total personal income. This was the seventh highest percentage in the United States. Highest was New Mexico, which spent 7.61 per cent of total personal income on elementary and secondary education. These are the latest reliable figures that are available.)

Anyhow, It Was Guy With Same Name

Nixon's appointment of Will Rogers as secretary of state was a sheer stroke of genius. As is well know, Will said, "We never lost a war and never won a peace conference."

As for Nixon himself, you've got to admire a guy who can pick himself off the floor twice and still win the championship.

Bible Remains Best Authority

Your excellent Dec. 17 editorial entitled "To Restore Responsibility, Bring Back Woodshed" is worthy of favorable comment.

The Bible says, "He that spareth his rod hateth his son, but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes." (Proverbs 13:24) — and "Withhold not correction from the child, for if thou beat him with the rod, he shall not die." (Proverbs 23:13).

The Bible is still the best text book in child-rearing (Dr. Spock — please take notice!) and is still apropos in this sophisticated, God-rejecting and lawless age. Let's return to its precepts and authority. This is the solution to our social, economic and educational problems.

TRY AND STOP ME

The application blank for a new driver's license included this question: "Have you ever been arrested?" The applicant wrote, "No." The following question read, "Why not?" The applicant answered, "They never caught me."

WASHINGTON WINDOW

Don't Expect Speed From New Congress

By ROY McGHEE

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Barring a world crisis that would require hurry-up congressional action to safeguard the nation, the 91st Congress convening Jan. 3 will get moving with the speed of a lame tortoise.

"We will meet the statutory requirement and be through here by July 1," some of the leaders will pronounce. "We'll be out of here by Labor Day at the latest," others will predict. They will be sincere as ever —and quite probably just as wrong.

If things follow the form charts, Congress will quickly settle down to two or three months of inertia.

IT REALLY is not anybody's fault that very little of substance will get done in the opening weeks of the session. It's just the nature of the national legislature.

First, there is the matter of organization.

The House must completely reorganize itself. There will be a period of adjusting (although slight) to the shifts in party strength and new members.

Committee assignments will be made, and the committees themselves will hold organizational meetings. These actually are little more than sessions to install formally on the basis of seniority chairman of the committees and the subcommittees.

The Senate also will undertake organizational chores, but with far fewer members, they are not so arduous. Furthermore, the Senate considers itself a "continuing body" since only one third of its members are elected each two years, while all House seats are up for election biennially.

AND WHILE the sheer size of the House (435 members) will contribute to its inertia, it is the "continuing body" concept that is likely once again to tie up the Senate in a time-consuming rules battle.

In question is rule 22 —the one covering filibusters. It says that in order to cut off debate, two-thirds of those senators present and voting must agree.

Many liberals favor changing the rule so that debate can be ended by a majority somewhat less than two-thirds, possibly by a simple majority.

The conservatives generally want to keep the rule the way it is. They argue such a rule is necessary to keep rights of minorities from being trampled by majorities.

Liberals contend that in practice, the rule has worked in reverse — that it has prevented ninorities from securing their rights —especially, in recent years, civil rights.

UNDER the "continuing body" concept, the conservatives say, the Senate rules continue from one Congress to another. Thus, they are able to use the filibuster itself to block a change in the rules, a two-thirds majority being required for consent to bring such a change to a vote.

The liberals argue that the Senate at the beginning of each new Congress should be able to adopt new rules, unbound by the old rules, and that the new rules should reflect the will of a numerical majority only.

They have never won the fight, although they gained a little ground in 1959 when they succeeded in reducing the figure to two-thirds of those present and voting from a "constitutional," or outright numerical two-thirds of the Senate membership.

THE PROSPECTS are the liberals will once again mount a fight against Rule 22, and the prospects also are they will be no more successful than in past years.

But the fight may take weeks before it is settled.

Pragmatists say "so what?" since there will be little else the lawmakers can do anyway until the new President shapes his legislative program and gets it to Capitol Hill.

Nixon Statements Hint New Arms Race Speedup

WASHINGTON — In a recent private talk, President-elect Richard M. Nixon and Sen. Henry M. Jackson agreed that top priority in U.S. policy must go to maintaining strategic forces strong enough to deter military adventures by Russia and her allies.

The senator, although he is a Democrat, was Nixon's first choice to be secretary of defense. It is therefore not surprising that they were generally agreed, in their 45-minute conversation in New York, on the need for a stronger deterrent force.

The point is open to very serious disagreement, however, as events will demonstrate in coming months. The question, "how strong is strong enough?" is already provoking controversy, and it promises to generate a Great Debate in Congress after the House and Senate reconvene next month.

EVEN AFTER cuts totaling more than $5 billion, the defense bill passed by Congress in October carried $71.9 billion and was the largest appropriation in history. It provoked complaints from some lawmakers that defense outlays leave little room for aid to education, welfare programs and other national needs.

Two unsuccessful Democratic presidential aspirants, Sens. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., and George McGovern, D-S.D., have been talking, since the election, of cuts in defense spending. Both warn of the pervasive threat of the military-industrial complex of which President Eisenhower spoke before he left the White House.

On the other hand, Sen. Richard B. Long, D-Ga., says defense spending must now increase. Long the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, Russell moves over this year to head the powerful appropriations committee.

"Within a year," said candidate Nixon in a television speech, "the Soviet Union will catch the United States and, if we don't get a change of leadership and policy in Washington, will pass us in deliverable nuclear capability."

PRESIDENT-ELECT Nixon, recalling the "unquestioned" nuclear superiority of the Eisenhower years, sees the shifting power balance as a handicap for efforts of his new administration at defusing world trouble spots by negotiation.

Pentagon authorities dispute Nixon's campaign charge that "we have a gravely serious security gap." They too are concerned, however, about the Russians increasing strategic potential.

In the size of the lie there is always contained a certain factor of credibility, since the great masses of the people . . . will more easily fall victim to a great lie than to a small one. — Adolf Hitler.

How To End Missile Base Fuss: Put It On Farallon Islands

No one has seriously suggested it yet, perhaps because it is too simple and rational — why not put the anti-missile base on the Farallon Islands.

It would solve the arguments against putting the sentinel site on Wolfback Ridge or Angel Island, which center around other plans for the land — state parks or high-priced houses.

It would also answer the most serious strategic criticism of the anti-missile concept: That the base is too close to the bay area to prevent a hydrogen holocaust from incoming Chinese missiles. From the Farallones, a Sprint missile with its 30-mile range would have another 26 miles head start, which might save a few hundred thousand casualties when the time came.

The Army properly will object that construction on the Farallones would cost too much. Certainly it does cost a lot to ship building supplies 26 miles over water.

But balance that against the cost of buying Wolfback Ridge or Angel Island, and the cost of permanently losing either of those areas for public use. The government already owns the Farallones, and there are no neighbors to complain about noise, smoke, or visiting soldiers in the local taverns.

NEWSPAPERS, including this one, have thrown around a lot of high level numbers about the "value" of marijuana or dope seized in narcotics raids. The numbers are highly variable depending apparently on who announces the seizure.

The difficulty is that dope sales are one area where the old free market still operates. The seller can charge any price he can get, and "market value" fluctuates as new shipments arrive from Mexico or county and state "narks" raid a stash and cut the supply.

In general, according to lawmen, the price of marijuana in Marin has roughly doubled in the past year, since formation of the county narcotics abuse bureau. Part of the boost is probably due to the bureau's success in confiscating sizeable quantities of the weed.

IN APPROXIMATE figures, these are current average prices for marijuana, according to Sausalito Police Chief Edward S. Kreins:

A one-kilogram brick or "key," sells for about $125 (another source says $100 to $200 depending on quality). This is some 35 ounces of grass.

By the lid, or one-ounce package, marijuana sells for approximately $15. (This brings the price up to $525 a key, a 400 per cent profit and a quick explanation of why so many people are in the grass-selling business).

A single cigarette, or joint, once sold for 50 cents or less but today is more likely to cost a dollar. This is a further boost from the $15 an ounce price.

When a narcotics man talks of marijuana's market value he may be talking about prices in keys, lids or joints, and the value varies accordingly.

For everyday purposes, the price of $125 per kilo is approximately accurate. The next time you read of a million-dollar haul, figure it out on that basis and set your own value. And remember, inflation applies here too, and the price of marijuana is rising like that of everything else.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Fair-Marin Story Should Be Enough To Startle Taxpayers

Here are some things that should startle the taxpaying citizens of the county:

This heading of an I-J story on Dec. 17 — "Fair-Marin Given Grounds Control." A sentence in the story: "The contract gives Fair-Marin board autonomy in managing the fairgrounds but gives the county control over planning and developing of the fairgrounds site."

Fusselman

Then further, this short paragraph: "Fair-Marin will have two budgets — one to operate the county fairgrounds property and another to run its own cultural activities off the Civic Center site." (Question? Is the second budget their money or county money?)

And still another: "Today's action climaxes a year-long battle between Fair-Marin directors and the county administrator's office over the extent of authority Fair-Marin would have over the fairgrounds."

Startling, even though there has been abundant presentation of the way of life out at Brasilia.

THE FIVE supervisors are receiving in total salaries $48,000 a year. The three highest in "COMMAND" (caps are mine) of the administrator's department receive a total of $64,392. So, it took one year for this $112,392 of talent to give "autonomy" to special interests, in the management of 80 of the 140 acres of the publicly owned Civic Center site, and that $112,392 is only the top cost of the talent involved. There are supporting actors and expenses as well.

Man, have they been having a Merry Christmas all year. Oh, but they have been terribly busy with other matters, too. Besides oratory and the ignoring of the waste basket snooping by one of the lesser lights, just what crop has been produced for the money?

I JUST TURNED on the television set (2:20 a.m.) and listened to the astronauts and Houston ground control talking back and forth as Apollo 8, now in oribt around the moon, came out from the dark side and with the voices from the space ship coming those hundreds of thousands miles distinct and precise, as they described what they were seeing through the window of their ship, at a distance of 69 miles from the moon — the sea of Tranquility and that the surface of the moon had a drab coloration.

Even though you will have the complete story before this will reach you, there is a compulsion to write of it now. As a kid, like all others, I have lain on my back of a summer evening and watched that still placid golden face shine up there and then later in the year again watched it through the window as clouds scudding by gave it the illusion of a fast moving silver disk, and I would wonder and wonder, never dreaming that what has happened would take place in my lifetime. God grant that those courageous men return to their dear ones!

Hirohito Voted More Allowance

TOKYO (AP) — The Imperial household Economic Council decided Wednesday to increase allowances for Emperor Hirohito and his family to meet the rising cost of living in Japan.

The council, presided over by Prime Minister Esaku Sato, decided to raise the allowance 10 per cent. The decision is subject to approval by parliament.

Hirohito, Empress Nagako and Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko and their two children now get a lump sum of $233,330 a year as living expenses. Other members of the royal family, such as Hirohito's younger brothers, Prince Takamatu and Prince Misaka, get $20,000 a year each.

Hearing Loss Linked To Cholesterol

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (SS) — Studies indicate that a decline in hearing ability could be a warning of unhealthy veins or arteries, with high cholesterol levels to blame. Such levels have been linked to heart attacks and stroke.

The waxy substance could be clogging blood vessels in connective tissues between the tiny hearing bones, thus impeding the person's ability to hear.

Prof. A. H. Ismail, a Purdue University researcher, with Homer Tolson, speculates that reducing the blood cholesterol level could improve hearing abiity.

Earlier, Dr. Ismail had directed a physical fitness program showing that regular, rigorous exercise lowers blood cholesterol levels significantly. To examine the theory, the Purdue investigators set up a fitness program for about 70 faculty and staff members. Before the physical conditioning began, all participants were given a series of hearing tests, besides other measures of physical condition. At the end of the four-month program, hearing tests were given again.

Many showed improvement in hearing over the four months, and none showed a deficit.

Drivers Warned To Try Coffee On Holiday Trip

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — California Highway Patrol Commissioner H. W. Sullivan is urging drivers on long trips during the Christmas and New Year holidays, to take time for a "coffee break" to prevent fatal accidents.

Sullivan said the patrol is supporting the National Coffee Stop program in which restaurant operators will be serving free coffee to motorists as a public service during peak hours of the holiday season.

The commissioner said, "A cup of coffee can help overcome fatigue and drowsiness which are contributing factors in a large number of highway crashes."

The restaurants joining in the program will display the official National Coffee Stop sign.

Co-sponsoring the event are the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators, the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association, the National Restaurant Association and numerous state restaurant groups, and the Coffee Information Service.

Three Handed Death Sentences

SEOUL (AP) — Three South Koreans convicted of setting up a Communist guerrilla base on a small offshore island were sentenced to death today in Seoul District Criminal Court.

Fourteen other persons in the ring received sentences ranging from one year to life in prison.

The prosecution said the leaders had been instructed to recruit guerrillas in the south for an armed uprising.

East Learned A Bitter Lesson In Not Taking Look At Declarer

Before you double for penalties, take a good look at the declarer. If he bears even a faint resemblance to Los Angeles star Meyer Schleifer, save your double for some other hand and some other opponent. One player at the recent national tournament in Coronado discovered that you can't get rich doubling Schleifer.

SINGLETON SPADE

West led the queen of hearts, and Schleifer won in his hand with the king in order to lead his singleton spade at once. West couldn't tell that the spade was a singleton, and played low in the hope of giving declarer some trouble.

As it turned out, all of the trouble was in the other direction. Schleifer won in dummy with the king of spades and began a crossruff. He ruffed a low spade, ruffed a club in dummy, cashed the ace of hearts and ruffed a heart.

RUFFS CLUB

Declarer ruffed a second club in dummy, ruffed a second spade in his hand and then ruffed a third club in dummy. By this time Schleifer had taken the first nine tricks, and East was reduced to his four trumps. Schleifer still had two trumps and two clubs; dummy had the king of trumps, one heart and two spades.

When Schleifer now led a spade from dummy East had to put up the jack of diamonds in the hope of shutting out the eight of diamonds. Schleifer overruffed with the ace and ruffed a fourth club with dummy's king of diamonds.

DISCARDS TRUMP

East helplessly discarded a trump. When declarer then led another spade from dummy, East had the Q-6 of diamonds, and Schleifer had the eight of diamonds and a club. If East ruffed low, South would overruff; if East ruffed high, South would discard and take the last trick with the eight of diamonds.

Schleifer made his doubled contract with an overtrick, and East is still wondering what hit him.

First Novel

NEW YORK (UPI)—The first novel published in America, The Power of Sympathy or the Triumph of Nature Founded in Truth," was printed in two volumes in 1789 in Boston, Massachusetts.

ALMANAC

Today is Friday, Dec. 27, the 362nd day of 1968 with four to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full stage. The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1932 the largest indoor theater at the time opened in New York City—Radio City Music Hall.

In 1941 the Japanese bombed the neutral city of Manila.

In 1945 the United States, Russia and Britain announced they would govern Korea as joint trustees for five years, then grant independence.

In 1963 the Commerce Department authorized the sale of surplus wheat to Russia.

A thought for the day: Plutarch said: "The whole life of man is but a point of time; let us enjoy it, therefore, while it lasts, and not spend it to no purpose."

He Saw Smog

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Los Angeles Harbor wasn't too impressive to Juan Cabrillo, the Spanish explorer who anchored his caravel here in 1542. After seeing smoke from fires of primitive Indians, he named the harbor the Bay of Smokes and Fires—and then he sailed on.

Leon Spiro's Poems Due Use In Show

Peace poems written by Sausalito poet Leon Spiro are being incorporated into a television program being prepared in Italy for 1969 showing.

Included are a number of poems originally published in the Marin Poets' Corner of the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine.

The 20-minute show, on tape, is being produced in three languages — Italian, French and Spanish — by Benito Mattioli of Fidenza, Italy, and also makes use of art work and music by leading European painters, Sculptors and composers. It has been entitled "Pax 1969."

Selection of Spiro's poetry followed favorable reviews in such European publications as La Gazzetta di Parma, Grama of Alciras in Valencia, Spain, and the Journal of Birmingham, England.

Bangkok Reports Copter Flights

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thai troops spotted medium-size helicopters over northeast Thailand 15 times during the nights of Dec. 12-17, and the government assumes they were flying supplies to Communist terrorists in the area, Deputy Premier Praphas Charusathien told a news conference today.

General Praphas said the helicopters are believed to be flying from North Vietnam or from bases in Laos held by the Communist Pathet Lao.

License Sought

The Contractors State License Board, provided no written protests are filed, will grant a license to Kunst Brothers Painting Contractor, Inc., on January 13. The firm is operated by John R. Kunst of 76 Belvedere Street, San Rafael.

Pueblo Crewman To Have Full Military Burial

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Pueblo crewman Duane D. Hodges, described by his skipper as "a hero in every sense of the word," will be buried with full military honors tomorrow in his hometown, Creswell, Ore.

Hodges, 21, was the only crew member to die when the Pueblo was captured last Jan. 23 by the North Koreans.

Funeral services will be at the junior high school in Crewswell. Members of his former Navy Reserve unit will be pallbearers and a graveside rifle salute will be fired by active duty members of the naval reserve training center in Eugene, Ore.

The sailor's mother, Mrs. Jesse D. Hodges, said Pueblo skipper Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher told her that Duane was "standing on deck, bending over, destroying secret papers when he was hit by enemy fire."

"As he died," she said, "he was singing a Christian song."

Spanish Novelist Granted Retrial

MADRID (AP) — The Spanish Supreme Court has ordered a retrial for novelist Isaac Montero, sentenced by a lower court in January 1967 to six months and one day imprisonment on charges of illegal propaganda.

The Supreme Court ordered the retrial yesterday because the lower court had rejected evidence Montero tried to submit.

No date for the new trial was set.

Montero, 25, wrote a novel "Alrededor de un Dia de Abril" (Around an April Day) that he tried to publish without cuts suggested by government censors. They considered the novel offensive to the Franco regime.

Ditched Jetliner Repairs Slowed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Renovation is taking longer than expected on the Japan Air Lines DC8 that belly-landed in San Francisco Bay Nov. 22.

But officials say the jetliner may be in the air again by late next spring.

The $9 million plane, which landed in 10 feet of water just off Coyote Point three miles south of the San Francisco International Airport, is undergoing a $2 million rebuilding job at the United Air Lines maintenance hangar.

All 87 persons aboard survived the accident in heavy fog.

The plane's four engines, valued at $250,000 each, seemed undamaged by their salt water bath.

Miss Amurao, now 25, was elected a municipal councilor in San Luis after returning home from Chicago.

She hid under a bed while eight other nurses were slain in a dormitory at the South Chicago Community Hospital, and has since filed a multimillion-dollar suit against the hospital.

Miss Amurau was the key witness against Richard Speck, who was convicted of the killings and is now under death sentence.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Color Camera Next For Apollo Flights?

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Even as the Apollo 8 astronauts were presenting their last live telecast of their Christmas moonflight yesterday, engineers on the ground were figuring out ways to fly a tiny color camera aboard future Apollos.

The present camera used inside the moonship is an electronic marvel, weighing less than five pounds, but it can transmit only black and white pictures.

NEED COLOR

Pictures from space, such as the view of earth's globe which Frank Borman, James Lovell and William Anders featured in the last Yuletide telecast, lose much of their impact without color.

The shot of earth from 111,634 miles out, for instance, showed clouds covering much of North and South America. But in black-and-white, the clouds and the land appeared as similar shades of gray despite the sharp image transmitted by the camera.

In color the land would have stood out in rich greens and browns surrounded by royal blue seas and topped by puffy white clouds.

LAB WORK

"We think it could be made a little bit larger," he said. "This is just an idea right now, but it's an idea based on some very sound principles."

Weight is a big factor in Apollo, and squeezing a television camera down small enough to be carried in the moonship and to operate off its limited electrical current was a triumph of the new technology of miniaturization.

The Apollo camera is small enough to fit into the glove compartment of a car. It has both a wide angle and a telephoto lens. Built with miniaturized integrated circuits —specks of crystals carrying entire arrays of electronic components—it requires only six watts of power, compared with 500 watts for a studio camera.

SCAN SYSTEM

Lower power means it uses a different scanning system from a regular TV camera, producing 320 horizontal scan lines per inch compared to 525 lines for broadcast television.

Because of this ground station converters are needed to convert the signal for home viewing.

Collision Hurts Marin Woman

Yvonne L. Harren, 27, of 60 Fairfax Street, San Rafael, was treated at Marin General Hospital for cuts on her head and right knee following a collision in the 700 block of Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael.

Police said she was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, James Harren Jr., 30, which collided with a car driven by Joseph H. Prohaska, 28, of 400 Canal Street, San Rafael.

Harren was cited for illegally passing to the right, police said.

Succulents Lecture

San Rafael nurserywoman and succulent expert Lila Lillie will lecture, show slides and answer questions about succulents at 8 p.m. Jan. 10 before the Redwood Shade Garden Club in Whitaker Hall of St. Stephen's Parish, Golden Gate and Bayview avenues, Belvedere.

FEATURED THIS SATURDAY

William Penn Patrick is one of Marin County's most interesting and most widely known citizens, as well as one of its most controversial. He is known for his spectacular success in the cosmetics business. But perhaps he is even better known for his conservative political views, and for the methods by which he has put them to the test. I-J political writer Paul Peterzell gives you a "profile" of this fascinating Marinite in tomorrow's I-J Marin Magazine.

What was the New Year's observance like in turn-of-the-century Marin? Just how did it differ from our celebration today? Independent-Journal Historian Florence Donnelly answers those questions in another of her special features, written for tomorrow's issue of the weekend supplement. It is a story of another era when the passing of one year and the arrival of another was greeted in a far different style than it is today. You will want to read it and re-live another time.

U.S. Regains Davis Cup; Netters Try For Sweep

ADELAIDE, Australia (UPI) —The United States regained the Davis Cup for the first time in five years today when Californians Bob Lutz and Stan Smith thrashed Australia's John Alexander and Ray Ruffels, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2, in what may be the last all-amateur format of this 68-year-old competition.

The Americans disposed of the inexperienced Australian team in one hour and seven minutes.

The straight-set triumph coupled with singles victories by Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., and Clark Graebner of New York gave the Yanks an insurmountable lead in the best three-our-of-five match series.

Ashe beat Ruffels and Graebner defeated Bill Bowrey in blustery weather yesterday making today's doubles match before a gallery of about 4,000 fans in the Memorial Drive stands a must for the Australians.

Two single matches remain tomorrow — Graebner versus Ruffels and Ashe against Bowrey — but they will be little more than exhibition matches.

U.S. captain Donald Dell refused to celebrate the Cup victory today and said he would like to make it a 5-0 sweep.

Harry Hopman, the wily long-time team manager of Australia, attempted to avert disaster by inserting the untested Alexander in his doubles lineup, replacing Bowrey.

Alexander, the junior Wimbledon champion, is only 17 years old, making him the youngest Australian ever to compete in the Challenge Round. However, he has one of the strongest serves in amateur tennis.

Ruffels had never played before with Alexander and the two were mismatched against Smith and Lutz, the University of Southern California teammates who are regarded as the best amateur doubles team in the world.

After taking the first two sets in relatively short order, the U.S. required only 17 minutes to complete the rout. Ruffels lost his serve on the first game of the third set and Lutz made it 2-0 before Alexander held. Smith, the steadiest player on the court, opened up his cannonball service to hike the U.S. advantage to 3-1.

After Ruffels dropped his service again, Lutz held to make it 5-1 and then Smith clinched it on his service.

This was the 20th Davis Cup victory for the United States, only two less than Australia.

In the meantime, delegates from the Big Four of tennis—the United States, Australia, England and France—were to meet here tonight to discuss a formula for opening the Davis Cup to professionals.

HERB MICHELSON

How Will Joe Namath Deal With Raiders?

OAKLAND — Having last week sold the Raiders short (for a year's end capital gains tax break, of course), I'm puzzled about how to deal with them in Sunday's American Football League encounter in Shea Stadium with Mr. Namath.

As, I think, will be Mr. Namath

He must face an Oakland defense that a week ago denied a touchdown to a superior Kansas City team. And Joe has fewer runners of merit to throw the Raiders off defensive stride than did the totally embarrassed K.C.

YET, NAMATH has a weapon the Chiefs pitifully lacked: the best defense in the league, particularly a fine secondary. The defensive backs ruined Kansas City, as the five touchdown passes of Daryl Lamonica attest. A K.C. cornerman named Emmitt Thomas represented a 12th Raider. He will have a terribly lonely winter, and spring, and early summer.

The Raiders beat Thomas and his people with their offensive line, giving its (finally) best performance of the season. They must perform at least as brilliantly against the Jets if Oakland is to reach the Super Bowl for the second straight January, a very straight month in any event.

THE REASONING is straightforward: If his line gives Daryle plenty of time, he can find receivers on both sides of the field. If not, he is effective only to his right — where defenders soon will start partying.

Tackle Harry Schuh mainly was Lamonica's time provider against K.C. He must give Daryle those moments in Shea, for the fine Raider receivers need seconds on seconds.

THERE IS NOT one Emmitt Thomas in the Jets defensive backfield. There are, however, Johnny Sample and Jim Hudson.

Cornerman Sample warmed up for this classic AFL title affair by playing on two championship teams for Jet coach Weeb Eubank at Baltimore in that other league. Sample talks lavishly field in hopes of haunting such splendid receivers as Warren Wells and Fred Biletnikoff. He is, plainly, a pest.

HUDSON, USUALLY the strong-side safety, is quieter. You would be too if you were bitten on the leg by a black widow spider this past spring.

Hudson, and the Jets, survived, despite being rated behind Houston in the AFL East this season. I like to think that any man who defeats a black widow spider can also humiliate the defending champion Raiders.

Yet, the Jets could be hobbled by nearly a month of title euphoria. They clinched their division with two weeks left on the schedule and then had another week's rest while Oakland battered K.C.

THE RAIDERS, despite a nine-game win string, are just beginning to click. The must game against the Chiefs was probably their finest all-around effort of 1968. Now, one would assume, Oakland knows how.

But given a little time to pass (plus all that Shea encouragement), Namath can unlearn them. Any man who would shave a marvelous Fu Manchu mustache for $10,000, would be the kind to win two football games for 25 grand.

And, Lord knows, Joe could use a new fur coat. His present mink needs pressing.

Tars Lose Tourney Opener

I-J Special Report

SANTA MONICA — College of Marin's basketball team ran into one of the big boys last night at the Santa Monica Invitational Junior College Basketball Tournament.

The Tars were bombed by host Santa Monica, 82-62, despite a brief second-half comeback. They'll play Compton of Los Angeles at five o'clock this afternoon in the double-elimination tourney.

Foul trouble, not enough rebounding and a bothersome Santa Monica press turned out to be the recipe for a Tar defeat this time.

The Tars were whistled down 23 times and were outrebounded 62-48.

Guard Andre Horn whipped in 20 points for College of Marin and Pat Schafer scored 13 points.

College of Marin, after trailing by 17 points at the half, cut the margin down to seven points with 10 minutes left before a Santa Monica surge wiped out the Tars.

The Tars are now 4-7 on the season.

PREP CAGE

Novato Quint In Tourney Semifinals

Novato High School's basketball team ran its season win-lost record to 8-2 and advanced into the second round of the Pacific Invitational Basketball Tournament by dumping Lincoln San Jose, 69-50, at San Leandro.

A big 31-point outburst by center Ed Herrnberger triggered the win, which was put away early as the Hornets piled up a 34-19 halftime lead.

SEMIFINALS

The Hornets will play in the semifinals at 7 p.m. today. Bob Ament with 13 points and Dave Perron with 10 helped Herrnberger.

Tamalpais of Mill Valley went into tournament action but didn't fare as well as the Indians lost to Washington of San Francisco, 61-50, in opening round of the John F. Kennedy Tournament in Fremont.

In non-tourney games, Redwood axed DeAnza, 66-57, at Larkspur, and Poly of San Francisco smothered Drake, 77-43, at San Anselmo.

Tamalpais led Washington, 30-29 at half, but a final-period deficit of 16-8 did in the Indians. Dave Larsen with 17 points topped the Tam scoring, followed by Ken Gommeringer with 13 and Don Mackin, 10.

TOP GAME

Redwood, getting top performances out of Jerry Piro and Jim Peters and an all-around floor game from Skip Corsini, broke to a 49-38 third quarter lead and was home free.

Piro scored 20 points and Peters added 17 points plus eight rebounds to go along with Roger Smith's 13 points.

The Redwood jayvees downed DeAnza's jayvees, 32-25, while the Giant Bees topped the DeAnza B squad, 49-23.

Shrine Oddsmakers Stymied

Game Tomorrow Called A Toss-Up

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Duffy Daugherty, who never really has been that hot about a running game, throws a "full-house" backfield at the West tomorrow in the 44th annual Shrine East-West football game, which could turn out to be one of the most interesting in the series.

A check of oddsmakers late yesterday indicated there is too much difference between the two teams to pick a favorite.

CONTRAST

There is, too, with the East pitting a potent running backfield against the West's anticipated passing game.

The game, in Candlestick Park, will begin at 1:30.

"A coach would have to be crazy not to try to play all his running backs if he had the kind I have for this game," said Daugherty, and then added he will shoot with All-America Leroy Keyes of Purdue, Ron Johnson of Michigan and Charlie Jarvis of Army right from the start.

"I'll get Perry Williams (also of Purdue) in there when I can," said Daugherty, "and just turn those boys loose. No need to tell you what they can do. If our practice sessions have proved anything, it is this: These boys know how to run and I'd be crazy not to build our offense around them."

NO FLANKER

With no flanker in the lineup there will be little for quarterbacks Fred Summers of Wake Forest and Dennis Brown of Michigan to do except hand the ball off to Keyes, Johnson and Jarvis and then get out of the way.

On the other side, it will be a lot different.

Coach Bob Devaney has a pair of outstanding passers in Brooks Dawson of Texas of El Paso and Robbie Johnson of Oklahoma State. To make things easier for them he will split both Gene Washington of Stanford and Louis Thomas of Utah at all times.

Devaney will use a flanker, though, and leave the running to Bill Enyart of Oregon State, an All-America fullback, and more than likely Bill Davis of Nebraska with Ross Montgomery of Texas Christian and Jack Stewart of Texas Tech in reserve.

PASSING

"The makeup of our team dictates we pass as often as we can," said Devaney. "That doesn't mean we won't run, since it would be foolish not to give the ball to Enyart and Davis, but my guess right now is that we will try to get there (endzone) mostly with a passing game."

Keyes, Johnson, Jarvis and Williams will have their work cut out for them, if they have to carry the ball as often as Daugherty indicates.

That's because they will have to charge into such Western defenders as Joe Greene of North Texas State, George Buehler of Stanford and Ed White and Mike McCaffrey of

HOLIDAY TOURNAMENTS

Busy Weekend Of Action For West Coast Cagers

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Santa Clara and Oregon are still in and California is out after the first big night of holiday basketball tournament action.

UCLA gets going tonight as Lew Alcindor returns home to New York City for the Holiday Festival joust at Madison Square Garden.

Santa Clara, sixth ranked nationally, got a stiff fight from West Virginia at the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu before pulling away to a 72-58 victory last night.

Brothers Ralph and Bud Ogden and center Dennis Awtrey combined for 58 points. Unbeaten Columbia nipped Stanford 69-66 in the other game despite 19 by the Indians' Mel McElwain and 18 by Don Griffin.

Tonight at Honolulu, Purdue, Arizona, Hawaii and Subpac complete first round action. A Purdue-Santa Clara final might be in the works.

At Portland, Oregon took Yale 84-71 in the nightcap of the Far West Classic's first night play. Billy Gaskins had 17 for the Ducks as almost 11,000 watched the action.

But highly-rated California flopped again as Brigham Young upset the Bears 82-74. Bob Presley had 18 for the Bears, but only two came in the first half and the 6-11 Bear pivot man fouled out besides. Washington State, Syracuse, Oregon State and Arizona State go at it tonight.

UCLA meets Providence in the Holiday Classic at New York where a showdown between the nationally top-ranked Bruins and the number two rated North Carolina Tarheels seems likely.

There are tournaments getting underway all over the nation tonight and each seems to have a Western team. UOP is at the All College Tournament at Oklahoma City, USC hosts its own Trojan Invitational, Washington is at the Triangle Classic at Raleigh, N.C., Santa Barbara hosts its Winter Classic, USF is at the Blue Bonnet Bowl joust and Portland calls on Houston and San Francisco State is at Youngstown in a couple of other games.

Players Expected Allen To Be Fired

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The firing of Los Angeles Rams' head Coach George Allen left most Ram followers puzzled and shocked today, but some players say they weren't totally surprised.

Allen, 46, was fired yesterday by Dan Reeves, president and general manager of the National Football League club. Reeves said a personality conflict led to his decision. "It was probably more my fault than his," said Reeves.

Allen called a news conference for today.

In three years with the Rams, after the Western Division team had suffered seven straight losing seasons, Allen turned Los Angeles into a winner with seasons of 8-6, 11-1-2 and 10-3-1.

The first public hostility between the quiet Allen and Reeves came after the Nov. 17 Ram game with the San Francisco 49ers.

The teams tied 20-20. After the game, Allen said the muddy field conditions were the worst he'd ever seen. Reeves called the comments unnecessary and ill-advised.

"But we heard rumors in training camp," said Roman Gabriel, the No. 1 quarterback of the Rams under Allen.

"We heard rumors that George Allen would be fired if we didn't win it all this year," Gabriel said. "And those rumors popped up more often as the season progressed.

"Before our last ball game with the Baltimore Colts, Coach Allen said he wouldn't be back next year." said offensive guard and co-captain Joe Scribelli.

Allen seems to always have commanded the respect of his players. In 1963, while a coach with the Chicago Bears, the team there presented him the championship game ball, an honor normally reserved for players.

"It's hard to realize that a man who's been a winner like George Allen could be fired," Gabriel said. "He gave more to his players than any other coach I've ever played for.

"If he goes to another team, and he wants me to play for him," Gabriel said, "I might make it known I'd like to be traded. I've also thought about sitting out a year or even retiring."

Allen came to the Rams the successor to Harland Svare, who had a 4-10 record in 1965. Reeves fought a court battle with Chicago owner George Halas for Allen, then gave his new coach a five-year, $40,000 a year contract.

Allen's deals earned him the name of The Trader and in 1966 the Rams were 8-6, their best record in eight years.

The following season Los Angeles was 11-1-2, won the Coastal Division title and, after a 28-7 loss to Green Bay for the Western Division crown, thrashed Cleveland 30-6 in the Playoff Bowl.

This year the Rams were hit by injury and illness but wound up 10-3-1, losing their last two games—to Chicago 17-16 and to Baltimore 28-24.

Allen, a native of Detroit, played football at Marquette in 1944. He began his pro coaching career with the Rams in 1957 after nine years of college coaching at Morningside in Iowa and Whittier in California.

He was at Chicago molding the Bear defense for eight years.

Warriors Nip Phoenix For Third Win In Row

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The San Francisco Warriors are proving they can win without ace center Nate Thurmond and able Clyde Lee, both sidelined with injuries.

Hitting 50.6 per cent of their shots from the field, the Warriors rolled to their third win in a row, 119-118, this one over the Phoenix Suns last night.

Forward Bill Turner connected on 10 of 16 and finished with 28 points for a career high with the pros while playing 44 minutes for the Warriors. Hustling teammate Al Attles took only seven shots but sank six of them.

However Thurmond's replacement at center, 6-10 Dale Schleuter, tipped the balance in San Francisco's favor. Though scoring only 10 points, he picked off 12 rebounds to pace both teams while playing only 28 minutes.

San Francisco now embarks on a Midwest swing with a Saturday afternoon meeting at Detroit.

Seals Fall To Ranger Skaters

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers, who had only one victory in a string of 10 National Hockey League games, hung a 3-1 loss on the Oakland Seals last night, leading all the way.

The Seals, now 1-1 on a five-game eastern swing, are idle today. They play in Philadelphia tomorrow and in Pittsburgh Sunday.

Reggie Fleming took a perfect pass from Jean Ratelle to whip in the first Ranger goal 36 seconds into the second period.

'GET LAMONICA'

Simple Jets' Game Plan

NEW YORK (AP) — "Get Lamonica."

That, says Gerry Philbin, is the best defense against the Oakland Raiders' passing attack.

The New York Jets, for whom Philbin plays a brilliant defensive end, must contend with that attack Sunday in the American Football League championship game, and if they can stop it, they could stop Oakland.

Daryle Lamonica is the center of the attack, and he devastated Kansas City with five touchdown passes last Sunday in the Western Division playoff.

"If we get to Lamonica early, then we could save what could be a long game for us," said Philbin, who was named to the AFL All-Star team earlier this week. "We've got to keep on his back. We have to get to him because when he's hot, he's hot.

"Even if you can't tackle him and throw him for a loss, you can get your hands in his face. If he has to throw over your hands, he's very likely going to throw a bad pass."

Lamonica didn't throw too many bad passes six weeks ago when he completed 21 of 34 against the Jets for 311 yards and four touchdowns.

"He had a pretty good day, but I think we put pressure on him," Philbin recalled. "We got to him twice, and we made him scramble a few times. Anyone is less effective if he has to run around while he's trying to see his receivers.

"But he throws so quick you have to get in on him or he'll hurt you. He's also one of the toughest quarterbacks around. We've given him some good shots in the past—nothing dirty but just hard—and he just bounces right back. You can't rattle him mentally either."

What the whole thing comes down to is how well the Oakland offensive line and the New York defensive line does against each other. The Jets dumped the opposing quarterback 43 times this season, third best in the league, while the Raiders have permitted the opposition to get to their quarterback 29 times, fourth in the league.

"I'd have to say they have one of the best pass protections in the Western Division," said Philbin, a 6-foot-2, 245-pounder now in his fifth pro season.

"In the Kansas City game they looked even better than I thought. They looked super. I think Kansas City got to Lamonica only once. You have to do better than that."

Throughout the season the Jet linemen have run a little pool in which they each put $10 weekly. The money would go to the man who tackled the quarterback the most times. This week, however, the $10 bills have stayed in their wallets.

"We don't have anything going on this game," Philbin explained. "We don't need anything. It's all or nothing. We don't need any extra incentive."

Hayes Beats Chamberlain In Star Vote

NEW YORK (AP) — Elvin Hayes, the sensational San Diego rookie, has been picked over towering Wilt Chamberlain for the starting center position on the Western team for the annual National Basketball Association All-Star game.

The 19th annual East-West classic will be played at Baltimore's Civic Center Jan. 14.

Forward Elgin Baylor, Chamberlain's teammate on the Los Angeles Lakers, was the only unanimous choice of the sports writers and sportscasters from the franchise cities who picked eight players. Western coaches will select the other four players for the squad next week.

The other starters, named today, include another Laker super star, guard Jerry West; guard Len Wilkens of Seattle, and forward Don Kojis, another San Diego star. Also selected were forward Lou Hudson of Atlanta, guard Jerry Sloan of Chicago and Chamberlain.

Warm Raiders Leave For Frigid New York

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders, who spent an extra day in the relative warmth of the West, were to leave today for the frigid scene of their American Football League title game with the New York Jets Sunday.

Originally, the Raiders were to fly to New York yesterday, but they elected instead to spend one more day in Oakland to get in some warm-weather practice.

The strategy seemed to have backfired when nearly an inch of rain fell Christmas Day, but yesterday was bright and sunny, allowing the Raiders to get in a last-minute workout.

A noon workout, closed to press and public, was scheduled for New York's Shea Stadium tomorrow.

As might be expected, the main topic of conversation among the Raiders was the weather that awaits them in the East.

"We know the weather won't be ideal," said Oakland Coach John Rauch, without a trace of a smile. "We'll prepare for winter as much as possible.

"But really, we don't want to make the weather a psychological barrier. The way things have broken for us in recent weeks, I figure the sun will come out at game time," he said.

Raider quarterback Daryle Lamonica is concerned about what the freezing New York temperatures will do to the playing field.

"If the field isn't frozen," he said, "then it's okay. Otherwise, we'll have to discard our cleats and use sneakers. The breaks then become the difference.

"I don't mind the snow or the cold," Lamonica added.

"It's the ice and the whipping wind that can hurt you."

CAREFUL

Should Daugherty switch to the air in the event the running game doesn't work, then Summers and Brown will have to try to angle their throws away from Al Worley, the All-America defensive back from Washington who set an NCAA record this past season with 10 interceptions.

Dawson will open at quarterback for the West. He was one of the nation's top passers in 1968 with 123 completions for 764 yards and 14 TD's. Gene Huey of Wyoming, although an end, could be the starter at flanker, thus giving Dawson three fleet runners to throw at.

Washington set a Pacific 8 Conference record this season with 71 catches, many of them of the circus variety; Huey was one of the top receivers in the Western Athletic Conference for three years and Thomas came on strong as a top-flight catcher this past year.

All Systems 'Go' For TV Blastoff Of Bowl Games

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's time for the nation's college football fans to go into orbit around their television sets.

All systems are "go" as the bowl season is about to blast off with 11 games in the next six days, most of them to be televised somewhere or other.

However, the University of Michigan, which missed out on a trip to the Rose Bowl, got its licks in last night by winning the Coach Bowl. The Wolverines tapped Glenn "Bo" Schembechler of Miami, Ohio, to succeed Chalmers "Bump" Elliott as head coach. The Associated Press learned. Elliott will move up to associate athletic director.

In six seasons at Miami, Schembechler's teams won 40 games, lost 17 and tied three. As a student there, he played under Woody Hayes, whose Ohio State team is going to the Rose Bowl.

The action on the field begins tonight when Ohio University, unbeaten, untied and ranked 15th in the nation, meets Richmond's Southern Conference champions in the Tangerine Bowl at Orlando, Fla.

The Bobcats of the Mid-American Conference were 16th in total offense, 14th in rushing offense and fifth in scoring with an average of 37.6 points a game.

Individually, quarterback Cleve Bryant was ninth in total offense and fullback Bob Houmard was fifth in scoring with 19 touchdowns.

Saturday finds Missouri against Alabama in the Gator Bowl at Jacksonville, Fla.; Auburn and Arizona in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., and two all-star contests—the East-West Shrine Game in San Francisco and the Blue-Gray at Montgomery, Ala.

Next week it's the Peach Bowl Monday, the Blue Bonnet Bowl Tuesday and the Rose, Orange, Cotton and Sugar Bowls Wednesday.

A crowd of 68,000 is expected to watch a defensive battle between Missouri and Alabama in the Gator Bowl. 'Bama ranked fifth in total defense and defense against scoring and seventh in rushing defense. Missouri was eighth in total defense and fifth in pass defense but the Tigers also ranked 12th in rushing offense and 21st in total offense.

They have an All-American in safety Roger Wehrli, the nation's No. 1 punt returner.

The Sun owl also could be a defensive struggle in this year of the exploding scoreboard. Although Auburn has a potent aerial duo in Loran Carter and Tim Christian and Arizona has a fine receiver in Ron Gardin, they also rank among the defensive leaders.

Arizona finished seventh in total defense and 14th in rushing defense while Auburn was eighth in defensing the rush.

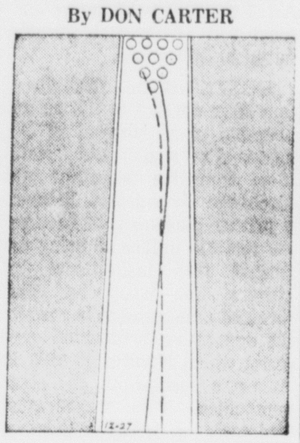
BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



A slow lane — one that causes the ball to hook too much — can be combatted in several ways. First, move your starting position a few boards to the left so that your ball will have more room to hook. Second, increase your speed a little. Third, loft the ball out on the lane a few inches farther than usual.

Finley Against Chub Feeney As Commissioner

OAKLAND (UPI) — Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland Athletics, doesn't think San Francisco Giants vice president Chub Feeney should be named baseball commissioner because of his strong ties with the San Francisco National League team.

Finley said yesterday of Feeney "is a nice guy and a hard worker who knows baseball, but I don't feel the commissioner...should have a mother who owns a major interest in the Giants."

Feeney is a nephew of Giant owner Horace Stoneham. Feeney's mother owned 19 per cent of the Giant stock when the club moved West a decade ago.

Feeney commented yesterday: "I was pleased that 17 owners thought I had enough integrity to overcome this. Hopefully, this would not affect my judgment if I would be appointed commissioner."

Dawson, White West Captains

PALO ALTO (AP)—Quarterback Brooks Dawson of University of Texas-El Paso and tackle Ed White of University of California at Berkeley yesterday were named co-captains of the West Shrine team for the game with the eastern stars on Dec. 28 at Candlestick Park in San Francisco.

The Western and Eastern players sat down together for the traditional Christmas dinner and received watches and other gifts from the Shrine officials. The West squad did not work out today.

A Fat Report On Fishing From Weigh-station Boss

STEVENS

To begin today's column let's take note what Mike Crean of Sports of Spanish Flat, Lake Berryessa has to report. In brief Mike states the following:

"The trout have moved and have been relocated. They are lying outside major creeks, Marina Harbor launching ramp areas, and major coves leading toward a creek. The two marina harbor and launching ramp areas taking most of the trout the past two weeks have been Spanish Flat Launching Area to Cappell Creek and Steel Canyon mouths as well as Markley Cove launching area to Monticello Dam.

"Fishermen should troll shoreline leading toward the mouth of creeks, major coves and shorelines leading in and around launching ramps.

"The trout are still on the surface and hitting hard at Berryessa. Trollers should stick close to shore (30 feet) and use small Ford Fenders to attract. Best lures have been X-4 flat fish; 22 Okdokie, one two-ounce cast master and three-and-one-half-inch rebel.

"THE BASS have gone to deeper water due to the cold surface temperature Lake Berryessa now has. Bass are on the bite and averaging three to seven pounds per fish. The fishermen taking bass are plugging deep-running and bottom-bumping lures. Best lures have been bomber, water-dog, gold-bug bucktail, purple and black stingers, and Shannon twin spinners. Best areas north and south of the Vineyard, the Ranch House Cove, Skier's Cove, Spanish Flat Harbor entrance, and Eticura Creek at the Fill.

"The catfish are hitting clams and sardines. Best area forty-five in Portuguese Canyon, the Vineyards, Cappell Creek and Steel Canyon Park Headquarters and Eticura Creek Fill.

"CATS AVERAGING two to four pounds per fish, 'Doc' Baliff, our local Berryessa barber, brought one in this week topping the scales at eight pounds, so we also have the big lunkers, if one fishes deep for them like 'Doc.' Most of the cats in the two- to four-pound range are caught in shallow water near streams, coves and weeded areas.

"Note: Fish are being taken in both bad and good weather, which is good but strained. A photo showing nine bass and one trout was taken in the Vineyard during a northwind, but unfortunately cannot be reproduced in print."

The above report came in from Mike Crean, manager of Port of Spanish Flat (Official Weighing Station). For up-to-date fishing reports and weather call (707) 966-2346 Tuesday to Sunday, ask for Mike Crean or call Spanish Flat Marina.

Stocks Take Slight Dip At Closing

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market closed slightly lower today. Trading was moderate.

Stocks wiped out a small early gain and settled to the downside as bullish influences were lost in the welter of year-end transactions.

The averages were off a little, and losses exceeded gains by a small margin.

Prices near the close included:

American Cement, off 3/8 at 19 3/8; Central & Southwest Corp., off 1 1/4 at 43 3/4; Clorox when distributed, off 1 at 26 3/8; M-G-M, off 1 1/4 at 44 1/8; INA Corp., off 3 3/4 at 49 1/8; Lowe's Theatres, up 1 1/4 at 50; Roan Selection Trust, up 7/8 at 11 1/8; and Westinghouse Electric, up 1 7/8 at 68 3/4.

A technical recovery from six days of decline began yesterday and continued for a while today but ran out of steam.

Losses outnumbered gains in late trading by fewer than 100 issues.

Central & Southwest Industries, off more than a point, had the biggest volume, followed by M-G-M, down nearly a point.

Loew's Theatres, up nearly 2, was the best gainer among the 20 most-active stocks. In the same group INA Corp. dropped 3, Reynolds Tobacco, Shell Oil and Northwest Industries preferred a point or more.

Although the tradition of the yearend rally was still in mind, it was an unusually inactive week for the last one of the year. Caution prevailed before the weekend. The outlook for the economy, and the stock market seemed to remain in limbo and traders were taking no changes.

Yearend cross currents obscured the trend as it does so frequently in the last week of trading. Only two more days of trading remained after Friday.

Johns-Manville picked up 2 points. Westinghouse Electric, U.S. Smelting, Phelps Dodge, General Dynamics and International Telephone gained a point or better.

THE WEEK IN BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber Sees Slowing Down In '69

The economic outlook, according to the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, is for a slowdown in the rate of expansion in 1969 accompanied by continued upward pressure on prices, even if the federal budget is held close to balance and a prudent monetary policy is followed.

The federal deficit (on a National Income Accounts basis) will almost disappear next year, says the chamber, falling from $12 billion in fiscal 1968 to $1 billion in fiscal 1969 as receipts rise faster than expenditures.

The Gross National Product is predicted to rise 6.5 per cent to about $915 billion. But more than half of this gain (or 4 percentage points) will represent price increases. The "real" estimated growth will decelerate to 2.5 per cent, substantially down from this year's 4.3 per cent rate.

The upward trend of federal spending will continue in 1969, although at a sharply reduced rate from 1968.

Construction outlays next year will depend largely on the cost and availability of mortgage money. A recent McGraw-Hill forecast of contract dollar volume in 1969 predicts a gain of 9 per cent — almost as much as this year's 10 per cent, but the projected increase is based on expiration of the surtax in midyear.

LFC FINANCIAL CORP. is the new name of Lytton Financial Corp. following completion of a recapitalization and reorganization plan. LFC has issued 4,115,818 shares to purchase the assets of Equitable Savings and Loan Association and Mission Savings and Loan Association and to retire $16.5 million in outstanding debts. Directors of LFC have named Charles A. Wellman, president; George A. Edwards, executive vice president, and William A. Giraldin, senior vice president.

CLIMATROL INDUSTRIES, INC. is the new name for the Worthington Air Conditioning Co. The company employs nearly 2,000 people and has approximately one million square feet of manufacturing and office area under roof on 172 acres in the United States. Large commercial and industrial heating and air conditioning equipment will continue to be produced in East Orange, N. J. and Decatur, Ala. Residential and light equipment will continue to be produced in Milwaukee.

ANIXTER BROS., INC. directors have decided to file an application of withdrawal of the company's registration statement from the Securities and Exchange Commission. Instead, a private placement of between $12 and $15 million is being arranged with institutional investors. The board has also directed management to resume its aggressive acquisition program which resulted in 1968 in Anixter's acquiring 13 other companies. The registration statement is being withdrawn because of the SEC's requirement that it contain audited statements of earnings of all purchased companies. Some audited statements were unavailable.

ISI SALES CORP., a soon-to-be formed corporation to distribute all funds, insurance and related products of Insurance Securities, Inc., has named Robert B. Ritter Jr. president. He was formerly general agent for Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. He will also become a vice president of the parent company.

PACIFIC SOUTHWEST AIRLINES has filed with the Civil Aeronautics Board an application for approval of its approved acquisition of control of Western Air Lines, Inc. PSA also requested a ruling that would allow shares of Western stock to be placed in a voting trust, thereby permitting consummation of an exchange of stock received in exchange for PSA stock without waiting for CAB approval of the merger.

EMCO DISTRIBUTORS will be the name used by Eiselman Distributing Co. of Emeryville and Moore and Clark of San Jose when they begin merged operations Jan. 2. Headquarters will be centered in Emeryville.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I try to be a conservative investor because I will be turned out to pasture in a few years — I am 58. My holdings are $30 M Treasury Notes, Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, American Natural Gas, Bethlehem Steel, Eastern Air Lines, Plymouth Rubber, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Union Carbide. I would appreciate suggestions for improving my situation.—W.D.

A. You still have some productive years ahead — enough to justify a more aggressive approach toward investing.

Treasury Notes currently selling below par should be held for redemption in 1970. Both Amer. Natural Gas and Std. of New Jersey have a strong record of up-trending earnings and should be held. Air Reduction, although closely tied to the steel industry has expanded its penetration into other areas — particularly cryogenics — and should be held for growth. Eastern Air Lines' poor performance both in earnings and share action reflects industry problems of overcapacity. But long-term position and an apparent bottoming-out justify retaining the shares. Carbide, also in cryogenics, though a market laggard, now seems to have turned the corner and should be held.

I would replace Allied Chemical and Plymouth Rubber, which have reduced their dividends, and Bethlehem Steel, which may reduce, with equal dollar amounts of Boise Cascade, H. J. Henize and Magnavox. In each case capable management has demonstrated the ability to achieve a strong growth pattern. A continuation of these improving earnings trends should be reflected in share price.

Q. In 1941 I bought 16 shares of Container Corp. at 13 7/8. I can't find the original certificates, but do find certificates for 32 shares dated 1951, 8 shares 1954 and lots of 100 and 20 dated 1956. I have no idea where or at what price these shares were purchased. Can you give me the approximate cost?—B.V.

A. Judging by the dates and amounts I would say that these shares were acquired as the result of splits and a stock dividend. In 1951, after a 2-for-1 split, your original 16 shares were reflected by 32. A 25 per cent distribution added another 8 shares in 1954. Your final two certificates increased your 40 shares to 160 as the result of a 4-for-1 split. After all adjustments your original cost is reduced to $1.39 per share.
